MINE OWNERS FACE CHARGE OF PLOTTING TO CUT COAL OUTPUT

LEAGUE WITH MEN ALLEGED

Federal Attorney Says It Is Time to Determine if Law or a Group of Men Run Nation.

PRESS SUIT AGAINST MINERS

Lewis and Five Other Officials Give $10,000 Bail Each—Capiases for 78 Others Issued.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 4.—Upon the heels of the institution of contempt proceedings against officials of the United Mine Workers of America, the Government has taken steps to broaden the scope of its prosecutions in connection with the strike of coal miners and will investigate alleged violations of the Lever Fuel Control act and the Sherman anti-trust law by miners, operators, and others.

Judge A. B. Anderson of the Federal District Court today ordered a special session of the Grand Jury here Monday morning and immediately afterward a statement was given out by District Attorney L. Bert Slack, and Dan V. Simms, Special District Attorney, who is aiding in the injunction proceedings, declaring that the time has arrived to determine "whether this is a Government of law or of a group of men."

This morning six officials of the United Mine Workers of America, who yesterday were charged with criminal contempt for alleged violation of the Federal Court's injunction against the strike, appeared at the Federal Building and furnished bonds of $10,000 each for their appearance in court Tuesday. They were John L. Lewis, Acting President; William Green, Secretary-Treasurer; Ellis Searles, editor of The Mine Workers' Journal; Percy Tetlow, Statistician, and Edward Stewart and William Mitch, officials of District No. 11.

The charges against seventy-eight other miners' representatives of violation of the injunction, were printed and certified today, and copies were being mailed tonight to all court districts in which the defendants reside. It was stated that as soon as this information is received in the various districts, capiases would be issued for the arrest of men named in the charges and removal proceedings to procure their appearance in court here would be instituted.

Inquiry Will Be Nation-wide in Scope.

The Grand Jury investigation, called primarily to deal with charges against coal operators, will cover all phases of the controversy in the coal industry, and will be nation-wide in its scope. The statement of Government attorneys brought out the fact that the investigation was intended not only to furnish relief in the present coal crisis, but that the Government expected to prosecute all violators of the law and see that they suffer the penalties provided. The Lever law carries a penalty of $5,000 fine or imprisonment not to exceed two years in the penitentiary.

It was stated that the determination to begin the Grand Jury investigation came as a result of disclosures in the proceedings against the miners' leaders, which, it was said, tended to show that the coal operators, as well as the miners, were in a conspiracy to violate the Lever law. Agents of the Department of Justice started two weeks ago an investigation of alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust law by operators and the evidence collected by them has been added to that offered in previous investigation of the miners.

"The information, at great length, sets out the acts, not only of the defendants, but of others," reads Mr. Slack's statement, "showing that the injunction has not only been disobeyed, but that the Lever act has been and is now being grossly, openly and defiantly violated. Upon the facts in this information being called to the attention of Judge Anderson, he immediately determined to call a Grand Jury.

"That Grand Jury has been drawn and summoned to appear here next Monday morning at 10 o'clock, at which time we expect that they will be charged to investigate the violations of the Lever act, not only on the part of the defendants to the injunction suit and the officers of the United Mine Workers, but also any other persons, including miners and operators, who have in any way, before or since the suit, joined with these defendants in carrying out this unlawful conspiracy.

"It was fully disclosed in the original complaint for injunction filed before Judge Anderson that the calling of the strike of the coal miners was in itself a

Oklahoma Governor to Dig Coal with 300 Volunteers

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 4.—Governor J. B. A. Robertson and John A. Whitehurst, President of the State Council of Defense, are en route to McAlester tonight, where they will begin work tomorrow as coal miners along with 300 other volunteers.

Two squadrons of the 13th Cavalry will arrive at McAlester Saturday for duty at the mines. Governor Robertson earlier in the day requested Major Gen. Dickman, commander of the Southern Department of the army, not to send negro troops, who had been ordered into the State, because it "might involve us in unnecessary conflict and confusion."

The State Executive has issued an order placing the National Guard in readiness to move on short notice.

MISSOURI GOVERNOR SEIZES COAL MINES

Says Conditions Are Desperate and That the State Will Protect Its Citizens.

KANSAS VOLUNTEERS WORK

Special to the New York Times.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Dec. 4.—Governor Gardner of Missouri issued a proclamation tonight seizing fifteen coal mines in Barton County. Aside from a minute description of the mines the proclamation reads:

"Whereas, The closing of the coal mines of the country and of practically all in this State, including those hereinafter described, has resulted in a fuel famine in this State; and,

"Whereas, The people of the State are unable to obtain coal or fuel of any kind to meet their absolute needs for use in their homes, and are in distress and want as a result thereof; and,

"Whereas, The State is unable to secure coal necessary for use in its eleemosynary and penal institutions, with the inevitable consequence of suffering and distress among the inmates;

"Now, therefore, I, Frederick D. Gardner, Governor of Missouri, do proclaim that, in this emergency, to relieve the distress and want of the people of the State and to avert the calamity which threatens the wards of the State in its eleemosynary and penal institutions, the State of Missouri has taken possession and control of the hereinafter described mines and mining property for the purpose of temporarily operating the same and supplying coal to meet the extreme necessity of the people and of the State, to wit:

"Carney Cherokee Coal Company, Clems Coal Company, Dean Coal Company, Domestic Fuel Company, Ellsworth Coal Company, Independent Coal Company, Liberal Coal Company, Minden Coal Company, Pittsburg-Midway Coal Company, Pittsburg-Oscaloosa Coal Company, Sheridan Coal Company, Sherwood D. Lester Coal Company, Universal Brick and Tile Company, United States Coal Company.", Adjutant General Clark has appointed Colonel E. M. Stayton of Independence as Superintendent of Operations in the Barton County district.

Engineers Volunteer to Work.

The Adjutant General has been in communication with all twenty of the State institutions during the day, and has made arrangements to take the engineers from each institution to operate the engines of the twenty-four steam shovels in the event the State must operate the mines. This will give the State about fifty experienced engineers to start with. He has also communicated with a number of construction companies in various parts of the State who have suspended business for the Winter, and they have promised to furnish expert shovel men. He calculates five hundred men will be required to load the coal cars, and he expects to get this number.

"There will be no receiverships asked for," said the Governor. "Nor will the question of compensation to the mine operators be considered at this time. The people of the State are freezing, and there is no time now to quibble over wages, rights of the mine operators and such minor problems. The people of the State must have fuel. I was informed this morning that 700 children of the Home for Feeble Minded at Marshall are actually suffering from the cold. The institution has no fuel, although good coal mines are located within thirty-five miles of that place. I wired back to the managers to cut down shade trees, if necessary, and to get fuel of some kind regardless of consequences and costs.

"Conditions are desperate in Missouri.

HEATLESS CARS SIX HOURS DAILY ORDERED BY NIXON

THEATRE SIGNS LIMITED

Electric Lights in Front of Playhouses Will Blaze for One Hour Only.

PLAN TO MEET FUEL FAMINE

Manufacturers to Shut Down Plants —Train Service Here Not to be Crippled.

A widespread movement in the city yesterday to conserve fuel resulted late in the day in an order by Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon permitting the various railroad companies to shut off the heat in the cars during the rush hours, in planning ways of reducing the consumption of coal by the gas and electric lighting companies, and in an agreement by the theatre and moving picture houses to use their display signs for only one hour each night.

It was estimated that cutting the heat off the cars for six hours each day, from 6:30 to 9:30 A. M. and from 4:30 to 7:30 P. M., would save 1,000 tons of coal a day, or in the neighborhood of 20 per cent. of the total amount used normally. In a statement Mr. Nixon explained that the coal restrictions in the cars would last only two weeks, beginning this morning, and that the purpose was to conform to a request made by the Fuel Administrator that all public utility corporations co-operate in the movement to conserve coal.

He said that timely action might avoid a crisis, and that great suffering and inconvenience might be avoided if there was general co-operation.

"I am considering," he said, "whether reduction cannot be made in the lighting of stations and cars, which are far more brilliantly lighted in this city than elsewhere. We shall endeavor to avoid any curtailment of service unless it is absolutely necessary. I have called the attention of the several operating companies to the necessity of having all air pumps and light circuits cut in standing cars laid up at terminals or other points."

The order of Commissioner Nixon followed a long hearing in the assembly room of the commission at 49 Lafayette Street. Representatives of nearly all of the public utility corporations in the city were present. On opening the discussion Mr. Nixon explained that he considered that the coal shortage was rapidly reaching an acute stage and that steps should be taken at once to save every pound of coal that was not actually needed.

"We are facing a situation," he said, "which amounts to a crisis, and this commission wants to help the corporations and not to obstruct their operation. I am not going to ask you how much coal you have on hand nor will I ask for any pooling arrangement unless demanded by the Government."

Frank Hedley, President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, stated that his company was ready to co-operate in the movement. Mr. Hedley explained that many riders on local trains stood, and Mr. Nixon interrupted him to remark, "Yes, that's the trouble; they stand."

Mr. Hedley retorted by saying that many also stood during the rush hours, when the cars were so crowded that the latent heat in the human body was sufficient to keep everybody warm. He suggested that an additional amount of coal could be saved by reducing the service. But the emergency, it was explained, was not yet great enough to consider the advisability of taking off rapid transit trains. Mr. Hedley thought that his company should have a free hand in the matter, so that it could follow its own judgment in cutting down the coal consumption by cutting off the heat or putting it on as conditions warranted without awaiting for action by the commission.

Concerning the saving of fuel by the electric and gas companies, John W. Lieb, Vice President and General Manager of the New York Edison Company, said that he hoped that some more definite instructions would come from Washington on the fuel situation, so that how far the public utility corporations ought to travel in the path of conservation of coal could be more plainly understood.

In regard to a suggestion that electric sky signs hight be cut off. Mr. Lieb replied that the curtailment of lights on Broadway was a very small matter, and would make no material difference in the consumption of coal.

"To suppress the signs," he said, "would not save much coal, but it might

Britain to Protect France Regardless of Our Action

PARIS, Dec. 4.—The terms of the tripartite treaty guaranteeing France against unprovoked attack by Germany will be carried out by Great Britain regardless of whether the United States, the other participant, ratifies the agreement, according to newspapers here, which state that negotiations to this end have been almost completed between the French and British Governments.

Under the terms of the treaty, it would become operative when both Great Britain and the United States ratified it. The former has already acted favorably on the convention but it has never been submitted to the United States Senate by President Wilson.

KILLS DAUGHTER AND WIFE WITH AXE

SON IS DYING IN HOSPITAL

Two Other Children, Wounded by Maniac Father, Call Doctor Second Day After Tragedy.

Mason R. Strong, an architect and structural engineer, with offices at 7 Wall Street, this city, in a fit of maniacal insanity some time Tuesday night slew his wife and his eldest daughter with an axe, injured his three younger children, one of them so badly he will die, and committed suicide with a razor.

The dead, besides Mr. Strong, who was 50 years old, are his wife, Nina Strong, who was Miss Colville of Binghamton, and his daughter, Elizabeth, 16 years old, who is described as an unusually beautiful child. The only son, Nathaniel, 16, is unconscious and dying in the Passaic General Hospital. Two younger daughters, Nina, 14 years old, and Susanna, 8, are in the same institution suffering from scalp wounds, shock, and possibly from the administration of some unidentified drug. They will recover.

The tragedy enacted in the Strong home, 237 Lexington Avenue, in a fashionable residence part of Passaic, N. J., was not discovered till late yesterday afternoon, when one of the younger injured, still dazed and mercifully unaware of exactly what had happened, telephoned to Dr. John Carlisle, the Strong family physician: "Come to papa's house; everybody's sick."

Strong, reputed to be wealthy, and said to have stood high in his profession, was connected with the Erie Railroad as an engineer until a few years ago, when he embarked upon a professional career on his own account. Most of his work for the railroad was bridge building, and he designed the concrete structure at Binghamton, where the Erie crosses the Susquehanna, said to be a model of its kind.

Tuesday night the architect called upon his lawyer, William F. Gaston, who lives a half block from his home. The attorney said Strong talked about various business matters, such as the deed to a piece of property he owned in the West, and that he seemed moderately worried over his financial situation.

"Everybody Sick," Said Child.

He left, saying he was going home, and Mr. Gaston felt no alarm, though he knew that last Summer Strong had pneumonia, followed by a slight stroke, that he had nearly died, and that some neighbors insisted he had been "queer" since his recovery.

Catherine Mott and Ruth Smith, 12-year-old playmates of the younger Strong children, missed them at school Wednesday. They went to the Strong home, rang the bell repeatedly, and left when they failed to get an answer. When the children did not attend classes again yesterday they went again, and once more rang in vain. Then, their curiosity growing, they went through the storm doors into the vestibule and peered through the front door.

Their glances searched the empty living room and soon, beyond in the dining room, they saw Susanna and Nina, huddled together, pale and half-clad, with marks of their injuries on their faces. The frightened children tapped on the glass, and Nina, moving slowly and vaguely, opened the door and said dully: "Come in, everybody's sick."

Catherine and Ruth, scared and puzzled by their friend's manner, and fearing they might be exposing themselves to a contagious disease, ran away, and were spared the discovery that was to come soon afterward to Dr. Carlisle when he hurried to the home in response to a telephone message from Nina worded almost identically.

From what the physician saw, and from what Detective Captain Benjamin

Foch Calls British Army Chief to Conference on Germany

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The War Office announced tonight that Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, had gone to Paris having received an urgent summons to consult with Marshal Foch in connection with the Treaty of Peace.

In some quarters the announcement was regarded as indicative of sensational developments along the lines of a militarist revival in Germany. It is no secret that Marshal Foch takes a serious view of the situation.

Andrew Bonar Law, Government leader in the House of Commons, speaking at Glasgow tonight, said that there was suspicion that the German Government, perhaps influenced by the fact that the United States Senate had not ratified the Peace Treaty, was holding back from giving its full ratification, and would, if it could, evade the terms.

He said that he spoke for the British Government, and he believed with equal certainty for all the Allies, when he said that they had the power, and if necessary would exercise that power, to make it certain that the treaty would not only be ratified, but carried into effect, by Germany.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—The situation between the Allies and Germany is more critical than it has been since last June, when upon the action of the Weimar National Assembly hung the resumption of military action against Germany.

All over Paris is heard today talk of pushing the allied armies into Germany. This talk started five days ago when the project was characterized as doubtful. Today it is seriously considered.

The Supreme Council discussed the gravity of the situation at length this morning and decided to send Germany an ultimatum. No official statement is made as to its terms.

In French circles it is declared that there is but one thing to say to Berlin: "You sign the protocol or we go ahead from the Rhine." The French are the strongest in their expressions. The British and Italians in lesser degree realize that something has to be done. In this connection it should be remembered that in case of any military action against recalcitrant Germany it would be France's Army which would do the most work.

Von Lersner Offends Allies.

The situation was brought to a crisis by the public statement by Kurt von Lersner, head of the German delegation here, that Berlin would not sign the protocol because it was not responsible for the Scapa Flow sinking and that America was not standing behind the Allies in their new demands. It is entirely possible that von Lersner may be sent back to Berlin by the Allies.

Much comment is made on the fact that thirteen months after the armistice the Allies are considering a resumption of military measures against Germany. It is true that such a movement is not the next step, but it is very probable that the Allies are going to put themselves in a position where further defiance by Germany will leave them no other alternative.

If the situation is turned over to Marshal Foch by the Supreme Council there is little doubt that he would seize Mannheim, Frankfort, Essen, Düsseldorf and the Ruhr coal fields and hold them until Germany came to a realization of her position.

The situation is more than a controversy between the allied diplomats and the Ebert Government. There are more factors than the will of the Ebert Government in the German resistance. The junker faction has grown very strong recently and there is no doubt in Paris that the new stand of the Berlin Government is caused by pressure brought to bear by these men, who seek to use the position of the American

Grayson to Let Wilson Transact More Business; Board Arranged So President Can Use It as Desk

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson has decided to relax some of the restrictions imposed on the President and which have kept from his attention all but the most important public business. If the President shows no ill effects it is understood Dr. Grayson will allow him to be still more active.

Dr. Grayson stated that the President had been permitted to sign various papers today, and that his condition was continuing to improve slowly. The President sat up for some time in his room, but did not go out on the south portico of the White House on account of the cold weather.

There were reports that he had been permitted to work at a desk. This, it is understood, grew out of the fact that Dr. Grayson had a board arranged on which the President may work and write.

The President's only callers during his illness have been Secretary Tumulty, Senator Hitchcock, who has seen him three times; Attorney General Palmer, who saw him once; Secretary Baker, who saw him just before starting for Panama; William G. McAdoo, Dr. Axton, a relative by marriage; King Albert of Belgium, the Prince of Wales, and the consulting physicians.

EMPLOYERS ORDER AMERICANS HOME

BORDER VIEW IS SERIOUS

State of Texas Orders Its Rangers Recruited to Full Strength for Guard Duty.

Special to the New York Times.

EL PASO, Dec. 4.—Several of the largest of the American property owners and concerns doing business in Northern Mexico have issued instructions to their American employes to return to the American side of the border without delay. They were told to bring their families with them.

Among those who have been advised to quit Mexico immediately are the American employes of the Pearson interests and the Americans employed on the Phoebe Hearst estates, as well as various other American properties. It is reported that the American Mining and Smelting Company, which is one of the Guggenheim interests, has also sent word to its American employes to quit Mexico.

It is also stated here tonight that the American employes of the Alvarado Mining Company of Parral and the Cusihuirachi Mining Company of Santa Isabel, both in Chihuahua, have been instructed to return to the United States.

The decision to order the Americans out of Mexico followed conferences held in this city betwen the American border authorities and representatives of those owning property and doing business in Mexico. Major Gen. Robert L. Howze, commanding the El Paso District, when informed this afternoon that the local representative of William R. Hearst had made public the fact that Americans were being advised to return to American soil admitted that the statement was correct. Beyond this admission General Howze refused to discuss the situation.

The first of the Americans from Chihuahua, Sonora, and Durango are expected to arrive in El Paso tomorrow or Saturday.

The seriousness of the Mexican situation is reflected everywhere on this part of the border. Orders were issued today cancelling a previous order which called for the transfer of a battalion of infantry to the Oklahoma coal fields and it was followed by another order directing the return to the border stations of all troops except fifty men now on guard in the New Mexico coal region. Recruits for the border commands are also arriving in El Paso and it is known that a dirigible company will come to the border to reinforce the airplane organizations now here.

That Carranza is increasing his forces in the Northern States of Mexico is another fact that can now be published. It is said that the Carranzistas in the Big Bend country are now numerically superior to the American command. One of Carranza's crack regiments has also within the last two weeks reported for duty at Juarez, while other considerable reinforcements are known to have been sent to Sonora by the Mexican Governments.

Texas Rangers Ordered Recruited.

Special to the New York Times.

AUSTIN, Dec. 4.—An order was issued by Governor W. P. Hobby today for the recruiting of the existing seven companies of State Rangers up to full fighting strength and the organizing of as many additional companies as may be deemed necessary adequately to protect and patrol the Rio Grande border.

He took this action on the strength of a report made to him of the seriousness of the Mexican situation by Adjt. Gen. W. D. Gope, who last night held a conference with the United States Army officers of the Southern Military Department at Fort Sam Houston. It is stated that at this conference the situation was thoroughly discussed.

JENKINS FOUND DEFIANT IN JAIL

Visited by The Times Correspondent, He Declares That He Will Never Give Bail.

NEW WITNESSES FALL DOWN

Mexican Prosecutor Says That Jenkins Insulted the Judge and Refused to Co-operate.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 4.—"I will stay in jail until I rot or the Puebla government is obliged by the United States to free me from jail," said Consular Agent Jenkins to a NEW YORK TIMES correspondent at the State Penitentiary in Puebla yesterday. Answering a question as to why he did not give the bail demanded, Mr. Jenkins stated that if he gave bail the case would be carried on for many months. Although admitting a loss of money owing to the impossibility of attending to his own business, Mr. Jenkins added that as he was convinced of his own innocence he was willing to cause the Governor of Cabrera all the trouble possible, even though it meant financial loss personally.

In speaking of the Government officials and Judges, Mr. Jenkins used strong expressions. He told the correspondent he had told the Judges his opinion of them in the same language.

The Mexican authorities admit that no doubt exists that Jenkins went away from home in the company of armed men or that he was taken from his factory late at night, but they say his attitude now causes doubt as to whether he was a party to the plot or simply has taken an attitude of defiance of the State authorities generally. They say he has refused to give all possible assistance to the police officials in order that the criminals may be punished.

Prosecuting Attorney Mitchell said to the correspondent that when he first took up the case he believed Jenkins a victim, but after reviewing the statement made by Jenkins and noting his evasive answers he was obliged to order a fuller investigation.

"Not only," said Mitchell, "did Jenkins refuse to give the officials information upon his return home, but he also insulted the Judge who had charge of starting the investigation. I have been a personal friend of Jenkins, but I must comply with my duty. When I found that Jenkins had written letters to his embassy charging ill treatment and insults on the part of the State authorities I immediately examined Jenkins, who denied having written the letters. When shown copies he said that he had been treated fairly, but could not remember what he had written to the American Embassy. This case is not serious and, not wishing to cause trouble, Jenkins was placed under the small amount of 1,000 pesos bail so that he could have his liberty until the investigation was finished. Jenkins in no uncertain language told us to go to hell. Instead of helping the officials by giving all the information possible Jenkins has opposed us fully. I wish to make it clear that Jenkins is only held in order that an investigation of the contradictions in his testimony may be finished."

When asked if he favored American intervention in Mexico, Mr. Jenkins said no, but that he wished to see the country "straightened up." He admitted that he had made much money since the revolution began, more than before. Asked if it were true that he had a meeting with Senator Fall when in the United States last Autumn, he declined to answer, saying that was his personal business.

Mr. Jenkins is a man of average size, almost bald, has bright blue eyes, and weighs about 180 pounds. He is confined in the State Penitentiary, a large stone building surrounded by high walls, where he has a large room. Visitors are allowed at all hours, and his mail is sent in without examination.

WILSON TO SEE SENATORS

FALL RESOLUTION WAITS

Lansing and Democratic Senators Urge That Time Be Allowed for Mexico's Reply.

MEXICO MAY ASK INQUIRY

Washington Advices and Cabrera's Statement Forecast Reply on Jenkins Case.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—At the end of a prolonged conference today the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, by a vote of 6 to 5, the Republicans voting yes and the Democrats no, decided to appoint a sub-committee of two to confer with President Wilson on the Mexican crisis and ascertain his views upon any action the Senate might take in regard to a break in relations with the Mexican Government.

Senator Fall, Republican, of New Mexico, who has recently returned from an investigation of the Mexican situation at the border, and Senator Hitchcock, ranking Democratic member of the committee, were appointed on the sub-committee by Senator Lodge.

Dr. Grayson said tonight there was nothing in the present condition of the President likely to make is impossible for him to receive the Senators, but that the hour when the Senators might see the President would naturally depend on his condition. According to one report he saw no reason why the committee could not call tomorrow.

Senator Hitchcock said tonight that he had no doubt that the President would see Fall and himself. "But I do not think it will be as early as tomorrow," he went on. "I think he will see us within two or three days."

The action of the committee was taken by Senate leaders, aside from its bearing on the Mexican situation, as bringing to a focus an effort which has been under way at the Capitol to ascertain whether the President is able to perform the functions of his office. Many Republicans, as well as a few Democratic Senators, have been insisting for some time that the President was not fit to discharge his duties and that Congress ought to be informed as to the situation.

The Democratic Senators, Hitchcock, Swanson, Shields, Pittman, and Williams, who voted against having the sub-committee confer with the President, were actuated by the feeling that the committee was unnecessarily putting the President to the task of taking up the Mexican crisis when there was no real occasion to impose it upon him, at least until the reply to the last note to Mexico is received.

The Republican members, Lodge, Borah, Fall, New, Johnson, and Moses, maintained that the Mexican situation had become so serious that the President must be consulted. If a war juncture is at hand and the Senate felt it to be its duty to pass the resolution offered by Senator Fall, calling for a severance of diplomatic relations with Mexico, or, at least approve the State Department policy, they argued, the President's attitude ought to be ascertained first.

That there is a strong tendency to adopt the Fall resolution in the Senate was asserted by Republican leaders. Action upon it by the committee was deferred, it was said, only through a desire to learn how far President Wilson wished Congress to go at this time.

Not until the sub-committee confers with the President, or, failing that, some definite word comes from Mr. Wilson indicating his attitude on Mexico will the resolution be pressed.

The committee's decision concerning the conference with the President was reached after it had heard Ambassador Fletcher and Secretary Lansing in secret session. Mr. Fletcher was before the committee two hours in the morning and Mr. Lansing appeared in the afternoon, remaining with the committee an hour and a half. Both officials laid intimate facts before the committee bearing upon the crisis.

Lansing Advises Waiting.

Secretary Lansing is understood to have approved that part of Senator Fall's resolution indorsing the action of the State Department's handling of the Mexican situation since the capture and detention of Jenkins, but he urged that that portion of the resolution, counseling a withdrawal of recognition of Carranza as President of Mexico and a severance of diplomatic relations with the Mexican Government be abandoned, for the present.

Mr. Lansing argued that it would be inadvisable for the Senate to urge intervention while the State Department negotiations with Mexico were pending.

In reply to questions of Republican members, Secretary Lansing said that he had not conferred with President Wilson as to any of the recent phases of affairs with Mexico. He stated that as far as he knew, no State Department official had talked about Mexico with the President since his return from his Western trip.

Two Cabinet officers, the committee was told, had seen the President within the last week or so, Attorney General Palmer and Secretary Baker, but the committee's informant did not know whether the Mexican situation was taken up with him.

Secretary Lansing turned over considerable data to Senator Fall for the use of the sub-committee that went to the border. Among these papers, it is said, were pamphlets and other documentary evidence as to Mexican efforts to spread revolutionary propaganda in this country. Mr. Lansing has assigned a department agent to aid the Senate investigators at the border.

Ambassador Fletcher, who is now attached to the State Department, it further developed, had been in close touch with members of the Foreign Relations Committee in the last few weeks.

Mr. Fletcher gave what was regarded as important testimony regarding the manner in which Mexican officials at Puebla coerced the peons from Jenkins's ranch to testify against him.

Peons Terrorized by Shootings.

A member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said that, according to Mr. Fletcher, the State Department had information to this effect:

That a group of peons, understood to have been ten in number, were brought in from the Jenkins ranch and placed under arrest by the authorities at Puebla; that these peons were told by the Mexican authorities that it was known that Jenkins had been at the ranch on a certain day in company with several bandits; that all the peons denied that any of them had seen Jenkins on the ranch with bandits; that the Mexican authorities again insisted that Jenkins had been there with the bandits and that the peons again denied that Jenkins had been at the ranch with the bandits as alleged; that, thereupon, one of the peons was taken out by an officer, and the firing of a shot was immediately heard; that the Mexican authorities after the firing of this shot, insisted that Jenkins had been at the ranch, and that the remaining nine peons again made their denial; that, thereupon, another peon was taken out by an officer, and another shot was fired; and after the peons had again failed to charge their denial a third peon was taken out, with the same play. The remaining seven peons were told by the authorities that it was known that Jenkins had been on the ranch, as alleged, with bandits, and that it would be well for the peons to "tell the truth." It was not until then that the remaining peons were coerced into testifying against Jenkins.

One point emphasized in the committee's session was that the Jenkins incident has been regarded by the State Department as the culminating act in a series of offenses against Americans in Mexico running back for years.

Secretary Lansing, in his talk with the committee, expressed the view that the situation was "extremely acute." He is quoted as having said that the reason the Administration was not more severe previously in its handling of the Mexican situation was the outbreak of the European war and the prospect that the United States might be drawn into it. With the European situation straightened, the Secretary is understood to have said, it was thought wise to let the Mexican situation "drift."

Members of the committee commented, after the Secretary had left, upon what they said appeared to be the apathy of the Mexican people as to the likelihood of war with the United States. They appeared to feel, members said, that America would not engage in a conflict with Mexico and so were not bothering their minds over it.

Apart from hearing Secretary Lansing and Ambassador Fletcher, the committee talked over the Fall resolution for a time without coming to any conclusion. Democratic Senators counseled against haste and against any step that might embarrass the State Department.

Hitchcock's Substitute Resolution.

Senator Hitchcock offered a substitute resolution expressing approval of the attitude of the State Department, but going beyond that only so far as to assure the President of the support of Congress if he regarded it as advisable to break relations with Mexico. The resolution was as follows:

Resolved by the Senate of the United States (the House of Representatives concurring), That the action taken by the Department of State in reference to the pending controversy between this Government and the Government of Mexico should be approved, and further, that the President of the United States be, and he is hereby, assured of support, if in his judgment it becomes desirable to sever all diplomatic relations existing now between this Government and the Government of Carranza.

Republican members objected to the resolution, but no vote was taken upon it, the committee, in the meantime, having reached its decision to call Secretary Lansing, so as to ascertain the situation from him.

Although Senator Hitchcock opposed having the sub-committee confer with the President, he would accept the appointment, he explained tonight, since it was the wish of the majority of the committee.

In the Senate, early in the day, Senator King, Democrat, of Utah, offered a resolution to provide for reaching some conclusion as to the claims of American citizens for injury to American life and property in Mexico. Under the resolution a joint high commission would be appointed to fix damages, but if Mexico failed to appoint a commission of its own the American commission would proceed in the work, the United States to use armed force, if necessary, to compel reparation.

The resolution was referred to the Foreign Relations Committee.

Members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee expressed the opinion tonight that no action on the Mexican situation would be initiated in the House. Representative Rogers of Massachusetts, acting Chairman of the committee, said that, in his opinion, the House would support any action taken by the Senate.

"I see no reason why the House should do anything now," he said. "The Senate has investigated the Mexican problem, and is in possession of the facts. I believe that the sentiment in the House thoroughly approves what is now being done by Secretary Lansing."

Lansing Explains New Policy.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Secretary Lansing was drawn into a detailed discussion of the whole general subject of relations with Mexico before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today and told the inside story of the American Government's attitude during recent years.

The great obstacle to a break with Mexico before the United States entered the European war, Mr. Lansing is understood to have said, was the fact that such a break might have had consequences which would have destroyed the President's hope of avoiding entanglement in the conflict overseas. Fear of that result, he was quoted as saying, was based on the large number of European interests in Mexico and the suspected sympathy between Carranza and the German Government.

With the declaration of war with Germany, it was said the situation became even more embarrassing because it was a part of Germany's war game to stir up trouble for the United States on this continent.

Mr. Lansing was said to have added that in these premises the Administration felt it should go a long way in conserving its resources for the struggle with its European enemy.

After peace negotiations had been concluded, however, it was pointed out, a note was sent to Carranza declaring pointedly that unless more regard were given American rights there would be a radical change in the course of the United States Government.

This step, Mr. Lansing is said to have declared, was decided on with great deliberation and constituted a definite policy [illegible] ation. The Secretary is understood to have added that in the circumstances he saw no real urgency for demanding the President's attention to the Jenkins' case, since in dealing with it the Department only had been pursuing the course Mr. Wilson had endorsed.

In questioning the advisability of the action suggested in the Fall resolution, Mr. Lansing was quoted as saying that the Jenkins correspondence seemed about to bring a real test whether Carranza meant to heed the warning given some months ago, and that it might be wiser to let this question be answered before breaking off relations. Such a break, he is said also to have suggested, might not only endanger the effort to obtain Jenkins's release, but also place other American lives and interests in jeopardy by the withdrawal of diplomatic representatives.

In addition, doubt was said to have been raised as to what practical advantage might be gained by such a withdrawal.

SAY MEXICO MAY ASK FOR INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Private advices from Mexico City today said the Carranza Government's reply to the last American note in the Jenkins case was in course of preparation and suggested that possibly the Mexican Government would propose a commission of inquiry under one of the sections of what is known as the old treaty of Guadalupe.

A dispatch received by the State Department stated that Excelsior, a Mexico City journal, regretted that Jenkins's treatment and the correspondence between the Mexican Foreign Office and the State Department are to be submitted to Congress, fearing "bad results from the psychology of numbers caused by jingoism, pride from victory in war, and the imperialistic tendencies of a young, successful nation, besides strenuous party politics." The submission of the case to Congress, this journal declares, "may indicate weakness of the Administration." This paper asserted that "intervention by arms is unnecessary, as a rupture of relations or a blockade would be sufficient to cause serious harm."

Jesus Urueta, in El Universal, made this statement:

"The American press has been warning Mexico of an impending danger Mexico refuses to hear. The two Governments have been unable to understand each other, one accusing the other of duplicity. What the United States considers as friendly acts and assistance, such as punitive expeditions, Mexico considers as grievances. Let the two peoples frankly discuss the question without diplomatic hindrances. The Jenkins case, unimportant in itself, but added to previous incidents, is like a drop of water in a full glass. America entered the war in behalf of weak nations. Let her not now become the aggressor in an unjust action against Mexico which rejects a liberty enforced by American arms."

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 3.—Luis Cabrera, Secretary of the Treasury, speaking to reporters today, said he believed it would be unwise to attempt to settle difficulties between Mexico and the United States through a joint international commission. He remarked that the present situation is a diplomatic matter which must be settled in that way, and intimated that a one-man commission appointed by each country might be beneficial.

Señor Cabrera declared he was personally unacquainted with the nature of Mexico's reply to the last American note, but took occasion to criticise several American newspapers, saying: "In this Jenkins affair Jenkins is the least factor. It is really a press scandal originated for the pretext of increasing difficulties pending between the two countries.

BIG ADVERTISING IN 1920.

Delegates Predict Even Larger Output Than This Year.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Dec. 4.—Advertising men representing 220 of the largest firms in this country said at the annual meeting of the Association of National Advertisers, today, that preparations are under way to spend more money in advertising in 1920 than was spent in 1919, which has been a banner year. Increased buying rather than decreased production, it was said, was responsible for the delay in filling orders. Even with this condition, the members said they would continue their advertising to maintain their prestige and to keep their firms' names household words throughout the country.

The value of motion-picture advertising was discussed. Tin Thrift, of the American Multigraph Sales Company, said advertisers had found motion pictures an uncertain medium. The other speakers included J. J. J. Buzzell of the Hyatt Roller Bearing Company, who spoke on direct mail advertising; George S. Fowler of the Colgate Company; Gilbert H. Montague, an attorney of New York, and Arthur S. Allen, sales manager for the Philip Ruxton Company of New York.

WEST WANTS EAST TO CONSERVE COAL

MAY MEAN DRASTIC ORDER

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Government agencies were at work today on further plans for the conservation and distribution of coal in anticipation of a long fight with the striking coal miners. There are to be additional cuts in train service, some of which will be felt in the East, and it is entirely possible that a drastic federal order will be promulgated shortly regulating the use of fuel in connection with advertising display lighting and other uses not considered essential.

Complaints have been received by Government officials from cities in the Middle West and West that New York City, Philadelphia, and other large centres of population in the East are not "playing the game" and are continuing in normal conditions, with streets aflare with advertising display signs and little or no attention being given to conservation.

The most persistent of these complaints have been from regions in the Middle West and Northwest, where coal stocks are very low and where, in some instances, schools, stores, and industries have been forced to shut down.

The Railroad Administration is being deluged with requests that shipments of coal from the East be increased in order to prevent suffering in the Western section.

In the meantime the Railroad Administration is exerting every effort to increase the shipments of coal from the Eastern mines to the territory in the West where famine conditions are most acute. It was announced today at the Railroad Administration that an average of 500 carloads of coal a day was now being shipped from mines in West Virginia and other points in the East to the Central Western regions and that this would be increased as rapidly as transportation facilities permitted.

It is estimated that the daily shipments to the Central West, and most of this coal has been carried nearly 2,000 miles, represent from 35,000 to 40,000 tons. The total amount shipped into the Central Western territory since the strike began is 7,654 carloads or more than 370,000 tons. The Southwestern district has received 8,194 carloads since the strike began, the Northwestern district 3,881 carloads, and about 940 carloads of coal are being shipped daily into the Northwestern district.

Production Now 14,000 Cars Daily.

Total production for the nation, according to an estimate made today, is at the rate of 14,090 carloads a day, or about 43 per cent. of normal. At present the three Western sections are getting from 2,200 to 2,500 carloads of this total daily, and if suffering on a broad scale is to be prevented must receive considerably more.

Another complaint which has come from Western districts is that fuel oil shipments are being permitted to go from West to East despite the severity of the coal shortage in the West. In this connection it is probable that an embargo on such shipments will be put into effect by the Railroad Administration within a few days. Fuel oil is said to be selling at as high as $4 a barrel in some sections of the West.

In a general way the effort will be to cut down on the fast passenger service and use heavier trains which will provide adequate service, without any of the luxurious features now in vogue. In this way it is hoped also to solve the problem of leaving more traffic routes open for coal trains to the West.

Operators Decide on Wage Rise.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (Associated Press).—Senator Cummins, Republican of Iowa, announced today after consulting the Fuel Administration, that he had obtained an increase of 50 per cent. in the allotment of coal to Mississippi Valley States. Louis W. Hill, Chairman of the Board of the Great Northern Railroad, representing Northwestern consumers, made a plea for better distribution of coal resources at the head of the Great Lakes, visiting both the Railroad and Fuel Administrations.

WESTERN TRAIN SERVICE IS REDUCED ONE-THIRD

Drastic Curtailment to Conserve Coal Will Be Enforced on Lines from Chicago West.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—All railroad passenger service on North, West, and Northwest lines running out of Chicago will be cut one-third beginning Monday, under an order issued today by T. S. Eustis, Chairman of passenger systems on these roads. A similar order will be issued in a few days applying to Eastern and Southern roads, which probably will be effective next Tuesday.

The order directed that the saving be made in "train miles." All parlor, club, lounge, and observation sleeping car services were ordered discontinued, and no special trains are to be run for either business or pleasure interests.

Villa Not a Prisoner.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Dec. 4.—Francisco Villa, the Chihuahua rebel leader, who was reported yesterday as being a prisoner of his own men, who, the report said, were negotiating for his surrender to the Carranzista garrison at Parral, is still at large, and there is no reason to believe that he is in any present danger of falling into the hands of the Carranza Government.

MINE OWNERS FACE CHARGE OF PLOT

violation of the Lever act, in that it was an arrangement and conspiracy to restrict the supply of coal and prevent, limit, and lessen its production.

"It must be clearly understood that the Government intends to ask of this Grand Jury indictments for such violations of the law as may be developed before it, and that this is not for the purpose only of bringing relief from the present intolerable situation, but the Government expects to prosecute all violators of the law to the end, and expects to insist that such violators shall suffer the penalty provided by law.

"We shall not only insist that the coal operators are in league with the miners to violate the Lever act, but we shall further insist that the coal operators themselves have combined to violate the criminal provisions of the anti-trust acts passed by Congress, and that they have violated such provisions.

To Press Suits Against Union Chiefs.

Dan W. Simms, special United States District Attorney in charge of the injunction proceedings in Indiana, declared yesterday that the prosecutions against the miners officials will be pushed with all the force at the hands of the Government and that the action will be carried to every officer of every local participating in the strike.

An important charge and one on which the Government is relying to prove its case, is that the officials, when issuing their notice that the strike order had been rescinded, mimeographed the notice on blank paper and omitted from the copies an imprint of the official seal of the union. It is added that upon receipt of the notice the unions throughout the country took the position, and "so stated in the daily press and by word of mouth that the withdrawal and cancellation notice was defective, invalid and without authority," because it did not bear this seal and because the signatures of officials were printed and not signed by hand.

OPERATORS WELCOME INQUIRY

Want Law Invoked to Limit if Any Member Is Found Guilty.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The coal operators' representatives here issued the following statement tonight on the summoning of a Grand Jury in Indianapolis to investigate charges of conspiracy to restrict production:

"When the Operators' Executive Committee was advised of the action taken by Judge Anderson's court at Indianapolis in appointing a Grand Jury to investigate charges of collusion between operators and miners to restrict production of coal, the operators said most emphatically that they welcomed such an investigation, and if it should be developed that any individual operators have been guilty of such practices they hoped the Judge would invoke the law to the limit, as such operators were not entitled to any support or sympathy from their associates in the coal industry."

WEST VIRGINIA MINE OUTPUT IS GROWING

NORMAL PRODUCTION SOON

Special to the New York Times.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 4.—Eighty per cent of the coal mines in the Fairmont district were operating full force today, following action last night of the 225 local unions in the district to return to work pending adjustment of their wage dispute.

This information was received at the office of Governor John J. Cornwell and also by the Kanawha County Coal Association. Both union officials and operators predict that the mines in the district will be operating at normal capacity on Saturday. There are about 13,000 miners in the district and the average daily production is about 55,000 tons.

The coal loadings for the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad yesterday were 1,829 cars, or about 91,450 tons, about two-thirds of a normal day's shipments.

Coal shipments on the Chesapeake & Ohio in the New River field yesterday totaled 15,600 tons, as against 13,940 for the day before.

"There were 86 of the 115 mines of the New River district in operation today," Secretary T. L. Lewis of the operators' association said. "We have definite information that the number of mines working will increase to 90 this morning."

PATRIOTISM AS COAL PLEA.

Chief Urges Manufacturers to Stand By Government.

An appeal to members of the National Association of Manufacturers to economize on fuel as a patriotic act was made in an open letter sent to them last night by Stephen C. Mason, President of the organization.

"The coal strike is now purely an issue between the Government and the miners' union as to which is supreme," the letter states, and manufacturers are urged to accept any financial loss as an act of loyalty to the Government."

Fined $250 on Income Tax Charge.

Seymour L. Rau, an insurance broker, pleaded guilty yesterday to failing to make a proper return of his income for 1917, and was fined $250 by Federal Judge Mack. Rau was convicted of the charge in February. He appealed and gained a new trial. The fine was paid

Kansas Volunteers Work in Rain.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Dec. 4.—The Kansas railroads notified Governor Allen today that all the coal mined by his volunteers in the coal fields would be moved promptly and expeditiously to destination. The railroads announced that they had made satisfactory arrangements for taking care of the switching of the coal out of the mine tracks to the main lines and that there would be no delays in handling the coal on the main lines.

The railroads this morning moved the troops and workers' trains which were held up yesterday. The railroads also reported for shipment five cars of coal which the volunteer workers here mined and the coal is on its way to help relieve the coal situation. The Santa Fé switchmen who struck yesterday have been transferred to other yards and new crews here have been provided for handlingthe volunteer workmen's trains. For the present at least the danger of a railroad strike has been averted, it is believed.

A rain which froze as it fell, forming a thick coat of ice over everything out of doors, greeted the volunteers in the strip mines today. In spite of the weather three mines were working at Acme, which turned out its first car yesterday

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 4.—Nebraskans willing to mine coal in nearby States to increase production, in response to the appeal of Governor Samuel R. McKelvie for volunteer miners, today began sending their names to State headquarters established for enrollment of men for this work, and lists of large numbers of men are expected by tomorrow from County Clerks, who were asked to assist in recruiting volunteers.

HEATLESS CARS SIX HOURS DAILY

have the effect of impressing upon the public the need of saving coal. For this reason it might be wise to shut some of them off."

Mr. Lieb said that the necessities of today were small, but that within a few days the lack of coal might assume vast proportions. He stated that four thousand tons of coal which arrived here for his company several days ago was held up by an embargo and was not released until yesterday. Street lighting, he thought should not be curtailed except though dire need and then only after mature consideration. Every other light might be cut out, he thought, without seriously interfering with the public.

The announcement that lighted signs in all of the theatres and moving picture houses would blaze for only one hour each night came after a meeting called by Marcus Loew, representing the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry. Then came announcements from all of the Shubert houses to the same effect. All other amusement houses, it was said, would issue similar orders.

A. T. Hardin, Regional Director of Railroads, said that no trains would be taken off unless it became absolutely necessary, and that the public would receive timely notice of any plan of cutting down the service.

The Merchants' Association sent letters yesterday to Dr. Harry A. Garfield, the Federal Fuel Administrator and to Governor Smith asking for information that might be used in steps taken to meet any coal shortage. The letters were similar. The one to Dr. Garfield said that there did not appear to be any shortage of bituminous coal in this district, but that if the strike of the coal miners continued very long "we will face the same situation as exists in other parts of the country and will have to inaugurate effective means for coal conservation."

Mr. Garfield was asked for the name of the official who would have charge of coal conservation and priority distribution in this district in case the situation becomes acute, to the end that measures might be taken to co-operate with him.

Stephen C. Mason, President of the National Association of Manufacturers, sent letters yesterday to the several thousand members of the association, advising them to shut down their plants rather than aid or abet "the policy of savage coercion which the miners' union leaders have deliberately adopted" and to avoid embarrassing the Government by making requests for liberal rations of coal.

in Puebla from the town of Santa Marta, near Atlixco, where it was claimed that Jenkins was seen in company with the rebels.

Several young men arrested in Puebla by the military police charged with being implicated in the kidnapping confronted Jenkins this morning. Both Jenkins and the prisoners denied having ever seen each other.

Luis Cabrera, Secretary of Hacienda, stated to the press this afternoon that he considered the majority of the press in the United States guilty of forcing difficulties with Mexico. He had been accused by the press, he said, of being anti-American, and he was tired of trying to deny it, but, as the press had insisted, he supposed that he must be considered anti-American.

He added that a commission formed by the local press to prevent a conflict was worse than useless, as it was liable to provoke instead of prevent the only solution. The heads of the foreign departments of both countries, with the Presidents, were the last resort. The denied having mixed in any fashion in the Jenkins affair. The only thing he was guilty of was being the brother of the Governor of Puebla, and that could not be changed.

BONILLAS ANSWERS FALL.

Says Mexicans Have Never Aided Disturbing Elements Here.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—General denial of charges by Senator Fall that he had attempted to spread Bolshevist propaganda in this country was made tonight by Mexican Ambassador Bonillas, who declared that he had not at any time "done anything to foster, encourage, or aid, actively or passively, directly or indirectly, any of the disturbing elements referred to either in the United States or in Mexico."

The Ambassador's statement follows:

"I have been informed, through the press, of the accusation made by Senator Fall before the United States Senate, to the effect that this Embassy and some consulates, with the knowledge and approval of the President of Mexico, have endeavored to stir seditious acts in this country and have been engaged in anarchistic or Bolshevist or I. W. W. propaganda.

"Senator Fall's charges greatly surprise me, for the hurtfulness of them must be obvious to all. Fortunately, I have great reliance in the sound judgment and high sense of honor of the American Senate and of the American people, and therefore I cannot believe that these false and injurious accusations will be seriously considered for one moment.

"I have been he Ambassador of Mexico and residing in Washington as such for two years and eight months, and I have not during that time or at any other time done anything to foster, encourage or aid, actively or passively, directly or indirectly any of the disturbing elements referred to either in the United States or in Mexico. By disturbing elements, I refer to the Bolsheviki, anarchists, and the I. W. W., and I have no knowledge of this being done by any of our consular or other agents of the Mexican Government.

"The Mexican Government not only does not wish to foment disorders in the United States, nor to spread anarchistic doctrines here, but on the contrary, as the American press has stated on different occasions, the Government has [illegible] prevent the [illegible] such doctrines and any other like doctrines that might weaken social institutions.

"This Embassy under my directions has made every possible effort to the end that a better understanding may be established between the peoples of Mexico and the United States, in spite of the bitter campaign which has been carried on against this policy by powerful elements in this country."

The difficulties between Mexico and the United States caused by the Jenkins case have aroused no feeling here. Prominent bankers said this morning that bank deposits were increasing and rumors apparently were having no effect. The banks have not noticed an abnormal demand for drafts such as took place in the crisis of 1914.

General Gonzales is in Puebla, where he is reorganizing the troops for a campaign against rebels in the States of Puebla and Vera Cruz.

Four young men arrested in Puebla on suspicion of being implicated in the Jenkins case were released on bail this afternoon.

FLEET READY, SAYS DANIELS.

Personnel Is Nearly Double That of the Pre-War Period.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Despite the rapid demobilization of personnel since the armistice, the navy is ready to meet any emergency, Secretary Daniels declared today in discussing published reports that the navy would be found unprepared if called upon for active service at this time.

Announcing that the eight dreadnoughts of the Atlantic fleet and about 100 destroyers would leave Guantanamo, Cuba, on Jan. 8, for Winter manoeuvres, Mr. Daniels said these ships would be "adequately" manned, although their crews would not constitute a war complement. Other battleships of the Atlantic fleet will join the fleet as soon as it is possible to man them, he added.

PREDICTS RETURN OF OLD ALLIANCES

Paris Paper Says Britain Will Make Defense Agreement Independent of America.

WOULD CONTROL EUROPE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—The trend of European diplomatic thought on America as a factor in international politics is indicated by two important articles in two important French newspapers tonight. Both articles may be accepted as of a semi-official nature.

The Intransigeant, in a prominent front-page display article, says England will probably separate her alliance with France from dependence upon American agreement to a similar alliance between the United States and France, and that out of this decision will come an Anglo-French alliance that will control Europe. This articles says:

"Very important news is in the air. It is possible that very soon it will become a reality—England will no longer tie her guarantee to that of the United States.

"In other words, the pact signed at Versailles between France and Great Britain engaged the latter to come to our aid in case of attack by Germany, but made the reserve that the English obligation existed only after the ratification at Washington of the American obligation. This ratification being delayed, England is going without doubt to increase the value of her signature by making it dependent on no other signature.

"This will be the consecration of a new policy born of American hesitation. This policy will be European. It will give to the France-English Alliance, strengthened by our other alliances and friendships, the direction of the policies of our Europe."

In other words, as a prominent Frenchman said the other day: "The Senate is in favor of America's not meddling in European affairs. Well, so are we. That man's sentiments are not the sentiments of all European diplomats, but more and more his sentiments are coming to be those of Europeans generally.

The Journal des Debats makes a strong plea tonight for an old-fashioned alliance, and in making it launches into a savage attack on President Wilson, which, while containing inaccuracies, derives importance because of the dignified position held by this journal.

"Let the Allies get together in a firm alliance, and some time or other a League of Nations can grow out of this, is the general idea expressed by the Journal des Débats. The paper says:

"The news from Washington is less and less reassuring. It is certain that the Senate will not ratify the treaty of Versailles purely and simply. It is most likely it will maintain most of the numerous and important reserves which it has already voted. One is then entitled to speak to some extent of the failure of the Wilsonian policies. If President Wilson finds himself now up against an insurmountable resistance in the United States it is because he himself violated with an obstinacy difficult to explain his own principles.

"In all his messages and declarations he had affirmed in categorical terms the necessity of a policy, frank and open, giving mutual guarantees to little and great States. He had planned in a manner most solemn a constitution of general association of nations which was to make all future war impossible. During all of the Peace Conference he manoeuvred in impenetrable darkness at his pleasure, and he fought all proposals to give to the League of Nations efficacious ways and means.

Incarnation of the doctrine of liberty, he acted as a dictator. He took it into his head to consider as nonexistant the Republican Party. He surrounded himself exclusively with Democratic advisers, and he sought to make a party victory out of the victory over Germany. He wished to have all peace all to himself which should serve as a springboard for personal glory and for the Democratic Party. Why should it be surprising that now the Republican Party seeks to defend itself and force Wilson to give in?

"There exists in the personality of Mr. Wilson a fundamental contradiction. Mr. Wilson dreamed of rebuilding upon new foundations a world overturned by five years of war, and instead of concentrating all the strength of his country to aid in a work so heavy he tied this mondial enterprise to the Democratic Party, which put him in power. He disdained and rejected the good offices of the opposing party when they were offered to him. He would not admit a single Republican in the American peace delegation. In all his selections, military as well as political, he consistently put party advantage to the front.

"He coddled the ambition of being sort of a world arbitrator and in his own country he wished to be more than a party chief. He showed himself more autocratic than the Czar of Russia ever did. Naturally the opposing party revolted. In anger against Mr. Wilson the Republicans attacked his world work. To defeat him they did not hesitate before the destruction of the charter of June 28, 1919. And so one time more the world suffers from miserable quarrels of men.

"When Mr. Wilson arrived at Paris wearing a resplendent halo, his admirers expected to see him present to the conference a series of projects founded upon the new gospel he had preached for two years. One expected to receive from him in the full light of day the new tables of the law. To the general astonishment one saw him mute and concealed. He pronounced, it is true, several discourses. But this was only noise. These harangues contained no decisions. The first of the famous fourteen points began thus—'open covenants of peace openly arrived at.' But there was only dark night.

"In spite of the arguments of publicists desirous of seeing Mr. Wilson realize his program, the President of the United States enveloped himself in impenetrable clouds. The defender of the rights of peoples to determine their own fate was swept from the throne where was seated the principal powers and all the little powers who possessed by his principles equal rights of discussion. It was no longer a question of principle. One returned to methods of expediency.

"All the solutions incorporated in the treaty of June 28, comprising the statute of the League of Nations are simple expedients. It is not Mr. Lodge, it is Mr. Wilson himself who ruined Wilson's system. How then can Mr. Wilson overcome the objections of the Senate? He has lost his best means of action—public opinion. In the United States now no one knows any more, outside of the questions of party, what is the policy of the President.

"However, the citizens of the United States, who have consented to such heavy sacrifices to fight in Europe the effort of a monstrous hegemony, should not be willing to lose in one step, through animosity against one of their citizens, the fruits of their noble effort. Their conscience forbids them to throw the world again into chaos. If they feel an invincible repugnance toward certain clauses which they believe endanger the Monroe Doctrine, and also with relation to other clauses, let them adopt interpretations, and if necessary resort to the Supreme Court. But let them leave intact the essentials of the treaty, which, imperfect as it is, gives the victory to the right.

"Finally the other signatory powers will consort to fill up the gaps created in the work of June 28. Taking note of the impossibility for a multitude of powers to adopt in 1919 a system assuring the peace of the world, we maintain that the powers most directly interested can find the guarantees they need in one of several unions. It is in this path that we ought to go. Later, when time will have healed hatreds, this union can be enlarged. One will reach the final aim only by steps."

THREATEN ARMY ADVANCE

Senate toward the treaty to better Germany's position.

Polk to Stay Until Next Week.

It is for Washington to say whether or not the American delegation withdraws from the Peace Conference next week. Frank L. Polk, head of the American delegation, who announced yesterday the delay of the departure of the Americans, set for Friday night, said today that he would leave Paris early next week unless Washington ordered him to stay. Whether anyone remains behind to represent the United States on the Supreme Council, he said, was entirely for Washington to decide.

The French, aided by the British and Italians, are bringing every sort of pressure to bear to retain the American delegation here. Both the French and British Ambassadors at Washington have been instructed to request the American Government not to withdraw from the Peace Conference. Mr. Polk takes the stand that Washington must keep the delegation here, otherwise it will leave probably on Tuesday of next week.

Le Matin today says that Polk sent for von Lersner and said to him:

"Of all the errors that Germany has made there is none greater or sadder for her than that of interpreting in her favor the delay at Washington in the ratification of the Treaty of Versailles. There may be in America different understandings about the treaty of peace, but there are no two understandings about the obligations which devolve upon Germany and the affection which holds us to our allies, especially to France.

"You must not forget that there still exists in the United States a very strong feeling against Germany. Anything you may be able to do by shuffling the cards and evading your obligations to France and to the Allies will only increase that feeling. I do not know what the American Senate will finally decide, but I can promise you one thing, and that is that it will never decide that you do not have to keep your engagements."

Le Matin was inexact when it said that Mr. Polk sent for von Larsner. He sent an emissary to the German diplomat with this message.

Further light is thrown upon the action of the Allies with regard to Scapa Flow by the fact that the evidence published in London yesterday showing that the German Admiralty backed the German Admiral in sinking of the Scapa Flow fleet was before the Supreme Council when it demanded that Germany make restitution. I am authorized to say that this document was one of a number proving beyond doubt that Berlin was responsible for the sinking of the surrendered ships.

As for von Lersner's public statement that America is not backing the demand for payment for these ships, the reply is that the American delegation join in the demand and stands firmly in its position. That the payment was not suggested by the Americans does not affect their adherence to the motion adopted by the Supreme Council.

There is interesting light on the present tangle in the statement by von Lersner last night that the Berlin Government had given him full power to sign the protocol if the Allies withdrew the clause giving them the right to use military measures in case Germany did not live up to her engagements. In view of the attitude of Germany and her maintenance of a big army this is considered the right of the Allies, and especially France will not give it up.

This statement by von Lersner is held to uncover the German game to a great extent. It is not payment for the Scapa Flow, it is not the repatriation of prisoners which she will get when the treaty goes into effect that is believed to be back of her play. What she is seeking is to get from under the thumb of Foch and thus be in a better position to forego her treaty promises.

The French point out that now that America has weakened the League of Nations project, it is fear of the French Army which must make Germany reduce her military forces and pay her war bills. Therefore they maintain that the French Army must be able to act in the name of the Allies when there is need. America and Britain have only a handful of soldiers on the Rhine.

What may be in the note to be sent tomorrow may be forecast from the fact that after the Supreme Council meeting today the five chiefs went into executive session with Marshal Foch. The Marshal has complete figures on Germany's military strength and he knows just how many men it would take to perform any task which may be placed upon him.

If Mr. Polk goes, General Bliss will be left to represent America on the Supreme Council, but on that point again word is awaited from Washington.

The whole situation may be summed up by saying that Germany apparently has a new infusion of Prussianism, and is openly defying the Allies; that the Allies have tried all diplomatic measures, they have tried economic pressure; there remains only the threat of military action and that threat once made must be lived up to if Germany continues her present game.

Instead of receiving a reply to its ultimatum to Rumania calling on her to get her troops out of Hungary, the Supreme Council received news that the Bucharest Government had resigned and that no reply would be forthcoming in the immediate future. From a well-informed source I learn that the Rumanians are waiting to see what the American Senate does with the treaty. If America stays out of participation in European affairs, Rumania believes she can keep the great Hungarian territory east of the Theiss River which she now holds. The Supreme Council appears to be checkmated by Bucharest.

I have obtained from the highest diplomatic sources confirmation of the statements made several days ago in these dispatches that the big object of the German movement is to save the military officers accused of war crimes. The Scapa Flow dispute and the war prisoner agitation are a screen behind which the wires are being pulled.

Announce Text of Army Protest.

BERLIN, Dec. 3.—The Government today gave out the text of the Entente note of Dec. 1, protesting against the development of Germany's military forces.

The note refers to the formation of bodies outside the actual army, such as the Public Security Police, the Volunteer Guard, and the Citizens' Guard, in contravention, it is declared, of the Peace Treaty. It says that the organizing of these bodies "may be interpreted as an intention on the part of Germany not to fulfil the terms of the treaty," and it requests the German Government to abolish these forces or to reduce them in accordance with the provisions of the treaty.

According to a semi-official explanation issued here, the Government denies any intention of increasing the army. It declares that the reduction of the army to the stipulated limit of 200,000 is in full swing, and it expresses regret that there has ever been a beginning of the mutual discussion with the Entente on the subject of the strength of the policing forces which Germany finds it necessary to maintain in the interest of public security, although Germany several months ago suggested such a discussion.

FEAR OF ALLIES LESSENED.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—It is believed here that three factors have emboldened the Germans in their present attitude toward the Allies—the action of the American Senate over the Peace Treaty, the weak tolerance shown by the German Government toward militarist demonstrations and the continued economic and industrial disorder, whose persistence under the present régime weakens the reluctance of ordinary citizens to go back to the old system.

Germany has not, so far, made a success of democracy, and, while that is in no way surprising, having regard to the need to educate any large political class, it may create a psychological mood in

NO AGREEMENT YET REACHED WITH ITALY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Denial was made in an authoritative quarter today of the report that Frank L. Polk, Under Secretary of State, head of the peace delegation at Paris, had reached an agreement with the Italian delegates at the Peace Conference for settlement of the Adriatic question.

The Italian Government has made no new proposal since the death of the late Ambassador, Count Macchi di Cellere who a few days before his death presented the State Department an offer of compromise, drawn up by the former Foreign Minister, Signor Tittoni, and a communication from Premier Nitti declaring that the proposal then submitted marked the utmost limits to which Italy could go in an effort to meet the wishes of President Wilson.

MOVES TO DECLARE THE WAR AT AN END

Bay State Congressman Offers Resolution, but Has Little Support in the House.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Representative Tinkham of Massachusetts in the House today offered a joint resolution for declaring the war at an end. His resolution read:

JOINT RESOLUTION.

Whereas, by resolution of Congress adopted April 6, 1917, by reason of acts committed by the then German Government, a state of war was declared to exist between that Government and the United States; and,

Whereas, the said acts of war of the German Government have long since ceased; and,

Whereas, hostilities between Germany and the allied associated powers have terminated; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate and the House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled, that the said war between Germany and the United States is hereby declared to be at an end.

Representative Tinkham said that he had conferred with several Republican Senators, and that the resolution had their approval.

Most members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee are opposed to the resolution and it is not believed that it will be reported out. They hold, as do a majority of the House, that the Senate should deal with the peace situation, and that the House should not act on such a resolution until the Senate had exhausted every means to have the treaty ratified.

REPORT LUDENDORFF PLOT IN SILESIA

Germans Are Said to Intend to Seize Power Before the Allied Forces Arrive.

WARSAW, Nov. 28 (Associated Press)—The Polish authorities, according to the Gazetta Porrana, have received news of a secret monarchist organization among the Pan Germans of Silesia, which is said to be headed by General Ludendorff, former German Chief Quartermaster General. The movement, it is said, aims to bring about a revolution in Silesia and seize power before the occupation of the country by Entente troops.

Leaders of the movement, it is said count upon the weakness of the Entente and the alleged hesitation of the Supreme Council, and it is asserted that feverish agitation has been observed among German officers.

GOVERNMENT DROPS CONTROL OF SUGAR

PALMER BLAMES CONGRESS

Holds Its Failure to Extend Life of Sugar Equalization Board Responsible for Situation.

Special to the New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Control of prices and the distribution of sugar will be abandoned by the Department of Justice when the Sugar Equalization Board goes out of existence on Jan. 1, Attorney General Palmer announced today. An attempt will be made, however, to prevent prices from mounting by prosecutions under the Lever act against profiteering. Mr. Palmer today authorized the following statement:

"A conference has been held between representatives of the Sugar Equalization Board and the Department of Justice in which the sugar situation was reviewed. The Department of Justice has neither the power nor the facilities with which to control the purchase or distribution of sugar. The only governmental body having this power is the Sugar Equalization Board, and its control terminates on Dec. 31. The Congress, although requested to do so, has failed to extend the life of the board. The Department of Justice will confine its efforts in the future, as it has in the past, to the enforcement of the provisions of the Lever Food Control act, as amended, by prosecuting all instances of sales of sugar for an unjust or unreasonable profit.

"The Department of Justice has never attempted to fix the price of sugar. It has accepted in the past the recommendations of the Sugar Equalization Board very largely in determining maximum fair prices. The fair margins of profit allowed are those established by the Food Administration. When such determinations were made they have been communicated to the District Attorneys, who were advised that any sales in excess of the maximum figure set should be considered unfair and unreasonable. The early termination of the board will make it impossible to set any definite price on sugar in the future or control its distribution. Every sale will be treated on its own merits, and in all cases where the District Attorney has evidence indicating an unfair profit or withholding of sugar from the normal consumption channels, or any discrimination in price to the manufacturer or to the jobber supplying the domestic consumer, he will proceed under the Lever Food Control act."

This announcement means the failure of the plan under which refiners were to agree to purchase part of the Cuban raw sugar stock of approximately 4,000,000 tons, restrict the sale of their purchases to the United States and fix a maximum wholesale price of 14 cents a pound. While it is expected that there will be more sugar in the market after Dec. 31, it is believed the price will soar, with no means at hand for the Department of Justice to check up the cost to refiners.

BOSTON, Dec. 4.—Candy makers of this city will have to shut up shop in ten days for lack of sugar unless relief is afforded them at once, the New England Manufacturing Confectioners' Association declared today in a telegram sent to all Representatives of this section in Congress. The message was one of protest over the diversion to Texas of sugar intended for this port, as a result of which the Sugar Equalization Board yesterday prohibited refiners from delivering sugar to candy and chocolate manufacturers.

CLASS TYRANNIZES CLASS, SAYS WEYLER

MADRID, Dec. 4.—Captain General Weyler, President of the Central General Staff, in a statement published by A. B. C. says:

"We live under a régime of tyranny. Employers tyrannize the workmen, and the workmen tyrannize the employers. The military tyrannize the civilians and the civilians tyrannize the military, politicians the Government and the Government public power.

"Liberty has been throttled under this régime of tyranny. A dictator from either the right or the left is the only guarantee for the restoration of liberty."

In its comment recently on the situation El Sol suggested the appointment of General Weyler or some other military man as head of the Ministry, the Cabinet under Premier Toca having resigned at that time.

Capt. Gen. Weyler, just prior to the Spanish-American war, was Governor General of Cuba, and his establishment there of reconcentrado camps and other cruelties charged to him were largely responsible for United States intervention.

JUSTICES TO AID RENTERS.

Bronx Authorities Agree to Delay Evictions Till After Holidays.

The Municipal Court Justices of the Bronx decided at a conference held yesterday afternoon to make every effort to delay all dispossess proceedings until after the Christmas holidays. Two thousand such cases are already on the calendars of the two Municipal Courts in the Bronx and it is estimated that at least 8,000 such proceedings will be instituted during the month.

Three Municipal Justices from Manhattan, Justices Samson, Friedlander, Aaron Levy, and Jacob Mark, have been assigned to aid the four Justices already in the Bronx, as it is estimated that in order to keep the calendars up to date it will be necessary to hear 600 cases a day. Justices Harry Robitzek, Michael Scanlon, William Morris, and Peter Shields are the regular Municipal Court Justices for the county.

A new bill drawn up by Justice Robitzek, which will be introduced at the coming session of the Legislature, was also brought up and approved by all the Justices. This bill will give the courts more power in dealing with cases where the landlord is beyond a doubt trying to charge exorbitant rents.

SENT MRS. WANAMAKER BOMB

Former Butler Pleads Guilty to Assault—Intended It for Maid.

Ernest Albert Gustav Kurth, who was indicted on Oct. 7 of this year on the charge of assault with intent to kill for sending a bomb to Mrs. Rodman Wanamaker, at whose home he had been employed as a butler, pleaded guilty before Judge William H. Wadhams in General Sessions yesterday to the charge of assault in the second degree and will be sentenced on Dec. 11. The maximum sentence for the crime is five years, imprisonment.

Kurth admitted sending the bomb, which was made of matches, black powder, and pepper. He said that he thought it would be opened by a maid whom he held responsible for his discharge from the employ of the Wanamakers, after it had been discovered that he was giving wine parties to his friends in the Wanamaker home, at 37 West Fifty-sixth Street.

HERE FROM IRELAND TO FIGHT SINN FEIN

SIX OF THEM CLERGYMEN

Mission Declared to be Non-Political and Non-Sectarian—Compare "Irish Republic" to Russia.

To controvert Sinn Fein propaganda in this country seven members of the Ulster Unionist Council of Ireland, six of them clergymen, arrived here yesterday on the Columbia. They are:

William Coote, M. P., South Tyrone; the Rev. Alexander Wylie Blue, of the May Street Presbyterian Church, Belfast; the Rev. William Corkey of the Townsend Presbyterian Church, Belfast, the Rev. C. Wesley Maguire, the Rev. F. E. Harte, and the Rev. Edward Hazleton, Methodists, and the Rev. Louis Crooks, Episcopalian.

"As an official delegation from the Episcopal, Methodist, and Presbyterian churches of Ireland to the United States of America," a statement given out upon landing said, "we wish first to convey the greetings of the people we represent to the people of America. We are not here on a financial campaign. We are not here on a political campaign. American politics is a matter for Americans, and British politics a matter for Britishers. We are here in the interest of law and order, of truth and honesty, of fair play and principle, to protest against the pernicious propaganda which is being spread in your country in relation to Ireland.

"Our mission is not sectarian; we raise no religious issue. Our mission is to say to America that the Sinn Fein movement in Ireland, which is spreading its propaganda in America, is not a solution of the Irish question; that it is radical and destructive in its methods; that it is conducting in Ireland a campaign of coercion, threat, and assassination, and that it is not supported or respected now by the better type of people in Ireland, whether Catholic or Protestant, who have no interested or prejudiced motive; that it was the party of rebellion during the war; that it supported and furthered the cause of the foe; that it was a traitor to the allied cause. We wish to point out to the people of America that its terms are misleading. Naturally, in America, you would favor a republican form of government. The Sinn Fein calls itself a republic. Therein lies the danger. It is a movement akin to the Bolshevist republic in Russia. Their methods are alike.

"We are here to say to America that this element is, according to their own announcement, asking the American people for several millions of dollars. It is your right to do as you please with your gifts, but we feel that you ought to know the purpose and the object for which these millions are being raised. The republic does not exist and cannot exist.

"We are here also to assert our self-respect. If what these Sinn Fein agents say concerning the British Government in relation to Ireland as to brutality, domination, and subjection is true, and if our churches are opposed to Sinn Fein—then we are partners with the Government. We resent their untruthful propaganda; we are here to help your citizens, who know the falsity of the Sinn Fein appeal, to inform the American public on the real situation. We know our mission will have a wide hearing for the report of your fair play and honor is abroad in our churches."

The visitors will soon begin a speaking tour of the country. Among those who met them at the pier were a number of American clergymen.

PREMIER PROMISES IRISH BILL SOON

Ready in the Week of Dec. 14—Masked Men Wound Seven Motorists in Ireland.

LONDON, Friday, Dec. 5.—The Government's measure dealing with the Irish problem will be ready for introduction early in the week after next, Premier Lloyd George announced in the House of Commons yesterday. The bill, he said, would be carried over into the next session by a special resolution.

Joseph Devlin, Irish Nationalist, secured the passage of a motion by the House of Commons today for a discussion of the arrest in Ireland of Father O'Donnell, an Australian Chaplain, on a charge of using traitorous language. Father O'Donnell was acquitted of the charge by a court-martial before which he was tried. Mr. Devlin's resolution declared:

"The intolerable outrage against Father O'Donnell calls for immediate reprobation by the House and the dismissal of the officials responsible."

Winston Spencer Churchill, Secretary for War, defended the Government from any motive of animosity in the affair. He admitted that there were some unfortunate circumstances, but nothing calling for an apology. Finally Mr. Devlin's motion was talked out, and no division was taken.

The Government is in difficulties over the Irish problem, according to The Daily Mail, which says:

"The Full Cabinet, it is stated, is reluctant to accept the committee's proposal for two Legislatures, with a unifying executive body, on the ground that the plan will not satisfy either Irish or American opinion. It is said that the Premier is now trying to induce his Unionist colleagues to agree to a scheme for one Irish Parliament, with a dominion status, accompanied by an option that any county may vote for the retention of the existing status under the imperial Parliament."

The British Cabinet, according to The Daily News, has decided to suspend trial by jury for crimes of violence in Ireland and to substitute trial by a commission of three judges.

All the members of a shooting party, including H. V. MacNamara and his two sons, Donough E. F. O'Brien, son and heir of Baron Inchiquin, Lady Beatrice O'Brien, a game keeper and a chauffeur, were wounded today when fired upon while traveling in motor cars in the Carron District of Ireland, according to a dispatch from Ennis, County Clare.

The party was held up by a number of armed men wearing disguises and a brisk exchange of shots ensued. Police and troops were hurried to the scene and found Mr. O'Brien and Lady O'Brien in a herdsman's cottage. Each had been wounded by several shots in the head and shoulders. They found also that the other members of the party had been injured.

It is said by members of the party that they saw two of their assailants fall to the ground during the shooting. The dispatch says it is presumed that the object of the attack was the seizure of the arms carried by the shooting party.

HOSPITAL HEAD QUITS AFTER FLAG INQUIRY

Defender of Nurse Who Is Alleged to Have Insulted America Resigns.

RUTLAND, Vt., Dec. 4.—Miss Annie A. Aitken, Superintendent of the Rutland Hospital, resigned today following an investigation begun yesterday into an alleged anti-American incident which occurred at the hospital recently.

Miss Aitken, who is a sister of Baron Beaverbrook, a Canadian, was said to have supported Miss Anna McLane, of Woodstock, N. B., a student nurse, at the institution, who, is was charged by other nurses, had made remarks derogatory to the American flag. At the first session yesterday of a hearing before an Aldermanic Investigating Committee, it was testified by Miss Josephine Niles, a nurse, that Miss McLane, when shown a picture bearing an American flag, said the picture would be a pretty one "if it were not for that dirty red, white and blue flag."

American nurses at the institution insisted at the time that Nurse McLane apologize and salute the flag. They reported the affair to Superintendent Aitken who, it was testified, instead of ordering Miss McLane to apologize, reprimanded them for going to the nurse's room. They were reprimanded, also, according to the testimony, for bringing an American flag to a table at which Miss McLane was seated.

The incident caused a disturbance in the hospital at the time, the American nurses walking out on strike overnight in an attempt to enforce an apology from Miss McLane. They returned, three of the nurses testified, with the understanding from Miss Aitken that Nurse McLane would make the requested apology.

This was not forthcoming, however, and Miss McLane left for her home in New Brunswick, the bearer of a diploma as nurse, notwithstanding, it was said, that she had failed to complete the course.

WOMAN TO BE ONE OF 'BIG 4'

Hugo Says Men Want Woman to Go to National Republican Convention.

An organization meeting of the Committee, attended by representatives of every county in the State, took place yesterday at the Hotel Astor. The meeting was not open to reporters, but it was learned that Secretary of State Women's State Republican Executive Francis Hugo said in an address that the men as well as the women favored a woman as one of the "Big Four" to the national convention. This woman, he said, should be Miss Mary Garrett Hay, and approval was given by the 200 women present.

As at the dinner of the Republican women on Wednesday evening, no mention was made of Senator Wadsworth whose re-election is opposed by Miss Hay and some of her followers, because of the Senator's opposition to woman suffrage.

The speakers included Miss Hay, Mrs. Arthur L. Livingore, the Chairman; Mrs. John Glover South of Frankfort, Ky.; State Senator J. Henry Walters, Lieutenant Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Lafayette B. Glenson, George H. Glynn, Mrs. Harlette Taylor Upton, Mrs. Walter Damrosch, Mrs. James R. Parsons, and Mrs. Arthur McCook.

Turner and County Physician Robert Armstrong learned later, it appeared that Strong had returned home and, after his wife had retired, had sat in their bedroom at the rear of the house reading "What Jesus Saw." The son of the late Rev. Dr. Paschal Strong, first pastor of the North Reformed Church in Passaic, he had been actively and devotedly religious, apparently dividing his whole love between his church and his family.

Piece Together Tale of Murders.

After that, it is supposed, Strong retired. Later he got up again without awakening his wife, it seemed, went softly to the cellar and returned with the axe. When he had killed his wife with two blows of the instrument, he went, evidently, to a small room off his own, in which slept Nathaniel. He struck the boy twice, and probably believed him dead.

Next, he went to the front room in which slept the eldest daughter. She alone of his victims awakened to struggle with the crazed man, and the disordered room told eloquently of her vain fight to save herself. Last of all, he visited the room in which slept the two younger children. Whether he had sickened at his task, or whether he was eager to dispose of himself, he struck them each only once, each time a glancing blow.

In the bathroom he stood the axe in a corner, took his razor from a medicine cabinet, and, after slashing himself horribly, cut his throat. He was found dead on the bathroom floor in his night clothes.

The investigating authorities believed it possible that Strong had used some drug to stupefy his intended victims, but search last night failed to disclose evidence to support this theory.

So far as could be learned, Strong had no close relatives living near him. Two sisters, one living in upper New York State and one elsewhere, are reported to have died in the last year.

He was one of the best known residents of Passaic, and was well liked by his neighbors. For six years he served on the Board of Education, taking, because of his technical education, a leading part in the erection of the town's new school buildings. He resigned from the board two years ago, because of a disagreement with the City Commissioners over appropriations.

ASK FEDERAL BAN ON COMICS

Western Publishers Want Them Suppressed to Save Newsprint.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 4.—The Government was requested, either by legislation or by an executive order of the Post Office Department, to forbid the issuance by newspapers of comic supplements and magazine sections, as a means of conserving print paper, in resolutions adopted today by publishers of Kansas and Missouri.

Copies of the resolutions were forwarded to Postmaster General Burleson and members of Congress from the two States.

OUR ENGINEERS have been studying for the past two years the practical application of "Fuel Oil" for the generation of steam, with special reference to the heating of mercantile and apartment buildings. This study was undertaken because of our conviction that whenever the city might adopt the necessary regulations, this subject would be of great interest and importance to building owners.

The Board of Standards and Appeals has adopted a code of "Fuel Oil" rules

An adequate supply of Fuel Oil is now available.

We have the necessary data, and our Management Department will be pleased to consult with any building owner and place at his disposal our services.

"When the frost is on the pumpkin," sings James Whitcomb Riley.

"What moistens the lip and what brightens the eye, what calls back the past like the rich pumpkin pie?" asks Whittier.

And CHILDS adds a gastronomic poem—smooth, creamy pumpkin, enriched with milk and eggs, made piquant with sugar and spices and set on a crispy, flaky crust that seems literally to melt into deliciousness.

CHILDS pumpkin pie and CHILDS mellow coffee leave nothing to be desired—save another piece and another cup.

SENATOR PREPARES TO MAKE DEFENSE

A DOZEN MORE INDICTED

Special to The New York Times.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Dec. 4.—The nineteen men indicted with Truman H. Newberry who will appear Monday with him for arraignment include Fred W. Castator, a member of the Detroit City Council; John S. Newberry, brother of the Senator; Paul King, his campaign manager; Allan A. Templeton, President of the Detroit Board of Commerce; B. Frank Emery, Secretary of the Newberry Campaign Committee; Fred Cody of New York; Milton Oakman of Detroit; Harry O. Turner of Detroit; Frederick P. Smith of Detroit; E. V. Chilson, a Secretary of the Newberry committee; Mark McKee of Mount Clemens, and Richard Fletcher, State Labor Commissioner of Bay City.

Some of the defendants will be arraigned under the second indictment which charges perjury in reference to the filing of statements of expenses before and after the primary and before and after the election. The first trial will concern only the first indictment.

Eighteen Michigan politicians named in the original indictment were arraigned this morning. All stood mute or pleaded not guilty. The bond in each case was set at $1,000.

The army of attorneys which has been expected to appear for the defendants is already mobilizing. It is expected that the main burden of the defense will fall on Martin W. Littleton of New York, James O. Murfin of Detroit, and George E. Nichols of Ionia. A number of other attorneys have appeared as counsel for individual defendants.

An indicted men's club is being formed in Grand Rapids to be known as "The One Hundred and Thirty-five Republicans Club." George W. Welsh of Grand Rapids is sponsor for the organization, members of which will wear large blue buttons with the words in white: "I Helped to Keep Henry Ford Out of the United States Senate."

The names of several more men named in the indictments and hitherto withheld were given out today. They included De Witt Brown and R. G. Tetrow, respectively deputy State auditor and Deputy Sheriff of Stevenson, Mich.; Will L. Darling, Harbor Springs, a Deputy State Oil Inspector; Glenn Williams, a court stenographer at Adrian; Lewis Burr, Houghton, Deputy State Oil Inspector, and William Crebassa, former Sheriff of Baraga County.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Senator Newberry of Michigan plans to leave here Saturday for Grand Rapids to enter a plea of "not guilty" on Monday to the indictment charging him with election frauds. He conferred today with Martin W. Littleton of New York, his attorney, and several prominent Republican Senators. The investigation authorized by the Senate into the Ford-Newberry election contest before the Privileges and Elections Committee was understood to have been discussed.

According to present plans, the committee inquiry will be started in January, but probably confined at first to a recount of the Michigan ballots, which will be brought here in the original boxes, with poll books, clerks' tally sheets and other documents. Examination of witnesses will not begin until Mr. Newberry's trial in Michigan has been closed.

WOOD SUPPORTERS OPEN HEADQUARTERS HERE

Headquarters in this city for the new national movement to promote the Presidential candidacy of General Leonard Wood were opened yesterday at the Hotel Imperial. Captain de Lancey Jay, Secretary of the Military Training Publishing Corporation and formerly an officer in the Officers' Training Camp Association, will be in charge. Captain Jay was in Chicago yesterday conferring with General Wood and other friends of his boom, regarding plans and a program for the new organization.

It was stated yesterday that those who have taken the initiative in forming it are mostly former Rough Riders who served in the Spanish War under Colonel Roosevelt and General Wood members of the American Legion, men who had attended the Plattsburg Training Camp for Officers, and former Progressives and others who had followed the fortunes of the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and would have supported him for the Presidential nomination, had he remained alive and become a candidate.

MUM ON WOOD CONFERENCE.

Boom Manager Refuses Information About New Yorkers in Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Republican Presidential candidate makers, fresh from South Dakota, were much in evidence today at the Congress Hotel. The Lowden and Wood camps were working at high speed across the hall from each other. The Republican National Headquarters kept open house for a squad of National Committeemen. Senator Miles Poindexter, speaking for himself, was quartered at the Hotel La Salle.

John T. King, in charge of the Wood boom, would not see newspaper men. Whether General Wood was present could not be learned. A delegation from New York City was supposed to be here to talk with him about campaign plans, but their names and the result of the conference could not be obtained from Mr. King.

Reports that the New York group was here to form a national organization were denied by personal friends of the General.

Fred Stanley, National Committeeman from Kansas, arrived to assume immediate charge of the National Committee headquarters. With eleven other members of the National Committee he will go to Washington Monday as the guest of Fred W. Upham, and the Chicago Convention Committee, which will endeavor to get the National Committee next Wednesday to designate Chicago for the holding of the national convention.

CHARGE PACKER GRIP ON 31 FOOD CONCERNS

Federal Commission Issues Formal Complaints of Violations of Anti-Trust Act.

CONTROL GAINED IN 3 YEARS

Cudahy Company, It Is Asserted, Now Has Output of 200 Wisconsin Cheese Factories.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Formal complaints were issued today by the Federal Trade Commission charging the five big Chicago meat packers with violations of the Clayton Anti-Trust act through the alleged purchase and control of thirty-one corporations handling food and other supplies. Written answer to the complaints must be made within forty days and thereafter public hearing will be had before the commission.

Concerns which the packers are accused of absorbing include meat packers, fruit canners, dealers in eggs and poultry, and dealers in and manufacturers of butter, cheese, oleomargarine, condensed milk and like products, catsups and condiments and leather tanners.

The complaints, which, it was announced, grew out of the investigation of the meat packing industry ordered by Congress, also were issued against the United Dressed Beef Company, the Western Meat Company of San Francisco, and the Nevada Packing Company.

Instances cited by the complaints of companies over which the Chicago packers are alleged to have gained control during the last three years through purchase of a majority of the stock or other means follow:

By Swift & Co.—Moultrie Packing Company, Moultrie, Ga.; Andalusia Packing Company, Andalusia, Ala.; England, Walton & Co., Inc., Philadelphia, including eight subsidiaries; J. J. Harrington & Co., Inc., New York City.

By Wilson & Co.: Paul O. Reyman Co., Wheeling, W. Va., Morton Gregson Co., Nebraska City, Neb.

By the Cudahy Packing Co.: Nagle Packing Co., Jersey City, N. J., D. E. Wood Butter Co., Evansville, Ill.

It was also charged that the Cudahy Packing Co. organized the Dow Cheese Co., a subsidiary corporation, under the Wisconsin laws, and contracted with A. C. Dow Co., Inc., that the latter company should transfer its business to the Dow Cheese Co. The result of this contract, the complaint alleged, was "that Cudahy now controls the entire output of over 200 cheese factories in Wisconsin and adjacent States."

By Morris & Co.: Crescent City Stock Yards and Slaughter House Co., of Louisiana, Bluefield Produce and Provision Co., Bluefield, W. Va., Holland Butterine Co., Jersey City, N. J., Providence Churning Co., Providence, R. I., Eckerson Co., Jersey City, N. J., Jacob Marty Co., Broadhead, Wis., C. A. Straubel Co., Green Bay, Wis., Sherman, White & Co., Fort Wayne, Ind.

It was alleged also that the Western Meat Co., of San Francisco, "a meat slaughtering corporation, controlled by joint family interests of the Big Five Chicago packers" on Dec. 30, 1916, acquired all of the $353,000 capital stock of the Nevada Packing Co., of Reno, and "still owns and controls the same."

The Western Meat Co. and the Navada Packing Co. also were cited under Section 7 of the Clayton law against interlocking directorates.

In connection with the complaints against the packers, the Institute of American Meat Packers through its Washington office, issued a statement:

"At the proper time the packing companies will present evidence which will show they have violated no laws whatsoever. At present, these and other companies are under attack by the Department of Justice in the Federal courts. There is no disposition on the part of any packing company to try its case in the newspapers.

"In due season, the packers will present all the evidence in their possession to the Federal Trade Commission and will co-operate in every possible way and also will assist in developing any pertinent facts.

"The packers are confident that the outcome will in no way reflect any discredit whatsoever upon them or any of their actions."

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—The public was asked tonight to suspend judgment until a hearing was held and more of the facts developed, in a statement by Edward Morris, President of Morris & Co., which denied the charges of the Federal Trade Commission that the Big Five packers had violated the Clayton act.

PERSHING BUYS STAMPS.

Approves Red Cross Tuberculosis Work in France.

General John J. Pershing bought a supply of Red Cross Christmas seals yesterday and, in a letter to the campaign manager, indorsed heartily the campaign against tuberculosis, for which the sale is being held.

Fifteen children of Public School 81 held out-of-door classes on the steps of the library yesterday to help the Christmas seal campaign. The classes were held as a public demonstration of some of the methods which are being used to stamp out tuberculosis. The children sang, studied, and recited. They were well bundled up in the "arctic bag" suits which the Board of Education provides.

Reports to headquarters here show greater progress in the campaign in the West. New York, which has a quota of $650,000, has not reached the $100,000 mark.

I Don't Know I DO Know

The Encyclopaedia Britannica Will TELL You

How often during the day, at your office, at your club, at your lodge—how often has your boss asked you for information which you did not know? How often have your wife and your children been at a loss for useful, important and often highly necessary information? Have you had to say "I do not know" when you really should know—which, if you had owned the Britannica, you would know? How often have your children had to admit that they did not know, when if they had had the opportunity of consulting the Encyclopaedia Britannica they would have had complete and authoritative information?

Think of the satisfaction of never having to say "I don't know" to anybody—of the pride you would take in having your children never say "I don't know" at school or in their work!

Are you one of those half-informed persons who are trying to slip through life by making a lame excuse when a question is put to you, the answer to which you have every right to know?

But now as never before you must know. If you wish to make your way upward in business you must have knowledge, you must have information which makes you more efficient, more competent, more responsible.

The Britannica will give you a tremendous advantage. If you know anything about it, you know that. Think of what it would mean to you, to your children, to have access to the sum and substance of all human knowledge! Consider what a satisfaction it would be for you to have at hand the answer to every question which comes to an active mind, to your wife's and children's minds!

The Britannica covers the whole range of man's thought, and activity and achievement. It contains more than 41,000 special articles, more than 500,000 indexed facts.

To describe quickly its scope is impossible. It contains many thousand articles on every subject in the world—on religion, history, biography, art, science, literature, manufacturing, invention, engineering, law, commerce, business and hundreds upon hundreds of other subjects—41,000 articles in all. It abounds in practical everyday useful facts that satisfy the inquisitiveness of the child-mind, that enlighten the housewife, farmer, businessman, the lawyer—every class. The best proof of its usefulness is that men and women in all walks of life are among the 200,000 owners of the new Eleventh Edition.

You do not own the Britannica. Why don't you?

We give you this rare chance to own an India paper set. We have a small stock of India paper sets—this very thin, strong paper has made the great Britannica more convenient to handle, more usable, therefore, more inviting to read. These sets are offered at prices and terms which make the Britannica a bargain to anyone who like you does not yet own a set.

BUT YOU MUST ACT AT ONCE

$1 as first payment brings the complete set to your home—29 volumes 44,000,000 words, 15,000 maps and illustrations, 30,000 pages. You pay the balance in small monthly amounts.

Clip and mail the coupon today—NOW—and obtain our 136-page booklet fully describing the Britannica, which will be sent you free and postpaid.

See these sets and leave your order at Gimbels Book Store Main Floor

If you are ready to subscribe now, write an order on a piece of paper and mail with a dollar bill and we will ship you a set at once.

WOMAN GETS $1,200 RINGS, FLEES STORE

Female Bandit, with Confederate's Aid, Escapes with Jewelry She Was Inspecting.

$50,000 SILK ROBBERY

Thieves Take Sussex Works' Green Auto, with Valuable Load, from Street.

A woman bandit, with the assistance of an active male accomplice and a chauffeur, last evening robbed the jewelry store of Armin Hollinger, at 1,216 Third Avenue, and got away with four diamond rings valued at about $1,200.

The woman entered the store and asked to be shown some of the best diamond rings in stock. Julius Miller, the clerk, showed her four rings, and the customer walked toward the front of the store as though to examine them in a better light.

As she approached the door a man entered and his arrival was so timed that the customer found an open door in front of her as she got furthest away from the proprietor and his clerk. She darted through the open door and the last visitor promptly closed it with both on the outside.

When Hollinger and Miller reached the door the pair were getting into an automobile. As the storekeeper and his assistant stepped on the sidewalk a hand appeared from a window of the car and a single revolver shot drove them back. When they stepped out again the automobile was disappearing into Sixty-ninth Street.

News of a $50,000 silk robbery, kept carefully secret by the police, became public yesterday when it was learned that on Wednesday afternoon the Sussex Print Works of 404 Fourth Avenue suffered a loss to that amount which involved the daylight theft of a huge automobile truck. The big truck, painted a bright green and laden with the silk in bales, cases and trunks, disappeared in the afternoon so completely that, despite a general alarm which set the police of all the city looking for it, it was not found until twenty-four hours after it was stolen. Then it was discovered, deserted and emptied of its valuable freight, in Mangin Street, in the lower east side.

Get $3,000 Worth of Stolen Whisky.

MINEOLA, L. I., Dec. 4.—Constable Charles G. Anderson of Mineola today recovered $3,000 worth of the 500 cases of whisky and five barrels of wine stolen two weeks ago from a New York Central Railroad dock in New York. The whisky had been transferred to the home of a Polish farmer at Jericho and to a private residence in Soisset. Constables and representatives of the Department of Justice seized fifteen cases in a hotel in Huntington and found twenty others in an Oyster Bay hotel.

DAY ACCUSES HIRSHFIELD.

Former Commissioner Tells a Story of an Attempt to "Frame" Him.

An allegation that Commissioner of Accounts Davjd Hirshfield had tried to "frame" him was made yesterday by Dr. Jonathan C. Day, former Commissioner of Public Markets, who was removed by Mayor Hylan. In his accusation Dr. Day brought in the name of Harry Baff, poultryman and son of Barnet Baff, West Washington Market dealer, who was murdered in November, 1914.

After issuing his statement through his attorney, Mayer C. Goldman of 7 Beekman Street, Dr. Day with the lawyer went to the Criminal Courts Building, where the ex-Commissioner testified for an hour and a half before the Extraordinary Grand Jury. He will appear again before the jury this morning.

"Last June," said Dr. Day, "Harry Baff, a poultry dealer of West Washington Market, came to me and told me that Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield was trying to 'frame' me on a charge of taking graft for favors to stand owners in West Washington Market. Baff told me that Barnet Cohen and William Jacobs had told Hirshfield that among the checks of the firm of Baff & Cohen there was a check for $500, payable to cash and that that check was given or was intended for me for favors which I am alleged to have given Baff.

"Hirshfield subpoenaed the check and Baff. On the back of the check were the letters 'D. D.' which Hirshfield immediately interpreted as meaning 'Dr. Day.' When Baff refused to testify as Hirshfield wanted him to Hirshfield locked Baff in a room in his office for several hours. After Baff got out he came to see me, and he and I went to the office of my attorney, Mayer C. Goldman, where he set forth all these occurences in an affidavit which I have and which I am willing shall be brought to the attention of the Grand Jury."

DENY GROUND FOR SUIT.

Officers of Commonwealth Co. Say Miss Swan Was an Investor.

Concerning the suit by Miss Harriet Swan against the Commonwealth Hotel Construction Corporation to recover $3,000 paid for thirty shares of stock on the ground of alleged misrepresentation by an agent that he would resell the stock for her at a large profit, the officers of the company made a statement yesterday that there was no ground for the suit.

They said their records showed that Miss Swan was not interested in the club or rebate inducements of the company and subscribed for investment only. They say further that they are responsible only for statements in their printed matter and not for verbal promises by salesmen.

MISSES' COATS WITH FUR COLLARS

In Two Fabrics, Twice Practical, Doubly Smart

SO manifold are the demands of the Winter season on a coat, that it is a rare coat which meets all its obligations. This coat of soft Bolivia, or silvertip Bolivia, the fabric feathered with white as after a frost, is exceptional for its adaptability. The loose, easy lines made swinging by the deep cut of the raglan shoulders, the flaring back, and the front adjusted by a narrow belt give it grace, freedom and smartness. The silk lining and interlining make for warmth in the coldest Winter weather.

IRON MEN MAY BALK 1920 BUILDING PEACE

APPEAL TO ARCHITECTS

League Urges That Free Labor Clause Be Inserted In All New York Specifications.

With the final signature affixed yesterday to the contract between the Building Trades Council and the Building Trades Employers' Association, agreeing upon a wage schedule for 1920, Walter Drew, counsel for the Iron League Erectors' Association, whose members are also members of the Employers' Association, announced that his organization did not intend to abandon the open shop. What effect this will have on building operations projected in New York, which total well over $10,000,000, remains to be discovered, for under the 1920 contract just signed union men employed on building operations where nonunion men are working are permitted to strike.

Mr. Drew in his statement, after commenting upon conditions during Sam Parks's rule in the Iron Workers' Union, which brought about the open shop, said that this condition had been accepted by the unions of all other trades and became the recognized custom in building work.

"The Iron League Erectors' Association does not intend to abandon the right of open shop operation. Following is a letter send out by the President of the association to owners and architects:

Nov. 26, 1919.

To All Architects, Owners, and Prospective Builders in Greater New York and Long Island:

Gentlemen—As a result of the criminal records of a large number of officers and men prominent in the International Association of Bridgemen and Housesmiths, involving intimidation, violence, destruction of proper y by dynamite, and other crimes, the erection of structural steel work in this city and vicinity was placed on the open-shop basis on Jan. 1, 1906, and has been maintained on that basis until the present time, resulting in greatly reducing the cost of building operations and the practical elimination of strikes in the steel branch of the industry.

The contrast between the result obtained in that industry and that resulting in other trades where members of labor unions have been recognized exclusively has been most marked, and the investing public has been the recipient of the gain.

Pressure is now being brought to bear in certain quarters to induce the members of the Iron League Erectors' Association to change this policy and adopt the un-American policy of the closed shop.

As such a change, if adopted, would inevitably result in increasing the cost of buildings, in decreasing the efficiency of our workmen, in limiting the available labor supply in this district, in causing labor strikes and delays, and would violate the rights of many of our workmen under the Constitution of the United States, the members of our association, at a meeting held in the rooms of the Building Trades Employers' Association Nov. 25, 1919, unanimously voted to adhere to the policy which has proved satisfactory during the last fourteen years, to employers and workmen alike.

It is the intention of our members to offer employment to all applicants having the proper requirements, without regard to their affiliation or nonaffiliation with labor unions, thereby guaranteeing to each individual his constitutional right to such employment, based only on his own ability and efficiency.

We earnestly solicit your aid in retaining the results which have been gained as set forth above, by insertion in all contracts for the erection of structural steel work of a labor clause, copies of which are inclosed herewith. Very truly yours,

SEES EUROPE IN REVOLT, LACKING U. S. FOOD

Welsh Professor Predicts English and Continental Labor Movements Will Split.

AMHERST, Mass., Dec. 4.—The assertion that "the whole question of whether Europe becomes revolutionary depends upon whether America feeds her" was made today in an address at Amherst College by H. A. Hetherington, professor of philosophy at Cardiff University, Wales, and a British representative at the recent International Labor Conference at Washington.

"At present the English and Continental labor movements have much in common," Professor Hetherington said. "The economic situation in England is such that starvation is not likely, but, on the other hand, the situation on the Continent is wholly different. There starvation over large areas is imminent, and starvation breeds revolution. There is, therefore, a likelihood of the English and Continental labor movements parting company, the former becoming more practical and more conservative."

WANTS TO CONTROL HOLDING COMPANIES

Interstate Commerce Commission Recommends a Change in the Present Law.

FIGURES ON 1918 ACCIDENTS

471 Passengers Were Killed in Railroad Accidents and 3,255 Trespassers on Railroad Property.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Very few recommendations are contained in the annual report of the Interstate Commerce Commission made public today by Clyde Aitchison, Chairman of the body. As many of the functions of the commission were curtailed by the Federal control of railroads during the last year, the report repeats mainly the recommendations of other years.

These recommendations are that the power to award reparation for unreasonable or unlawful charges be vested entirely in the courts; that the powers of the commission be extended to holding corporations as well as those which actually operate interstate transportation lines and that railroad operating rules be standardized.

On the subject of holding companies, the report says:

"The organization of holding companies for the purpose of controlling operating carriers or transportation systems and the close relationship existing between such companies and the properties controlled by them entitle the public to information relating to their activities and operations similar to that required by law from owning companies.

"In the investigation of the affairs of operating railroad companies under authority of Section 20 of the act our work has been obstructed by reason of the fact that desired information concerning the carrier under investigation was obtainable only from the records of a holding company which questioned our authority to inspect its records and accounts. The information thus sought usually has to do with the financial status of operating companies and their relationships to other carriers—matters of manifest concern to the public and important in the performance of our regulatory duties.

"Holding companies are not specifically dealt with in the act to regulate commerce in its present form and our authority with respect to their affairs has not been judicially determined. In order that our jurisdiction may be made entirely clear it is recommended that Section 20 of the act be amended by inserting therein a provision that its terms shall also apply to holding companies."

The report discusses in great detail the subject of reparation, and urges that Sections 8, 9, and 16 of the act to regulate commerce shall be so construed as to mean that no person is entitled to reparation except to the extent he shows he has suffered damages.

During the year, 1,755 applications for increased rates under the amendment of Aug. 9, 1017, were filed, making a total of 8,439 since the act went into effect. The commission reports that 1,041 had been approved, 37 denied in full, and 68 denied in part; 1,024 were withdrawn by the applicant carriers. The amendment, the report adds parenthetically, expires the first of the year.

Summarizing the work of the Bureau of Safety, the report states that 8,697 persons were killed in railway accidents and 64,144 injured during the calendar year 1918. Of the number killed, 3,255 were trespassers on railroad property and 471 passengers, the rest being employes and persons carried under contract, such as mail clerks and Pullman conductors. Analyzing the injuries sustained by railway employes, the report shows that 164 were killed and 2,222 injured in coupling and uncoupling cars. Casualties due to employes coming into contact with overhead and side obstructions, falling from and getting on and off cars, resulted in 630 deaths and 14,533 injuries.

From an investigation of seventy-nine train accidents during the year the commission finds that failure of the engineers to obey signals and negligence on the part of the lines to provide adequate flag protection for trains continued, as in other years, to be the principal causes for collisions. Errors in transmitting, receiving, and fulfilling train orders were responsible for five out of twenty-five head-on collisions. Three of twenty-five derailments were found to have been due to defective equipment, fourteen to track conditions, five to excessive speed, one to an obstruction, and one to ill-arranged signal lights at a derailing point. The cause of one derailment was not defined.

The statistics of the Bureau of Inquiry of the commission show that twenty-eight indictments for violations of the act to regulate commerce and the Elkins act were returned during the year. Three of these indictments were against carriers or carriers' agents, and the remaining twenty-five against shippers, passengers, and other noncarriers. During the year sixty-five cases were concluded. Fifty-seven of the defendants offered pleas of guilty. A verdict of not guilty was rendered in one case, and indictments were dismissed in six upon motion of the Government.

The Value of a Coal Mine

Coal mining is a business unto itself—it involves more than the usual risks and problems of manufacturing.

Therefore ordinary appraisals by engineers alone—or by auditors alone—cannot give full report of values or possibilities.

The Peabody Coal Company knows coal and coal mining both from the marketing as well as the operating end.

We are one of the largest producers of bituminous coal in the country—operating 28 mines, with thirteen million tons capacity.

With our organization and 38 years' experience we furnish banks, bond houses, trustees or others with practical appraisals and reports on coal properties that are more than mere theory and figures.

We also undertake the management of property where desired.

THE PLAY

A Biggers-Morley Farce.

THREE'S A CROWD, a comedy in three acts by Earl Derr Biggers and Christopher Morley, based on a story by Mr. Morley. At the Cort Theatre.

Earl Derr Biggers, who has done quite a bit of play writing in his time, is seriously implicated in the stage version of "Kathleen," an after-the-war romance, by Christopher Morley, which, under the title of "Three's a Crowd," put in an appearance last evening at the Cort, thereby casting considerable doubt on the rumor that it is difficult these days to get a theatre in New York. There is so much that is fresh and amusing scattered through their three long acts that it is strange how like an opiate is the total effect.

The farce deals with the efforts of four demobilized soldiers (one American one Canadian, and two British) to get into the company and good graces of a Stratford-on-Avon damsel named Kathleen, whom they have known only through her letters. The Canadian invades her house as piano tuner, the Britishers go in as electrician and cook, respectively, and the American just pushes his way in as a guest. The ensuing didoes are rendered somewhat less diverting by their extreme extravagance. It would seem that even a farce requires a decent minimum of plausibility and this is lacking in "Three's a Crowd."

Just why the scene was laid in England is not clear, though, with Mr. Morley's Oxford education and a liberal sprinkling of such phrases as "Right-O," "Ripping," "Top-hole," "'Op it" and "infernal cheek," the illusion is simply perfect. The company is numerous and of abundant talent. Particularly good are Allan Dinehart, who is spending this season being an American hero returned from the wars, and Walter McEwen, as a nervous curate. That "plump and pleasing person," Miss Phoebe Foster, who was last seen as the love of the garbage king in "First Is Last," is the decorative Kathleen. Miss Foster is as pretty and wholesome as a bowl of pink sweet peas and it was only her somewhat snorty and explosive methods as a comedienne which prevented last night's audience rising en masse to proclaim her the Edith Day of the Biggers-Morley Theatre.

ACTORS' MEMORIAL TODAY.

Matinees Throughout Country Expected to Give Fund $2,000,000.

Actors' Memorial Day will be celebrated today with special matinées in about 210 theatres throughout the country. It was estimated last night that the proceeds of these performances will be in the neighborhood of $2,000,000, all of which will go to the Actors Fund of America as an endowment fund.

In New York City matinées for the fund will be given at all the legitimate theatres, and the returns from this district are likely to be far in excess of half a million dollars. Preparations for the performances have been going on for several months, and by alloting each theatre to a specific trade or industry it has been possible to sell out every theatre.

It is hoped to set aside the first Friday in each December for matinées for the Actors Fund. Cities in forty States will give performances today, and in many of these the campaign will be continued after today in order to bring the fund up to a certain total.

Thousands of soldiers, sailors, and school children will attend the performances in New York this afternoon as the guests of various persons and organizations. The theatres will be decorated for the occasion, and a speaker has been assigned to each house. Some of those who will make addresses are Charles S. Whitman, Henry W. Taft, General John F. O'Ryan James M. Beck, George Creel, Richard Derby, Dr. Joseph W. Silverman, George Gordon Battle, John Drinkwater, and J. M. Gidding.

Among the contributions received for the fund yesterday by Daniel Frohman was $50 from Governor Alfred E. Smith.

Mr. Frohman was the guest of honor at a breakfast at the Hotel Commodore yesterday, at which Charles E. Hughes was the principal speaker.

TWO PIANISTS APPEAR.

Czech and Polish Artists Are Heard in Aeolian Hall.

Two of Europe's new nations were represented yesterday in musical New York, last evening's Aeolian pianist being Marguerite Volavy, a Bohemian, of robust rather than blazing temperament, and unassuming though ample technique, whose hour of Slavic composers included four of her Czech countrymen, and in two instances compositions heard for the first time. Serge Bortkiewicz's sonata, op. 9, spoke more formal language from the bright lexicon of Brahms, with some individual fervor, which won hearty applause, while five bits from Novak's "Slovakian" suite were of a lighter sort including episodes "Among the Children," "Sweethearts," and "At the Dance." There were pieces by Smetana and Dvorak, and a graceful gesture of homage to the Poles in one group from Chopin, culminating in the F sharp minor Polonaise.

Herman Timberg, well known in vaudeville, is preparing a full-length revue, which is to be seen on Broadway next month. In the company will be Flo Lewis, Hattie Darling, Pearl Eaton, Gertrude Fitzgerald, Helen Birmingham, Jay Gould, George Mayo, and others.

The East-West Players will repeat their recent program, including St. John Ervine's "The Magnanimous Lover," at the Garden Theatre on Dec. 15.

Jane Manner, as the third of a series of dramatic readings, will read Ibsen's "The Master Builder" at the Waldorf-Astoria on Tuesday afternoon.

Edward Ellis will have the principal role in Henry W. Savage's production of "Shavings," which comes to New York after the holidays.

Belle Story has returned to the Hippodrome after a week's absence.

Jane Cowl's play, "Smilin' Through," will be brought to New York soon after the holidays.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Alma Tell has been engaged for the leading role in "The Mood of the Moon," by Cleves Kinkead.

The first performance of "Let Tommy Do It," by Leon Gordon and Le Roy Clemens, will take place in Stamford tonight.

Why not manufacture in two plants
—your present one and another at Hopewell, Va.?

What if your production suddenly were stopped or seriously curtained?

Have you figured out what you stand to lose if your one factory were destroyed or crippled?

Your direct monetary loss would be heavy according to the loss in time required to rebuild, make repairs or adjust other troubles.

Even this loss might be trifling compared to that resulting from damage to your business.

Two Plants a Protection

Two plants are a protection. They insure your business. The destruction or closing of one plant merely means shifting its burden to the other for a time. There is no stoppage of production.

Two plants, besides, give big marketing advantages. They cut down time, trouble and cost in shipping.

Freight Rates Going Up

There is no promise of lower freight rates for years to come. They are more likely to go much higher soon. Water transportation, therefore, is being given greater consideration every day. It is cheaper.

What are you doing to protect your trade in markets where higher transportation costs put you at a big disadvantage?

Products manufactured in the West or South for sale in the East must meet the competition of goods made in eastern factories. The same condition applies to products manufactured in the North for sale in southern markets.

The only way to remove this transportation cost handicap is to have a factory as favorably located as your competitor's.

The Right Place for a Plant

Regardless of location and handicaps, whether you are a one-plant manufacturer or whether you already have more than one plant, the chances are ninety-nine in a hundred that another factory established in a place of great strategic value would lead to greater success in business.

Such a location is now open to you in the Petersburg-Hopewell Industrial District of Virginia. This district, situated 23 miles south of Richmond and 82 miles west of Norfolk, is a railway center and tidewater port, giving it shipping facilities that are unsurpassed in point of service and cost.

It is the center of a region rich in natural resources, among which are many products used in basic industries.

The climate is not only such as to make the district a potential health resort, but is so mild as to permit out-of-door work throughout the year.

Hopewell's Great Offer

The Du Pont Company, in seeking a location for one of its gigantic war industries, chose Hopewell because of its unsurpassed advantages—natural and created. The end of the war has released the tremendous manufacturing equipment at Hopewell for peace-time industry, thus affording opportunities which, we believe, are without precedent.

Hopewell has factories ready to turn on electric or steam power; it has factory sites with railway sidings already built; it has power plants capable of supplying steam and electricity in any desired quantity below standard costs, and it has a water purification system with a capacity of 50,000,000 gallons a day.

You can buy a small factory or a large factory—a small site or a large site. We are not selling Hopewell to one manufacturer but to many manufacturers.

No Labor Shortage

In addition, Hopewell has a supply of labor, skilled and unskilled, male and female, sufficient for all present and future need.

Plenty of Houses

Hopewell has housing accommodations for 12,000 additional workers. It has the best fire and police protection in the world, with schools, churches, clubs, hotels, theatres, paved streets, electric lights, and, in fact, everything that a modern city should have.

We are offering our peace surplus factories, factory sites and other equipment at Hopewell direct to manufacturers at attractive prices on liberal terms. We also have obtained some of the ablest technical and industrial experts and engineers in the country to help manufacturers who come to Hopewell in working out their problems. This service is free.

All the banking help necessary for legitimate development and expansion will be furnished firms who come to Hopewell. They also will be given advantage of one of the most unique insurance propositions ever offered.

You Must Act Quickly

We intend disposing of our manufacturing equipment at Hopewell in the quickest possible time. We are carrying on a nation-wide advertising campaign to bring the opportunities at Hopewell to the attention of manufacturers. The demand already is keen and prompt action will be necessary to obtain accommodations before Hopewell is completely sold. Wire or write today for any additional information you may need.

MUSIC

By RICHARD ALDRICH.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra gave at the first concert on its second trip to New York last evening, in Carnegie Hall, a program that suffered somewhat from a too great similarity of style in at least two of its numbers. It was a program of modern music entirely; and it is likely that something more of contrast would have given greater value to what was played. It began with Ernest Chausson's symphony in B flat; Charles Tomlinson Griffes's symphonic poem, "The Pleasure Dome of Kubla Khan," and Mily Balakireff's symphonic poem, "Thamar," followed, and Felix Mottl's orchestration of Chabrier's "Bourrée Fantasque," a piano piece in its original form, closed it. The two symphonic poems had too many points of contact to make suitable members of the same program.

It was the most extensive work of Mr. Griffes that has as yet been heard here. He has attracted considerable attention of late by compositions that have shown an originality of talent, possession of ideas and the ability to set them forth in suitable and striking form, the one most recently heard having been a "Poem" for flute and orchestra played by the New York Symphony Orchestra. That heard last night is a work of more ambitious scope. As its title indicates, it is an attempt to put into music ideas and images suggested by Coleridge's poem, "Kubla Khan." The verses the composer had in mind were those describing the "stately pleasure dome"; Alph, the sacred river running through "caverns measureless to man"; the fountains; the sunny spots of greenery; and most of all, and at greatest length, the dancing and revelry within.

The dancing and revelry are, of course, Oriental, and they have given Mr. Griffes the starting point for music of strongly Oriental character in its melodic intervals in instrumentation, in harmonic basis. He has previously shown a predilection for this quality in music; he "does" it well, without a slavish following of the accepted Oriental formulas, but rather with some interesting departures from them. Nevertheless, Orientalism in music involves the following of formula, which is to our ears necessarily to a greater or less degree artificial, and hence, before long, monotonous. Mr. Griffes will no doubt find an expression that does not require so deliberate an adoption of a style so obvious and so remote, and it will be to the advantage of the permanency of what he writes.

The introduction and earlier pages of his piece show imagination and invention, a mysterious suggestion of the sacred river, a brilliant evocation of the dome. The music is quite free in the structure, and while in certain passages the orchestration seems somewhat tentative, there is much that is successful in richness and brilliancy; and the piece achieves its pictorial purpose.

It was much applauded; and the composer, in one of the first tier boxes, rose repeatedly to bow his acknowledgements.

The rest of the program was not new to New York, though not familiar. Chausson's symphony, which has been more than once played here, is noble and beautiful music, one of the finest products of the modern—but not the most modern—French school; music deeply felt, poetical in spirit, expressed in a rich instrumental garb that fittingly clothes its substance, and with a fine feeling for the beauty that resides in beautiful form. It was played with careful elaboration by Mr. Monteux, evidently in sympathy with it, without too much restraint in the brass section.

Balakireff's "Thamar" has been heard here as the basis of a ballet danced by the Russians and had been heard before in concert. It is full of illustrative traits, dark landscape, womanly fascination, oriental orgies and their fateful outcome, which are depicted with vivid power but at somewhat too great length. In this, too, Mr. Monteux sought to lay on thickly the orchestral colors. There are in this composition several suggestions of a better known work, Rimsky-Karsakoff's "Scheherazade," both in themes and in certain peculiarities of rhythm; suggestions that would make it interesting to know how much the one was really influenced by the other, the two composers being comrades and workers for the accomplishment of a common purpose.

At its Carnegie Hall concert yesterday afternoon the New York Symphony Orchestra repeated Mozart's symphony in C major, Grieg's concerto played by Percy Grainger, and Mr. Grainger's new march, "Over the Hills and Far Away," he taking the piano obbligato part in it. The program also contained Sir Edward Elgar's "Introduction and Allegro," for string orchestra.

Elgar's piece was first played here by Mr. Damrosch fourteen years ago and has been unjustly neglected since; it is one of his finest compositions, one of his most original and spontaneous. In it he made a whole-hearted and skillful attempt to revive a form which has been obsolete in music for a century and a half, but which was extremely popular with composers of the eighteenth century and earlier—that of the "concerto grosso." This corresponded in general with the solo concerto, except that, instead of a single instrument with orchestral accompaniment, there was a small group of instruments, called the "concertino." These had a less sharply defined and less individualized function than the solo instrument in the concerto as it has come down to us, and were given less marked opportunities for solo display. They were employed rather in contrast or in alternation with the orchestra in working out the chief substance of the composition.

So it is in this "Introduction and Allegro" of Elgar's. The "concertino" consists of first and second violins, viola, and 'cello. The music is flowing and vigorous, rich in invention, and the flight is large and longer than in some of Elgar's compositions, in which he has packed many short-breathed themes into the effect of mosaic work. There is nothing experimental or tentative in this interesting revival of an old form. Elgar has followed the spirit of his old-time models in introducing a fugued secton, developed with considerable elaboration—with more elaboration than most modern composers are apt to allow themselves. His treatment is, of course, modern, theoretically, and in harmony, and especially in the use of a quite remarkable richness and variety of color, from his skilful and resourceful employment of the rather limited possibilities of the string orchestra, helped by the contrast of the four solo instruments.

The work was played with brilliancy, with swelling richness and beauty of tone, wherein the fine quality of the orchestra's strings was displayed to the best advantage. The "concertino," consisting of Messrs. Tinlot and Lichstein, violins; Pollain, viola, and Willeke, 'cello, were made to bow their applause.

Mr. Grainger's march has the high-spirited juvenility which we have learned to expect from him, and is in his most sportive vein—a "children's march" he calls it. The melodies are rollicking and contagiously rhythmical, not folk tunes but of a popular character, and they are sonorously and ingeniously developed and combined with not a few of the daring dissonances that Mr. Grainger courts and knows how to mollify with orchestral color. This is piled on, of course, thickly, though he has not gone so far afield in search of new instrumental effects as he sometimes has. The piano he uses as a part of these effects rather than as a solo instrument. Of course it all created a great deal of excitement, and Mr. Damrosch repeated the last section of it.

MUSIC NOTES.

Louise Homer will sing with the Boston Symphony Orchestra this evening at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. Tomorrow the New York Symphony plays in the same hall with Rachmaninoff.

Lada, the dancer, will appear tonight at Carnegie Hall with Franko's Orchestra in parts of Tschaikovsky's "Pathetique," Schubert's "Unfinished" symphony, and Ravel's "Valses Nobles et Sentimentales."

Helena Marsh of the Metropolitan, with Renea Chollet, soprano, and Maud Morgan, harp, will be heard in the Plaza ballroom tonight at a concert and dance for the Bryn Mawr College endowment fund.

E. ROBERT SCHMITZ

the distinguished French pianist, appears in Recital at Aeolian Hall on the afternoon of December 6th.

MR. SCHMITZ'S brilliant playing is meeting everywhere unwonted enthusiasm. Especially noteworthy are his interpretations of the music belonging to the modern French school. His friendship and long association with Debussy renders his interpretations of that great French composer particularly authoritative.

Hear Schmitz in person on Saturday and then come to the Duo-Art Salons at Aeolian Hall and hear his playing identically reproduced on the Duo-Art.

F. RAY COMSTOCK & MORRIS GEST Present
APHRODITE

THE TIMES (Geo. S. Kaufman): "'Aphrodite' a fine spectacle. Gorgeously depicted at the Century. A colorful, magnificent spectacle and will make the greatest appeal."
THE HERALD (H. R. Mullen): "Beyond any doubt or quibble, the most artistic and beautiful offering ever—yes, ever—made in a theatre in this city. A riot of pagan beauty."
EVE. TELEGRAM (Robt. G. Welch): "'Aphrodite' is overwhelming. There is extravagance of setting, costumes and acting. You will revel in its gorgeous stage pictures, its surge and movement, and its exotic color."
THE MAIL (Burns Mantle): "'Aphrodite' a production of great beauty in both form and color. The most beautiful stage production this home of huge spectacles has ever seen."
EVE. WORLD (Charles Darnton): "'Aphrodite' is magnificently alluring. As a spectacle it is superb. In this age of extravagant productions 'Aphrodite' takes the classical apple."
THE SUN (Lawrence Reamer): "'Aphrodite' proves a wonderful pageant. Famous romance captivates large Century audience. A triumph in stagecraft. Offering too beautiful to be missed by theatregoers."
THE WORLD (Louis De Foe): "'Aphrodite' shown in lavish scenes. Opulent spectacle of ancient Egypt is unfolded in brilliant stage pictures. A thoroughly wonderful spectacle."
MORNING TELEGRAPH (Rennold Wolf): "'Aphrodite' big and colorful. As a magnificent spectacle it surpasses any other serious dramatic exhibition in America's annals of theatrical endeavor. It is a tremendous achievement."
THE TRIBUNE (Heywood Broun): "'Aphrodite' has much to hold the eyes of all. It is spectacular, beautiful and showy. As an entertainment it is big and beautiful."
J. RANKIN TOWSE IN THE EVENING POST: "The first act a climax such as in other plays is usually reserved for the last act. More and more the audacious spectacles thrilled the audience and the final storming of the tower fairly took one's breath away. A realistic spectacle, and one awakes from the end as from a dream."

THE COAL CONSPIRACIES.

The coal operators are conspiring, or some would prefer to say are agreeing, to pay coal miners something more than the increase of pay suggested as proper to make it conform to the increased cost of living. Nobody is prosecuting them, for their conspiracy is reasonable and humane, at the cost of some sacrifice of profits if the laws of supply and demand, or of peace and order, now prevail. Eighty-four leaders of the coal miners, on the other hand, are defendants on a charge of criminal contempt of court in evading the Federal injunction against striking by conspiracy to reduce the production of fuel. That conspiracy is as unreasonable and inhumane as it is unlawful.

The case is nominally that of the Judge, whose injunction is evaded, against the union, but is really that of the consumers of coal against the strikers. The case of the strikers is that the increase of their wages to a sum satisfactory to them is more important than the supply of a necessary of life to the society of which the miners are a small part. The court acts for the entire people, and evasion of the injunction of the court is defiance of the Government. No one who believes in government can think that the miners are within their rights. If they can earn more in any other way, no one would prevent them. But that is different from willful idleness while industry languishes and people freeze. Those who suffer from the strike think more of their sufferings than of the miners, and rightly, for their sufferings are involuntary, undeserved, and greater than those of the miners, either man for man or mass for mass.

This is not the time for Mr. GOMPERS to complain of "a bitter, relentless war against labor." Society is put to self-defense against attempts to decrease production to extort a discriminating benefit for the small portion of the population seeking to coerce all the rest of it. So controlling is the patriotism of class over the patriotism of country that workers in no direct relation to the demands of the miners are joining them in support of them. Thus Kansas railway men are refusing railway service to those who for no personal benefit are volunteering for the relief of the distress the strikers are causing. Even unionists see how indefensible is such a conspiracy, and it is to the credit of the superior officials of the railway men that they overruled the local Kansas union. It remains true that no strike is justifiable which compels the declaration of martial law for the preservation of the peace, as in Oklahoma, or the seizure by the Government of the mines, as in Missouri. Strikers who make such measures necessary also make more necessary their defeat, whatever the merits of their wage contention. Otherwise there is a failure of Government, which is even worse than lack of coal or underpayment of miners.

Either anarchy or dominance by the miners is objectionable. The strike illustrates what the President pointed out—that the right to strike is "inviolate," but that the public welfare is predominant. Or, in other words, strikes may be allowed to take their course so long as they are kept within the limits of the clash of interests between workers and employers. But when strikes, as this particular strike does, threaten general interests, then the contention must be controlled according to the general interest. The operators have done something more than the general welfare has required. The strikers have rejected every proposal not in conformity with their own demands, even repeated offers of arbitration and the counsel of disinterested advisers. Nothing remains but the demonstration of whether their policy of rule or ruin shall prevail. After the punishment of the leaders there will remain the question of the production of coal, and for that there is no substitute.

IN NORTH DAKOTA.

The North Dakota Legislature, in more nearly exact if unofficial terms Mr. TOWNLEY'S Non-Partisan League Legislature, now in special session, is passing bills diminishing the powers of the "insurgent" State officials who rose against the majesty of Mr. TOWNLEY, and made impertinent investigations into two of those mystic and wonderful banks that exist for the benefit of the League and the envy and despair of mere commonplace keepers of the rules and precedents of banking. North Dakota, under the sway of Mr. TOWNLEY and the other apostles of the League, is a peculiar and sacred community, such as the world has not seen before; and an Attorney General and a State Auditor blind to the blessings of a romantic Government that has held peculiar views about banking must expect to be shorn of authority.

The East has not yet heard what punishment has fallen upon the head of Associate Justice ROBINSON of the State Supreme Court, who dared to ask the Legislature the other day to reduce the excessive assessments and tax levies of this year. "There is no possible justification or excuse" for them, he said. "The assessment "is four and one-half times that of "any prior year in the history of the "State." No doubt. In no prior year has the State rushed merrily into all sorts of business enterprise. If North Dakota is to be illuminated by the great Socialist light of the Non-Partisan League, it must expect to pay for the show.

SENATORS FOR WAR.

Two remarkable resolutions dealing with our relations with Mexico were introduced in the Senate on Wednesday—one by Mr. FALL of New Mexico, requesting the President "to with- "draw from VENUSTIANO CARRANZA "the recognition heretofore accorded "him by the United States as Presi- "dent of the Republic of Mexico, and "to sever all diplomatic relations"; the other by Mr. ASHURST of Arizona, directing the Secretary of War to employ the military forces of the United States to protect American citizens on the American side of the border.

In regard to the Ashurst resolution, there are 30,000 cavalry, infantry, and artillery along the border or near it at the present time. The Senator must see with his eyes closed when he says that "the past history of the "War Department is that they [Mex- "ican bandits] may with impunity "and with lawless disregard of our "national rights violate our borders, "and all that will be done will be "that they will be slapped on the "wrist." Senator ASHURST cannot have forgotten that a regiment of infantry, two regiments of cavalry, and a battalion of artillery, under Colonel S. R. H. TOMPKINS, crossed the Rio Grande on June 15 to drive the Villistas out of Juarez; and that on Aug. 18 300 cavalrymen under Captain LEONARD MATLACK rode over into Mexico to run down the bandits who had captured and held for ransom Lieutenants HAROLD G. PETERSON and PAUL H. DAVIS. The slap on the wrist figure of speech is not worthy of a border Senator. The Ashurst resolution need not be taken seriously.

Senator FALL seeks to stiffen his resolution with sensational charges that the Mexican Ambassador in Washington, the Mexican Consul General in New York, and Mexican Consuls in this country "are deliberately "stirring revolutionary troubles, are "engaged in Bolshevist propaganda, "and that their action is indorsed by "VENUSTIANO CARRANZA himself." The Senator declares that "the evidence cannot be controverted." He should produce it. Consul General RAMON DE NEGRI, stationed in this city, and Consul General GARZA ZERTUCHE, at San Francisco, have already answered Mr. FALL'S charges with emphatic denials. Señor ZERTUCHE says that "the commercial interests "of Nogales, Los Angeles, and San "Francisco will bear testimony to the "fact that my efforts have been di- "rected toward harmonizing relations "between the two countries." Ambassador BONILLAS has made a good impression at Washington. If he has been instigating revolt in this country and disseminating Bolshevism, he must be a master of the arts of duplicity. President CARRANZA may not be an intellectual giant, but can he have been so indiscreet as to put himself behind the deviltry that Senator FALL has discovered?

If Mr. FALL, Chairman, by the way, of a sub-committee that has just begun to investigate the Mexicans, can prove his case, it will not be necessary for the Senate to "request" Mr. WILSON to withdraw his recognition of CARRANZA and sever relations with Mexico. Such action, it may be said, is entirely the President's business, although, as HENRY CLAY once said, "he may be quickened in the "exercise of his power by the expres- "sion of the opinion, or by other "acts, of one or both branches of "Congress." If CARRANZA and his diplomatic agents have been guilty of the outrages against a friendly State charged by Senator FALL, Mr. WILSON will not let the grass grow under his feet in proscribing the Mexican Government. Mr. SHIELDS of Tennessee, an anti-Administration Democrat, is so wrought up by the Ashurst resolution that he calls for war with Mexico. He is only more frank than his colleagues from the border States. It is not singular that the Jenkins affair has been seized upon by the interventionists to raid the Administration in an attempt to force the country into war.

MR. BALFOUR ON THE LEAGUE.

Mr. BALFOUR'S speech on Armistice Day has come across the ocean. The most striking point in it is his argument for the League of Nations. He grants the presence of opposition, but asks what the friends of peace have to offer as a substitute. The world has seen what a world war may mean. Times have changed since FREDERICK the Great of Prussia was able to plunge the world into war, a war which reached from Bengal to Canada, and which involved the Iroquois tribes as well as the veteran soldiers of Europe. Outside of the devastated districts the world went on much as before, though the scalping knife of the Huron was busy and WOLFE was tearing Canada from the French Crown. But in this war murder and high prices have reached even to the neutrals, and Argentina has suffered more than Japan.

So Mr. BALFOUR pleads for something that will prevent a recurrence of such a worldwide disaster. He asks for a League of Nations. It is possibly true that the League will not wholly prevent wars of that kind in the future. But, says Mr. BALFOUR, what have you to offer that is better than what we offer? It would be an injustice to him not to quote his own words:

> The League of Nations has had many critics, but I am not aware that among the multitude of criticisms that have been offered any suggestion makes its appearance for finding a substitute for that organization which we desire to see intrusted, I admit, with the great task of preserving the peace of the world. Those who criticise the League of Nations have no substitute for the League of Nations. They are prepared, it seems, for the civilized world to go on in the future as it has gone on in the past, oscillating between those scenes of violence and sanguinary disturbance and the intervals in which great and ambitious nations pile up their armaments for a new effort. To me such an ideal appears to be absolutely intolerable, and I am not prepared, seriously, to discuss with any man what the future of international relations should be unless he is prepared either to accept in some form or another the League of Nations, or to tell me what substitute he proposes for it.

Mr. BALFOUR recognizes the full responsibility of the nations joining in the pact: "All the Powers, and more "especially the Great Powers, on "whose action so much in the near "future must inevitably depend, "should take an equal share of the "burden which I do not for a moment "deny that the League of Nations is "going to throw upon them. If the "description I have given of what "the League of Nations may be has "the slightest truth in it, do you sup- "pose results so tremendous can be "attained without some risk and some "effort? Of course they cannot, and "all the great nations responsible for "this great undertaking should ac- "cept the same risk and be prepared "to make the same effort."

Mr. BALFOUR has spoken as a statesman should, with moderation and yet with force. There have been voices raised in the same tone on this side of the Atlantic, but hitherto they have not prevailed against an old and unreasoning prejudice. We look for better things.

THE KAISER AND ENGLAND.

We have long known that the reason for the particularly bitter hatred against England which obsessed all Germany at the outbreak of the war was the belief, persisting up to the very last moment, that England would stand aside. It has been a German argument that this belief was based on the acts of perfidious Albion herself; that the Government had talked neutrality and finally declared war. The world before this has been able to judge the extent to which typically Teutonic political blindness thus misinterpreted honest efforts to preserve the peace of Europe, and overestimated the influence of pacifism in the British Cabinet and the British nation. And now the publication of secret German archives by KAUTSKY, SCHUECKING and MONTGELAS shows what the Kaiser thought about it—the Kaiser who at any time before Aug. 1 could have prevented the war.

The Kaiser agrees with the whole band of propagandists when he says that "one single sharp and earnest word of warning" from Sir EDWARD GREY would have made war out of the question. But warning to whom? In the Kaiser's opinion, to Paris and Petrograd. If GREY "enjoined neutrality" upon France and Russia, "both would keep quiet at once." The Kaiser, perhaps, did not consciously "will the war" with England. He willed a little war with Serbia; if need be he willed, so far back as July 5, a safe war with Russia. When it became apparent that France would stand by Russia he willed a war with France, thinking he was certain to win. When England stands by France and Russia it is shameless perfidy; the Kaiser did not will the war; but it never entered his head to avoid it by calling off the safe war with Serbia which had started the whole trouble.

On July 30 the Kaiser wrote to BETHMANN HOLLWEG:

> It is now clear to me beyond all doubt that England, Russia and France—on the ostensible ground that they were confronted with our casus foederis toward Russia—have seized upon the Austro-Serbian conflict as a pretext, and have deliberately concerted among themselves to embark upon a war of destruction against us. * * * Either we must basely betray our ally to the mercy of Russia, thereby breaking up the Triple Alliance, or else for our loyalty to our ally we must submit to being set upon and chased by the whole Triple Entente.

That is to say, when the Kaiser refuses to try to calm down his ally, whom he had deliberately incited to war on Serbia three weeks earlier, it is loyalty. When England refuses to abandon her allies whom the Kaiser is about to attack, it is a deliberately concerted war of destruction, and Sir EDWARD GREY is denounced in language more indicative of hatred than of refinement. Surely this is the perfection of truly German reasoning.

MR. HAYS'S PLATFORM.

Speaking at a dinner given by the Republican Women's Executive Committee, our ingenious, clever, and always amiable young friend, Mr. WILL H. HAYS, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, laid down certain policies as those of his party. Some of these are excellent. All of them are safe. Not one of them can justly be said to be more Republican than Democratic. Mr. HAYS's Republicans are to fight socialism, to set up a Federal budget system, to be good to labor and business, to treat as a criminal the criminal, treacherous, revolutionary element, I. W. W., or by whatever other name called, and so on.

All this is safe and sound. At a dinner given by women harmony should be especially harmonious, and no controversial matters should be admitted. In justice to a distinguished political artist, to a born platform-maker, we reprint Mr. HAYS's eirenic and suave words about industrial difficulties, which "will be solved in one "way—by finding exact justice and "enforcing it. It is simply a matter "of ROOSEVELT'S 'square deal,' exact "justice for labor, exact justice for "capital, and exact justice for the "public." Even that cautious walker on eggshells, the late Senator WILLIAM BOYD ALLISON, would have approved this utterance, so beautifully vague, so impossible to fulfill in detail, and therefore so absolutely calculated for platform purposes. The next Republican National Convention can find no better architect of platform resolutions than Mr. HAYS.

He is not to be criticised, but to be commended for whatever of "glittering generalities" he uttered in that fair and distinguished presence: and it is difficult to praise highly enough this generous sentiment, so contrary to the spirit of National Chairmen of other days:

> We attribute honesty of purpose to the opposition, and our message to them is that each party make it its business to see which can go the further in developing plans and executing purposes for the welfare of the people and the glory of the nation. Let this be the real contest between political parties in this country.

It is a noble and fair competition which Mr. HAYS invites. In view of that and of the audience to which he spoke, one hardly feels like reminding him that there was not a word in his speech about the Treaty of Versailles, a subject upon which there is so sharp a difference among Republicans. Yet Mr. HAYS is eager to have the Republican Party "stand first for the faith- "ful, efficient, and honest admin- "istration of the business of the "country." Had the dinner been other than a harmony dinner, where large reservations of silence on delicate questions had to be made, one might have suggested to Mr. HAYS that the first desire of American business, whereof, it seems, the Republican Party is the special guardian, is the immediate ratification of the Treaty of Peace as the condition precedent of the restoration of business certainty and confidence.

FOR A WATERFRONT STREET.

Once upon a time Central Park, which stands high among earth's garden spots, as also the great boulevard along the Hudson, which is probably the most beautiful of its kind in all the world, existed only in the minds of a few dreaming lovers of this island city. Most citizens were reconciled to the cramped ugliness that surrounded them. It might be well if we could hold a civic holiday in memory of those few men of vision; but, lacking that, we may at least pause for five minutes to consider the counsel of those who dream today of a Manhattan that shall be ever more beautiful, more worthy of the salt seas that surround it and the lordly prospects of distant shore and highland.

The laws of 1889 contemplated a continuous marginal street which was to girdle the island at its waterfront. But much of the way led through gaunt business districts and grimy slums, and before their stark reality the vision faded. The laws of 1906 repealed the act of 1889. It is now legally possible for the city to sell for private purposes certain lands that lie within the marginal avenue as contemplated thirty years ago. Controller CRAIG is, however, still held in thrall by the earlier vision, and he is doing his utmost to prevent the sale. Let all who love Central Park, who love the Riverside Drive and the Lafayette Boulevard, give a kindly thought to the possibilities of the waterfront. The proposed sale is to come up before the Sinking Fund Commission, of which Mr. CRAIG is a member. That it should succeed against his counsel is unthinkable.

No one now alive, perhaps, will see that Waterfront Street. Few would take any pleasure in it. As the city stands long stretches of it would be dreary enough. But we have seen too many marvels, even in this generation of Manhattan, ever to despair of its future. There will not always be slums; business districts will not always be grimy. The time must come, and will possibly come much sooner than our dull wits imagine, when the quarters of the poor will put on seemly raiment and the regions of warehouse and factory regain some of the dignity and beauty of the Venetian prime. Meantime, to hold a firm grasp upon all the glorious possibilities of our city is a simple act of piety to those who gave us the splendors we now enjoy.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

"Pussyfoot" Is the Wrong Name.

Prohibitionists on both sides of the water must be viewing with mingled wonder and delight the way in which WILLIAM E. JOHNSON is winning favor for himself, and, incidentally, something not much unlike favor for their cause. Curiously enough, his achievements since his arrival in England have seemed to indicate that his abilities are of a kind quite different from those to be expected in a man who wears, and presumably had earned, the nickname by which he now is known over a considerable fraction of the earth's surface.

Surely there has not been anything "pussyfooted"—that is, anything sly and slinking—in his instant recognition of all the possibilities that lay in the rough joke played on him by the medical students of London, or in his apparently effortless turning of a display of hostility into a fund of popularity on which he can make large drafts and have them all honored. Displaying quite as much wisdom as good temper, he refused to take the attitude of the man with a grievance—an attitude that grows tiresome sooner than any other, no matter how good the grievance may be. Instead of exaggerating his injury—and the loss of an eye is no small matter—he treated it as a petty accident for which nobody was to blame.

In consequence, as he must be suspected of knowing would be the case, the complaints and protests he himself refused to make have been made for him by a public hitherto half hostile and half derisive, and the reparations he did not demand are pressed upon him by the same people and papers that had treated him as a meddlesome foreign crank, impudently endeavoring to change British customs, long established and therefore dear.

This is not to be "pussyfooted"—it is to be a particularly sharp and shrewd person, but one of a sharpness and shrewdness tainted by no unfairness or any tendency to take advantages at the expense of other people.

St. Dunstan's Gets His Fund.

That Mr. JOHNSON has won in England an approval of prohibition as warm as for himself is more than doubtful. By making himself a sort of popular hero, however, almost certainly he has secured for the arguments of himself and his fellow-crusaders a more patient hearing from the Britishers than they otherwise would have given for many a day, if ever.

He cannot be criticised for capitalizing the compunctions aroused by his misfortune, especially as he does not ask for anything—not even an apology—because of it, and it was nothing less than a stroke of genius for him to decline a compensatory purse and suggest that it be given to the St. Dunstan Hostel, the admirable institution founded by Sir ARTHUR PEARSON, a blind man, to be a place where soldiers who lost their eyesight in the war can get the training needed to restore them to self-dependence. That was not less judicious than generous, for the loss of two eyes is a misfortune far more than twice as terrible as the loss of one, and none will fail to appreciate Mr. JOHNSON'S recognition of that fact.

It is evident that Dame Opportunity does not have to knock often or loudly at the door of this American missioner. At her first tap he opens and lets her in—or goes out, takes her by the arm, and goes with her briskly along the road of conquest.

Unless prohibition is a much finer thing than experience as yet has shown it to be, the world is to be congratulated that prohibition has few such propagandists as "Pussyfoot" JOHNSON.

Relation of Motion to Stature.

Professor EDDINGTON, the Cambridge astronomer, told an audience of dons and undergraduates, all eager to be added to the few and fit who can understand the relativity theory of Dr. EINSTEIN, that if a man six feet tall were moving vertically at the rate of 161,000 miles a second, that man would be only three feet tall. But the professor should have gone further. Perhaps he didn't do so because it would have required only simple arithmetic—a mere application of what used to be called, and perhaps is yet, "the rule of three"—to reveal several other consequences of Einsteinism when applied to the six-foot man.

For instance, by one proportion the rate of motion could be found at which the man would have no height at all, but would disappear, leaving even less behind than did the Cheshire cat. By another, with results even more interesting than that, the professor could have shown how fast he is now moving vertically to be or seem six feet tall.

After that, he might have explained what he meant by "vertically"—what right, in expounding relativity, he had to use that word at all unless he set forth carefully to what the verticality was, if to anything. It just couldn't be to nothing—abstract verticality, that is.

Feminine Valor Vindicated.

In defending the past and present peculiarities of woman's dress and her various devices for heightening charms or supplying their lack, Dr. COPELAND, in either wisdom or caution, stuck closely to his own professional field and set no foot in that of the moralists. In other words, he considered the effect on health of all or most of the many articles of feminine accoutrement that have been declared dangerous or fatal by so many of woman's critics, and, on his authority as a veteran practitioner of medicine, said that, so far as he had seen, not one of them did her a bit of harm. On the contrary, he had found her to thrive either because of or in spite of them all, and the one conclusion at which he had been able to arrive—still as a doctor, of course—was that women safely could be allowed to dress exactly as they pleased.

Fortunate and happy conclusion! For that is the way they are going to dress, anyhow.

Now, if the moralists only would make a like examination, not of presumptions but of facts, possibly they, too, might discover that their anxieties as to silk stockings and low-necked gowns come as near to being wholly groundless as Dr. COPELAND says those of his professional brethren have been. As Mr. BUCKLE observed long ago, the moralists are rather too fond of deductive reasoning and not half fond enough of the other kind.

D'ANNUNZIO AND MACBETH.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Captain Sapelli, replying to my letter in THE TIMES, says that I claim as a point of similarity between d'Annunzio and Macbeth "that each is a super-poet who is at the same time a bloodthirsty tyrant and a traitor to his friends."

I mentioned several characteristics of Macbeth, but in saying that he and the master of Fiume "seemingly had more in common" than the gift of poetic expression, I did not explicitly assert, or even mean to imply, that each possessed all the attributes of the other. I did not, for instance, call d'Annunzio a superpoet, though I did so term Macbeth, who as a bard excels d'Annunzio to just the extent that Shakespeare does. As a poet, d'Annunzio's position is high, and firmly fixed, and I am nowise disposed to assail it.

But when it comes to the question of loyalty to one's friends, he is his own accuser, or I have misread "Il Fuoco." Captain Sapelli compares him with Byron, who, he says, was "kind." To the heroine of that romance d'Annunzio was not merely "less than kind," but infinitely more than cruel.

The comparison with Byron is plausible. But Byron's fatal adventure in Greece was, to say the least, not a chauvinistic undertaking. He did not sap the loyalty of British troops to their Government, or bring his country to the verge of foreign war and civil strife at a time when the whole world's most urgent need was peace. Those who would disparage the great English poet's manly ending say that he was a sated voluptuary, who sought to atone for a wasted youth by a glorious death. His last poem—one of his finest, by the way—might seem to lend color to this contention. But I do not suspect Captain Sapelli of drawing this particular parallel. He may well leave that to his hero's detractors.

The point of my letter was that the phrase "the poet in action" seemed to connote violence—that it was not till the "impassioned war orator" and "daring aviator" became a potential shedder of blood that he was so characterized.

Apropos of aerial warfare: Captain Sapelli speaks of d'Annunzio's "fellow aces." An ace is an airman (usually a pilot, not an observer, as d'Annunzio is) who has brought down at least six enemy machines. I have never heard of d'Annunzio bringing down even one.

To turn to a more serious matter: Captain Sapelli fails to name "the most corrupt plutocracy in the history of the world," which has left Fiume to its fate. Is it Italy, France, England, or the United States? Or is it all four of these great powers? JOSEPH B. GILDER.

The Brooklyn Traction Question.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In this morning's TIMES there appears an editorial article headed "The Brooklyn Fare Disorders," in which you state (no doubt inadvertently) that "the company is already in receivership," thereby plainly intimating that the company in question is one of the subsidiaries of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system, of which I am the receiver. A similar intimation or statement is contained in the latest public utterance emanating from the Mayor's office. The fact is that the fare controversy in question is one relating to the Brooklyn City Railroad Company, which has no connection whatever with the B. R. T. system since its severance therefrom, and over which the B. R. T. receiver has no jurisdiction whatever. The importance to be attached to your article and to the statement of the Mayor, each containing this mistaken assumption or statement, is not with reference to the subject matter dealt with, but because it tends to create and to continue a baseless prejudice in respect of the entire traction situation. This situation must be dealt with properly and in an impartial and unprejudiced manner if any useful solution is to be reached.

No reply was made to the erroneous statement made by the Mayor because it is obvious that he is treating the entire situation on the basis of politics and is not interested in the ascertainment or statement of the truth. I assume, on the contrary, that you realize that this whole subject matter and the proper solution of this vexed question must come from a sober, sane, and considerate study by those who will give impartial and unprejudiced consideration to it. This cannot be obtained if public opinion is inflamed senselessly and if those who are engaged in that occupation receive the assistance of high-class newspapers and good citizens, whose real interests imperatively demand a proper settlement of this question.

In respect of the controversy in question I have no knowledge, and unfortunately have not the capacity to form judgments without knowledge; and, as it does not concern my duties, it is improper for me to attempt to deal with the subject matter of your editorial otherwise than to correct the mistaken intimation therein.

LINDLEY M. GARRISON, Receiver.

THE GREAT HOUR.

From the peaks, drifting,
Dies the last light.
Dark pinions, lifting,
Fill all heaven's height.
Down droop the wind's wings,
Still falls the lea.
Hills melt and merge, and calmly
Slumbers the sea.

Born of the last, slow
Smile of the day,
Earliest stars glow,
Faint—far away;
Jewels of tears shed
For Beauty passed,
As o'er the veiled body
Night croons at last.

Day for Life's living,
The night for sleep.
Day for full giving,
Night ours to keep.
After the day's wage
'Gainst men and odds,
Forth fares the quiet sleeper,
One with the gods!

Yet in that pause 'tween
Sundown and night,
Some thing is felt—seen,
Pregnant with might!
Some thing the soul knows,
Out of some past:
Peace!—as of perfect being,
There at the last!

URGES JURY ON MEMORIAL.

Woman's Municipal League Opposes Mayor's Committee.

The Woman's Municipal League joined yesterday in the protest against the methods of the Mayor's Committee which is deciding upon the city's war memorial. Resolutions calling for "an open competition of ideas" on the memorial and "a competent jury," with leading artists and architects among the members, to decide upon the form of the memorial, were passed at a luncheon of the league at the McAlpin.

Albert S. Bard of the Municipal Art Society told the league that the matter was being decided upon by "oligarchies of self-appointed men," repeating a phrase by which Henry Morgenthau had referred to the city government.

"Many suggestions for the memorial have been made," said Mr. Bard, "such as a bridge across the Hudson, a great art centre, the development of a new civic centre downtown, houses for soldiers and sailors, and a new park. The city has a committee to make the final choice. Who composes it? Whom do they represent? The people have been unable to learn anything about the committee or what it has done, or what it proposes to do. This is a subject which is near to the hearts of the people. We want to see a memorial which the people may look to with pride.

"There was a meeting at City Hall recently at which ten of the leading city societies were represented. Yet none of these societies had been notified of the meeting. They had learned of it by chance.

"Our suggestion for a competition of ideas has received very little encouragement from the city government. Isn't such a competition the sensible way of going about it?"

Mr. Morgenthau said that the independents in politics were going to rule in the Presidential elections in 1920, and that they would dominate in the city elections in 1921. "The help of the women will be needed to prevent corrupt government in this city," he said.

Henry H. Curran, President-elect of the Borough of Manhattan, said that the league had been a great power for social service legislation. Miss Katherine B. Davis advised the women to be independent in city elections. "I do not favor a woman's party," she said. "The women should tie up with one of the political organizations so far as national politics are concerned. In city politics, however, they should join in all nonpolitical movements for the city's betterment." William J. Schieffelin said that corruption in the city government had pitiful results for the poor, and called upon the women to vote it out.

ROBS GANGRENE OF TERRORS

Rockefeller Foundation Reports on Progress Made with Serum.

A permanent contribution to the prevention and cure of gas gangrene incident to industrial accidents is noted as one of the important achievements of the Rockefeller Institute in the seventh chapter of the Rockefeller Foundation's report, made public yesterday.

The report tells how the laboratories of the institute were equipped specially for war work when this country began hostilities, and how all its resources were placed at the disposal of the Surgeon General, and continues:

"At the time of the cessation of hostilities the control of gaseous gangrene appeared near at hand. The investigation carried out at the institute on that subject under the appropriation from the Foundation for war research opened the way for the production of an antiserum not only for the gas bacillus (B. Welchii), but also for other anaerobic bacteria occurring in cultivated soils, which often accompanied the gas bacillus in wounds and intensified its destructive action.

"Experiments to enlarge the therapeutic properties of the anti-gaseous gangrene serum so as to include the other bacterial species mentioned are so well advanced that it is safe to conclude that a permanent addition has been made to the measures now available for preventing gaseous gangrene, or for curing it when it arises in connection with the industrial and other accidents of civil life."

The report reviews its familiar development of the Carrel-Dakin method of treating infected wounds which found such wide wartime application, telling in detail how the method was taught to large numbers of physicians and nurses in a special portable base hospital built on the institute's grounds.

Nearly half a million doses of serum were prepared during the year and distributed, these being for the treatment of dysentery, meningitis, and pneumonia.

ART NOTES.

Emil Pares Collection on View at American Galleries.

At the American Art Galleries the collection of the veteran antiquarian dealer, Emil Pares of Paris and New York, is on view prior to its sale next week. Mr. Pares has sold many a treasure to museums and private collectors and in this immense group, which contains his personal possessions as well as the stock from the galleries from which he is retiring, are many things for which collectors will compete.

There are big things, such as the Hispano Moresque Vargueno, or cabinet of the sixteenth century, amusing and practical with its secret drawers and convenient storage space, and splendid with wrought iron and crimson velvet. But there also are little things, tables and desks made for the French houses of the eighteenth century when it was fashionable to be intimate and small instead of public and extensive. There are noble laces and handsome printed cottons. There are ivories, enamels, brasses and marble sculpture. There is everything that falls into the hands of the expert antiquarian. The things ought to be widely dispersed if only for their example. Who could fail to feel a salutary dissatisfaction with the modern dyes—even, or perhaps especially, those brewed before the war—if permitted a daily sight of these apple green and crimson velvets of the Renaissance. Every modern color known falls dead when they come into a room. And what maker of gates and grills could come back from his shop to see even a lock and key from Renaissance France or a door-nail from Spain of the sixteenth century and not learn his lesson? The makers and sellers and buyers of decorative and industrial art should visit this kind of exhibition as they visit a museum, and the least of them should find a way to own a little of it, because the value of art never is completely felt until you own some fragment.

The collection is not, however, one to tempt the bargain hunter. It will be an important sale, as New York is rich in collectors of just the type of objects offered, and in the mood to acquire them.

The pictures for the most part serve only decorative purposes, but there are some of excellence. A beautiful little "Virgin and Child" given to Adrian Isenbrandt is glowing in color and rich in sentiment. The primitive landscape is dotted with entertaining detail.

CUT CRYSTAL LUSTRES, $800

First Day's Sale of Karl Freund Antiques Yields $12,727.

Cut crystal lustres of the eighteenth century brought one of the best prices at the sale of the Karl Freund antiques at Delmonico's yesterday, going to Mrs. Ward Douglas for $800. An interesting lot of printed French linen, designed for Vera, went to Miss Elsie de Wolfe for $282, and an interesting overstuffed sofa, covered with Portuguese linen, went to T. L. Onativia, agent for a Philadelphia buyer, for $725, with a pair of Directoire cabinets for $520. One of the biggest purchasers of the day was F. L. Richardson of the Herter Looms, who bought thirty-three art objects at a total of $3,649. Returns for the day were $12,727.

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin and Mrs. E. A. Shewan were other buyers, and among well-known women present were Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Stephen Olin, Mrs. Ernest Iselin, and Mrs. J. Low Harriman.

BIG OPERATIONS OF YEAR

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Condemning unionization of Government employes, Postmaster General Burleson, in his annual report made public today, again urged repeal of the law of Aug. 24, 1912, which has been construed as permitting Federal workers to affiliate with labor organizations. He says:

"I again call the attention of Congress to the impropriety of Government employes owing allegiance to any organization which might stand between them and the Government, and to the actual menace to Governmental authority which is involved in such affiliation."

Mr. Burleson states that "enforcement of the principle that Government employes should not hold an affiliation incompatible with their obligation to the public service cannot be distorted into a reflection upon the efficiency and loyalty of the postal employes whose devotion to public duty under the trying test of war was conspicuously demonstrated," but adds that "the principle is one which cannot be prudently disregarded."

The avowed purpose of labor organizations, according to the report, is not alone to advance the social and economic welfare of members of their order, but also to exercise a coercive influence upon the employer to compel submission to their demands. It is for the purpose of coercion that strikes and boycotts are resorted to, says Mr. Burleson, and the Government of the United States is not to be attacked or resisted by any citizen of the land.

"It can be only upon the assumption that the Government is unjust, tyrannical, and compliant to force alone that the contention can be sustained that Government employes require the support of an outside organization to compel the Government to respect their rights and do them justice.

"Organizations which sanction strike and boycott serve the private interests of the members of the order. The labor organizations are formed as a defense against employers. When the employer is the Government of the United States such an association of its employes is aimed at the Government and in inconsistent with the performance of public service.

"Whatever interest labor may claim in the products of its toil, it cannot be claimed for Government employes that they acquire a larger interest or greater power in the Government than that of other citizens because of the character of their employment. They have no right to make an excuse of their public employment for dictating public policy or interfering with the orderly processes of Government.

"There is one federation—'one big union'—formed to promote the welfare of its members, to which they in common with all other American citizens owe allegiance. All organizations within the jurisdiction of this union must be subordinate to it and obligated to support it—the Government."

According to the report, the Post Office earned $364,847,126 in the year ended June 30, and, as expenses were calculated at $362,497,635 (an increase of 11.59 per cent. over the preceding year), the Department returned a surplus of $2,349,490. The revenue from the air mail service contributed $194,831.50, being operated at a profit of $28,428.98.

The Postmaster General reiterates his conviction that Governmental operation of the telegraph and telephone systems was the only thing. He adds that the recent experience along this path "afforded no test of the virtues of Government ownership of this service," but doesn't tell why it did not.

A feature of the report, interesting to New York, is the Postmaster General's request for an appropriation of $1,500,000 "to enable the Department to commence construction without delay of a tunnel between the Grand Central Post Office station and the terminal Post Office at the Pennsylvania Railroad Station in New York City."

Mr. Burleson reports that the project of a tunnel was the subject of an exhaustive report by engineers in April, 1918, which stated that the plan was entirely practical. Mr. Burleson points out that the tunnel would operate in a section where there is much street traffic congestion and would afford a real test of the utility of the underground methods of distributing mail. He said that Secretary Baker had been asked to detail one or more army engineers to make a thorough study of the subject.

The report relates the work of the Department during the war, says that wages paid employes have been materially increased, and repeats the request that Congress provide a retiring fund for employes whose years in the service have lessened their efficiency.

REVENUE LAW'S BIG YIELD.

Total of Six Billion in a Year Estimate by Roper.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—

MISS ALICE THAYER WEDS M. C. IVISON

HER SISTERS ATTENDANTS

The wedding of Maynard C. Ivison, a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Crane Ivison of 12 West Forty-eighth Street, and Miss Alice R. Thayer, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin B. Thayer, was solemnized yesterday afternoon at the residence of the bride's parents, 46 East Seventy-ninth Street, the Rev. Father Mangin of St. Patrick's Cathedral performing the ceremony.

The bride, whose father gave her in marriage, wore a white satin gown trimmed with lace and a veil of old point lace held with orange blossoms. She carried orchids and lilies of the valley. Miss Marie Thayer, her sister's maid of honor, and Mrs. Douglas Gibbons, another sister, were in blue taffeta and blue tulle hats, and the other attendants, Mrs. Reginald Hutchinson and the Misses Katherine Hutchins, Katherine Porter and Sarah Townsend, were in mauve taffeta with mauve tulle hats.

Arthur C. Crunden of St. Louis was the best man, and the ushers were Douglas Gibbons, Sterling H. Ivison, a cousin of the bridegroom, R. Ryland Sizer, Jr., John Englis, Oliver B. James, Robert F. Holden, Walter R. Wolf, and Pierrepont D. Schreiber. The wedding reception followed at the St. Regis.

Mr. Ivison, who was a member of the 1918 class at Yale, served overseas a year as a Lieutenant in the field artillery.

McNeil—Tower.

The marriage of Walter William McNeil, formerly of Springfield, Ill., and Miss Isabella Lowry Tower, daughter of the late David A. Tower and of Mrs. Tower of 151 West Seventy-ninth Street, took place yesterday at the home of the bride's mother, the Rev. Dr. MacRossie of St Andrew's Methodist Episcopal Church officiating. The bride, in orchid colored velvet and carrying white orchids, was attended only by her sister, Mrs. Walter G. Dannreuther, and Dr. Dannreuther was Mr. McNeil's best man. None except relatives were present.

GREET THREE DEBUTANTES.

Mrs. D. Hunter McAlpin of 3 East Fifty-fourth Street entertained at the Colony Club yesterday with a luncheon of thirty-five covers for her débutante daughter, Miss Geraldine R. McAlpin, and her niece, Miss Margaret Strong, a granddaughter of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., who has for some years lived in Italy and who will return to Italy before the Christmas holidays.

The guests were chiefly débutantes, and included the Misses Julia McM. Bartlett, Sophie Duer, Margaret de Forest, Mary H. Flagler, Myra T. Fraser, Alice Goddard, Sylvia Hillhouse, Polly Lincoln, Gladys Livermore, Laura Mabon, Martha Lambert, Katherine Keogh, Katharine Knapp, Constance Kings, Ruth Lanier, Elizabeth Mann, Alice Marden, Routh Ogden, Adelaide Schinelander, Mary Strange, Lucy Train, Clara Workum, Margaret Trimble, Grace Vanderbilt, Katherine Van Ingen, Virginia Van Ingen, Marion Hodenpyl, Katharine Bliss, Elizabeth Clarke, Helen Cummings, Martha Jarman, and Elizabeth Whiting.

Miss Cameron Edson, a great-granddaughter of Franklin Edson, at one time Mayor of New York, made her début yesterday at a reception given for her by her mother, Mrs. R. Stewart Edson, at her residence, 324 West 103d Street. The Misses Lydia Comstock, Dorothea Hall, and Hope Kingsley assisted Mrs. Edson and her daughter to receive the guests. Mrs. Charles Henry Ropes, Mrs. William Chester, Mrs. Harry L. Hamlin, and Mrs. Arthur Van Brunt poured tea. Mrs. Edson will give a dance for her daughter on New Year's Eve at the Cosmopolitan Club.

DAY DRIVE FOR $42,000,000.

Episcopal Campaign's Object Is to Raise Clergymen's Salaries.

If tomorrow's one-day drive for $42,000,000 is successful, salaries of Episcopal clergymen are to be boosted so that the minimum shall be $1,500 a year. Preparations for this upward revision are being made in every diocese contingent upon the success of the collection which is to be the climax of the Episcopal Nation-Wide Campaign.

Many clergymen have been found to be earning less than a carpenter or even a day laborer. A survey of the Episcopal provinces of New England, the Mid-West and the Pacific showed that of a total of 1,427 clergymen of all grades, 671 were receiving $1,500 or less a year; eighty-four, $1,000 or less; fifty-three, $750 or less, and twenty-eight, less than $500. Of the 756 who receive $1,500 or more, 308 receive between $1,500 and $2,000; 157 between $2,000 and $2,500, and seventy-one between $2,500 and $3,000; leaving 143 who receive more than that amount, and seventy-seven from whom no information was obtained.

Bryn Mawr Fund Benefit Tonight.

A concert and dance for the benefit of the Bryn Mawr Endowment Fund will be held tonight at the Plaza. Miss Helena Marsh, Mlle. Renee Chollet, and Miss Maud Morgan are the artists who will appear. A donation of $1,000 has been offered the fund if the Chairman of the affair, Miss Dagmar Perkins, will give a group of French recitations.

First Aid to Treasurers

TREASURERS of various organizations have frequently found that in placing their funds with us they have greatly expedited the carrying out of the functions of their offices, increased efficiency and relieved themselves of a burden of unnecessary financial detail.

REFUSES TO LET PUBLIC VIEW MR. FRICK'S BODY

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 4.—A train bearing the body of Henry Clay Frick arrived here this morning, stopping at Homewood, where the special car was detrained on a siding. At the station the members of the Frick family were met by a few close friends, among them Asa P. Childs, brother of Mrs. Frick; his son, W. S. Childs; Miss Mary Painter, an intimate friend of Miss Helen C. Frick; Dawson Painter, David Fraser, Superintendent of Clayton for twenty-three years, and John J. Gerlach, for many years chauffeur for Mr. Frick.

The funeral services tomorrow will be in charge of the Rev. Mr. Van Etten, rector of Calvary Episcopal Church, and will be private. The honorary pallbearers will be United States Senator Philander C. Knox, Andrew W. Mellon and R. B. Mellon, members of the banking firm in which Mr. Frick was a heavy stockholder and a Director; Henry C. McElhowney, President of the Union Trust Company; William W. Smith, Asa P. Childs, John P. Grier, and Judge Joseph Buffington of the United States Circuit Court.

Thousands of Mr. Frick's friends were disappointed today because of the refusal of Childs Frick, his son, to allow the public to view the body. Indignation was expressed that the son of a man who loved to call Pittsburgh his home and to count thousands of its inhabitants as his friends, should refuse such a privilege. It was said that Asa P. Childs, brother of Mrs. Frick, was in favor of opening the Frick residence for two hours today to allow a public view, and officials of the Union Trust Company, who have charge of the funeral, were about to do this when they received a telephone message from Childs Frick in New York, saying that in no account must the public be admitted to the house.

It was said in Pittsburgh today, although none of the men in charge of the funeral would admit it that only those who were invited were allowed to see the body in New York, and much surprise was expressed here over the rumor. It is known that only about one hundred out of the many thousands of friends and associates of Mr. Frick in New York were at the services in New York. The same secrecy is being manifested over the will of the financier, and it is not known tonight when it will be read or filed in court.

War Pictures at Public Library.

The collection of enlarged photographs of the war taken by the Signal Corps of the army will be shown to army officers and their friends at the Public Library today. Former officers not in uniform can get passes from the Signal Officer on Governors Island. The pictures, which are said to be the finest collection of their kind in existence, will be exhibited to the pubic at the library for two weeks, starting next Monday.

Alexander's Name Goes to Senate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—President Wilson today sent to the Senate the nomination of Joshua V. Alexander of Missouri to be Secretary of Commerce, succeeding William C. Redfield, resigned.

JOSEPH FLISS, President of the Federal Waist Company, died yesterday afternoon in Flower Hospital of an affliction of the stomach. He lived at 526 East Fifth Street and was 32 years old.

The Rev. CYRUS M. PERRY, Chaplain of the old 24th New York Cavalry in the civil war, dropped dead Wednesday evening at his home in Elliston, Conn. He was 80 years old.

MRS. SHONTS BRINGS SUIT.

Action Begun Against Mrs. Thomas, Named in Husband's Will.

Mrs. Milla D. Shonts, widow of Theodore P. Shonts, filed suit in the Supreme Court yesterday against Mrs. Amanda C. Thomas, who inherited the residuary estate under the will of the Interborough Rapid Transit President. The paper was served on Mrs. Thomas at the photograph gallery at 597 Fifth Avenue, of which she is President.

Only a summons was filed, and the nature of the action was not stated. George W. Files, who, with Warren Dixon, has represented Mrs. Shonts in her litigation over the estate, said he and Mr. Dixon had decided to make no statement as to the basis for the suit until they serve the complaint, which will be drawn next week.

He also declined to say whether the action was for personal damages, seeking reparation for an alleged injury to Mrs. Shonts during the lifetime of her husband.

It was not believed any of the property left by Mr. Shonts figures in the case, because Mrs. Thomas in the proceedings in the Surrogate's Court, said that all the property turned over to her by Mr. Shonts during his life, the ownership of which has been questioned by Mrs. Shonts, has been delivered to the Guaranty Trust Company, the temporary administrator, pending the will contest. Ownership of this will be decided in the Surrogate's Court rather than in the Supreme Court.

If the action is brought to recover damages on the ground that because of acts by Mrs. Thomas, Mr. Shonts's affection for his wife was lessened, it will be the first of the kind in the local courts in recent years.

Mr. Files said he would apply to have the Surrogate's Court strike out of the record of the proceedings there all references by executors of the will to alleged deception by Mrs. Shonts in having herself originally appointed administratrix.

"KOPPERS" SEABOARD COKE
Burn Coke
KEEP WARM—KEEP CLEAN—SAVE MONEY
"Koppers" Seaboard Coke

It is by far the cleanest and most economical fuel on the market today. Its use will mean a warm, evenly heated house with no smoke, soot, dirt or gases. Furthermore, it will mean a substantial saving in your fuel expense, in addition to giving you greater heating efficiency.

"Koppers" Seaboard Coke should not be confounded with ordinary gas coke. "Koppers" Coke is made from a selected mixture of superior coals by the by-product coking process, which removes all impurities. It is practically pure carbon—the heat element—contains more heat units and goes farther, pound for pound, than any other fuel. It kindles quickly, warms the house rapidly, is easy to handle and gives a clean fire, leaving no ashes worth sifting —no clinkers.

Can be used in Any Furnace, Heater or Range suitable for burning hard coal without any change and positively will not burn out grates or linings.

The Five Layers to Comfort

There is no doubt about the Dr. A. Reed Cushion Shoes being the most comfortable shoes on earth—it is a conceded fact. But what makes them so comfortable?

The answer is the patented, built-in cushion, a cushion of five layers, so uniquely devised that its presence is totally unknown from without. This cushion withstands all shocks and jolts from hard pavements, makes your step free, easy and light, and provides a soft, comfortable resting place for your feet.

SENATORS OPPOSE BIG EXPENDITURES

REFER TO MEXICAN CRISIS

Several Senators Have Agreed to Talk Appropriation Bills to Death, Asserts Mr. Smoot.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Demand that the utmost economy be observed in Government expenditures was made in the Senate today by Republican and Democratic leaders during a discussion of the financial situation. The possibility of war with Mexico was mentioned, and it was pointed out that this would entail enlarged appropriations.

In submitting estimates of Government expenditures for the fiscal year 1921 to the Senate, Senator Warren, Republican, of Wyoming, Chairman of the Appropriations Committee, pointed out that the aggregate exceeds by more than $900,000,000 the regular appropriations for the current fiscal year of 1920.

Every branch of the Government, Mr. Warren said, had asked for more money for next year, except the Navy. While the regular appropriations for this year aggregated $3,035,151,733, the estimates for 1921 called for $3,440,002,279, an increase of $404,850,546.

Besides the regular appropriations, Mr. Warren said, there must be counted in for 1921 the permanent yearly appropriation of $1,425,407,752, which would increase the budget to $4,865,000,000. The aggregate for the fiscal year 1920, he explained, had been $7,272,000,000, including a permanent appropriation of $1,968,000,000, deficiencies aggregating $1,141,931,260.99 and miscellaneous aggregating $1,126,468,632.41.

To meet the aggregate expenditures for next year, Senator Warren said, it would probably be necessary to increase revenues to $6,035,000,000.

Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, declared Congress would not provide the money requested in the estimates, adding that several Senators had agreed to talk bills to death, if necessary. He urged that the War Risk Insurance Bureau be abolished and that many of the Government employes in Washington be discharged, asserting that the "number had been increasing instead of decreasing since the war ended."

Chairman Wadsworth of the Military Committee pointed out that the army estimates of $982,000,000 were $200,000,000 more than this year's appropriations and apparently were based on a peace-time army of 500,000 men.

PUTS DISCONTENT ON LABOR

F. P. Fish Finds Wages Increased Out of Proportion to Living Costs.

Industrial unrest was the subject of a paper read yesterday by Frederick P. Fish, Chairman of the Industrial Conference Board, at a meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers at the Engineering Building. Mr. Fish said the labor unions were taking advantage of the dissatisfaction and mental disturbance of wage earners fostered by the war.

"It is most unfortunate," he said, "that at a time when the utmost efficiency in production and distribution are essential not only to the progress of the world but to its immediate well being, there should be anything except the most harmonious relations between management and wage earners in industry. I believe that the situation is far worse than seems to be the case."

Mr. Fish declared that on the whole and individually the efficiency and productive power of American workmen was less than before the war. He said wages had increased 110 per cent. since 1914, and that the cost of living had not increased more than 75 per cent. He found that managers in charge of labor were convinced that the individual workman was only 40 per cent. as productive.

CHARGES ATTEMPT TO WRECK TRANSIT

Howard Elliott Tells Insurance Men Investors in Roads Now Number 1,250,000.

Fair play for the transportation systems of our cities and our country on the questions of revenue and development was urged by Guy Eastman Tripp, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Westinghouse Corporation, and Howard Elliott, President of the Northern Pacific Railroad, in papers yesterday before the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, in the Hotel Astor. They took the position that the prosperity of the country was commensurate with the prosperity and development of its railroads, and warned the public seriously to consider the transit situation.

President Elliott spoke of the national necessity of an efficient transportation machine. He said that unless provision were made for continuous development, the cost of living would mount still higher. One hopeful factor, he believed, was that the people seemed to have decided they preferred transportation furnished by its owners rather than by the Government.

The public should keep in mind, he said, that the stocks and bonds of the American railroads were in its hands, adding that the old idea of the systems as being owned by a few great financiers was erroneous. The people, he said, had a vital interest in the financial success of the lines.

Mr. Elliott said the deficit of the country's railroads this year might total $350,000,000.

1,250,000 Railway Owners.

"Stock outstanding in the hands of the public at the end of 1917," he said, "was $9,045,000,000, held by 647,689 stockholders, with an average holding of $13,966. It is thought there are as many bondholders as stockholders, so there probably are 1,250,000 owners of this great machine."

Mr. Tripp discussed the plight of street railroads, and told of the investigations of the Committee of One Hundred, of which he was a member, appointed by the President to study the electric road situation. The main task confronting the nation in this problem was the restoration and preservation of credit, he asserted.

"At present the credit of electric railways is non-existent," he said. "The reason is apparent. More than a sixth of the total electric railway mileage of the country is in the hands of receivers. A large additional number of companies are on the verge of bankruptcy. The prosperous electric railways, if there be such, are so few as to be negligible. The electric railway industry nearly suffered annihilation through conditions caused by the war. Back of this is the important fact that the industry, by reason of restrictions in statute law, in ordinances and in franchises, is unable to take measures to save itself from the fate which events show to be imminent."

Whether new capital could be attracted again to local transportation utilities was not to be solved by State or municipal bodies, but by the man who had capital to invest, he went on. Laying down as basic principles involved in restoring credit the assurance of return on the investment and the guarantee of the investment's integrity, Mr. Tripp believed that from them could be built a practical, workable plan to govern the relations between utilities and communities.

COL. RAND MAY JOIN INQUIRY.

Reported That He Will Be Asked to Serve with George Gordon Battle.

Developments yesterday in connection with proposed investigations by the Extraordinary Grand Jury indicated that the controversy over legal assistance would be amicably adjusted in a few days and that George Gordon Battle would be one of two chief inquisitors. The other, it was intimated, may be Colonel William Rand, Jr., who served in the war as Judge Advocate. He has recently returned from military duty.

While the names of ex-Governors Charles S. Whitman and Charles E. Hughes, ex-Justice Francis M. Scott, and William Travers Jerome had been mentioned, it appeared that Colonel Rand's appointment had been agreed upon, if he would accept. Whoever the additional counsel may be, he and Mr. Battle will take part in all of the jury proceedings as equals. A juror who had suggested the name of Mr. Rand said:

"The jury voted unanimously to begin the investigations, and the jury is unanimous in the determination to resolve this work into an absolute business proposition. We have the greatest regard for the ability and integrity of Mr. Battle, and it in no way reflects upon his character and splendid attainments to say that we think an associate is required to work with him.

"Personally, I think this is the chance for Mr. Battle to make himself one of the biggest men in his city and the State. As one result of his work with the jury there may come to him a personal reward in the form of public honor or office, should he care to make use of the opportunity when his task is completed."

CUMMINS DEFENDS ANTI-STRIKE CLAUSE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—After speaking three days, Senator Cummins, Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, concluded late today a detailed explanation of his railroad bill, designed to meet conditions with the return of the roads to private ownership and control.

Discussing the anti-strike provision of the measure, as proposed by the committee, Senator Cummins declared "there had been an industrious effort to misrepresent the bill." He denied that it interfered in any way with railway employes or officials who desired to quit work.

Emphasizing that he was not opposed to labor organizations, Senator Cummins said the committee, in inserting the anti-strike section felt that "the civilization of America cannot continue or endure unless organized society can find some plan to preserve industrial peace and order." President Wilson's message to Congress Tuesday, he declared, was a direct indorsement of the proposed legislation.

A number of Senators have announced that they would speak on the bill. Much sentiment developed today in favor of curtailing general debate so as to hasten the bill, but Senate leaders said no plan of procedure had been determined.

Gives $100,000 House to Legion.

NINETY-SIX U. S. SENATORS SHOWN IN ETCHINGS.

The United States Senate, each one of the ninety-six Senators, all etched from the latest photographs, comprises one feature of this week's MID-WEEK PICTORIAL, now on news stands; the Senators are divided into the groups as they voted on the Peace Treaty—a souvenir worth preserving. The same issue also contains a full-page etching of the Irish Parliament in session—the famous Parliament of 1790, with true likenesses of its historical personages. The London-Paris Tunnel is another feature. There are twenty-four pages of rotogravure etchings of big events, all for 10 cents.—Advt.

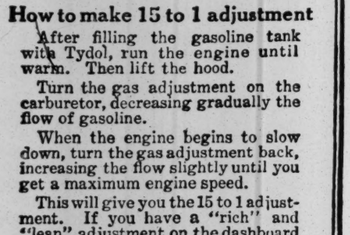
Out on Riverside Drive you need power and pickup for every little traffic emergency

What really explodes in your engine



With Sluggish Gas: 8 parts of air to 1 part of gasoline
With TYDOL Gas: 15 parts of air to 1 part of gasoline

How to make 15 to 1 adjustment

After filling the gasoline tank with Tydol, run the engine until warm. Then lift the hood.

When the engine begins to slow down, turn the gas adjustment back, increasing the flow slightly until you get a maximum engine speed.

This will give you the 15 to 1 adjustment. If you have a "rich" and "lean" adjustment on the dashboard you can use an even leaner adjustment than the above.

On hills and in traffic use the rich dash adjustment; on the level or in the country use the lean.

Tydol will operate on the rich mixture needed by inferior gasoline. But Tydol is made so you can use the 15 to 1 mixture—less fuel and more air.

That's when you need fast pickup

WITH an omnibus on your right, sedan in front of you, a roadster behind you—that's when you need fast pickup.

What if your engine does not respond, but sings out a chorus of knocks? Don't ask it to work on sluggish gasoline. Much of such fuel does not vaporize. Gummy and sticky residue clogs up the valves, soots up the spark plugs, binds in the piston rings.

Troubles, poor mileage, repairs from this cause can be left behind. Fill up with Tydol, the Economy Gasoline.

Tydol vaporizes fast. Every drop turns into live power at the piston heads, stretching out the long miles, giving you action on hills and in crowded highways. No impurities to gum the engine that uses Tydol gasoline.

After your tank is filled with Tydol have your dealer make the 15 to 1 carburetor adjustment. (See at the left.) Tydol is specially made to run strong and smoothly on this famous lean mixture. That's why it spins out the extra miles to the gallon, picks up in a pinch and tops hills on high.

DECLARED IN CONTEMPT

Punishment Awaits Return of Chairman and May Be Delayed Till Legislature Meets.

Dr. Michael Mislig of 155 East Eightieth Street, until Wednesday Treasurer of the Russian Socialist Federation in America, was declared in contempt yesterday by the Lusk legislative committee investigating seditious activities, when, as a witness before that body, he declined to divulge who were the members of the Executive Committee of the Federation. Dr. Mislig had admitted that as Treasurer of the organization he was a member of the Executive Committee and could have answered the question, but declared himself not disposed to help the legislative committee "hunt down" men whom he regarded as innocent of any wrongdoing.

From the testimony given yesterday by Dr. Mislig it became evident that the Russian Socialist Federation, which has gone over to the Communist Party and is in thorough accord wth the principles enunciated by Nikolai Lenin, has transferred its activities underground. Dr. Mislig when questioned regarding the address of the Federation headquarters declared that to the best of his knowledge it had no headquarters at present, and that no meetings were being held, even though the organization had not gone out of business. The testimony also showed that the function of Dr. Mislig as Treasurer of the organization had ceased on Wednesday, when he had been instructed to transfer all the funds of the Federation in his possession and had withdrawn the entire balance on deposit at the Corn Exchange Bank. Dr. Mislig testified that this had been done for fear the committee might seize the Federation's sinews of war.

No Action as to Punishment.

No action was taken by the committee yesterday to punish Dr. Mislig for contempt. It was stated last night by Assemblyman Louis M. Martin of Oneida, Vice Chairman of the committee, who presided at yesterday's hearing and declared Dr. Mislig in contempt, that no action would be taken until the return of Senator Clayton R. Lusk, the Chairman, from Europe next week and possibly not until the Legislature meets after Jan. 1, when summary action, without intervention of the courts, would be in order.

Dr. Mislig testified that the Executive Committee was composed of fifteen members and that it elected its chairman at each meeting. The witness testified also that the committee was "not in existence at the moment."

Q. Will you give us the names of the members? A. I could give you the name of the Secretary, Oscar Tyverowsky—he is a member.

Q. Who are the others? A. I decline to answer.

The witness was warned by Deputy Attorney General Samuel A. Berger, who was examining him, to answer, unless he could refuse on the ground that his answer would tend to incriminate or degrade him.

"I personally do not feel that there is anything in my actions that could incriminate me," said the Doctor. "I know you think differently. You call things by different names than I call them. But why should I help you in hunting down men whom I personally know to be innocent of any crime? If you can do it, find out their names and addresses on your own hook, gentlemen, but I cannot do it. I refuse to answer; I decline to answer."

"Very well," said Chairman Martin, "the witness is instructed that in the circumstances he will stand in contempt, as he declines to answer."

Communist Leaders Missing.

Dr. Mislig was asked many questions with a view to getting for the committee information regarding the present whereabouts of Dr. Isaac Hourwich, one of the editors of Novy Mir, the Russian Federation mouthpiece, with which Dr. Mislig is connected also as Treasurer, and Dr. Maximilian Cohen, who was closely connected with The Communist, published by John Reed, but now defunct. John Reed's whereabouts also is a mystery to the committee. Dr. Mislig said he had lost track of all these men for the last few weeks, and could shed no light on where they were at present. All are Communists.

Archibald E. Stevenson, associate counsel of the Lusk Committee, asked the witness some questions regarding the manifesto for the third international—a world conference called last Spring under the auspices of the Soviet Russia leaders for the purpose of arriving at a common understanding on a program to replace that laid down by the second international, which went to smash when the world war broke out and the French, English, and German Socialists all stood by their respective Governments. The call embodied a fundamental declaration of principles for world-wide application along the lines that the Soviet Government has sought to put into practice in Russia as the basis for its deliberations. Mr. Stevenson asked the witness if the Russian Federation and he himself had subscribed to or disapproved of those principles.

He said that he approved in part. He said that he believed in the disarmament of the bourgeoisie and direct action—as the manifesto recommends—for Russia, but not for this country, because the time was not ripe for that sort of thing here. He disclaimed any belief in killing, bomb throwing, or violence to bring about reforms. He said he believed in the general strike to compel the Government to bring pressure on capital to improve the condition of the working classes. He said in his opinion Bolshevism and true socialism were synonymous.

Would Favor Retaliation.

"If the Government should use force to suppress a strike or an uprising, do you believe in meeting such an act with force?" asked Chairman Martin.

"In that event I had best refer you to the Biblical saying an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth—as what it would come to," said the witness.

The witness said that the majority of the members of the Russian Federation would like to go back if the way were open to them to Soviet Russia.

"Do you want to go?" the witness was asked.

"Temporarily, yes; to stay permanently, I haven't thought of that," Dr. Mislig replied.

The committee will meet again today. The continued examination of Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, the unrecognized envoy of Soviet Russia, was fixed for next Thursday after announcement that Justice Greenbaum of the Supreme Court would not render his decision on a motion made on behalf of Mr. Martens, to enjoin the committee from questionings him on his instructions from his Government, until next Monday.

Eighty-two on Ellis Island.

When Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman go to Ellis Island this morning on the 11 o'clock boat, as their lawyer, Harry Weinberger, has promised the immigration authorities that they will do, there will be a total of eighty-two alien anarchists on the island who have been ordered deported.

Most of the eighty-two are men whose cases have been acted upon in the last few days, since a flood of criticism followed the disclosures by the Congressional committee of delays in deportation.

Within the last week thirty allen anarchists arrested in this city and in New Jersey have been added to the red colony on Ellis Island. One of these is Thomas Bubokanok, 17 years old, educated in the public schools of this city, and one of the most aggressive and successful anarchist leaders in this city. Bubakano told Congressman Isaac Siegel at Ellis Island yesterday that he had become converted to anarchy by his reading of anarchist works in the city public library in East Ninety-sixth Street.

Bubokanok was born in Bolhamia, in the Ukraine, and came to this country with his family in 1912. He was graduated from Public School 138 in February, 1917. He went to work in a machine factory, and was earning $21.60 a week when he was arrested.

Converted by Hillquit.

Bubokanok said that he became interested in radical doctrines when he was 14 years old by hearing the speeches of Morris Hillquit when he was running for Congress in Harlem in 1916, and that he began spending his afternoons in the library in East Ninety-sixth Street, and became a Socialist. Later, he said, he found in this library Kropotkin's work on anarchy in Russian and other Russian publications on anarcny, and he progressed from Socialism to anarchy. He began attending anarcnist meetings, and later became connected with Mother Earth, the anarchist publication of Berkman and Emma Goldman, which he distributed in various parts of the east side.

Bubokanok has a mother with two younger children in this country, but he said yesterday that he was eager to be deported and that he intended to ask the Government to send him to Kronstadt. When Congressman Siegel visited prisoners on Ellis Island yesterday, the boy hailed him by name, saying that he remembered seeing him at his political meetings in 1916 which the followers of Hillquit sought to break up.

"What are you doing here?" asked Congressman Siegel.

"I'm a Red," the boy replied. "They arrested me for holding big classes in anarchy over in Greenpoint."

After some conversation, in which the Congressman became impressed with the fact that the boy was unusually bright and well-read for his years, he said:

"You have got a pretty good education in the public schools here. You believe in a public school system, don't you?"

"No, I don't believe in any form of government. Every man and woman could obtain his own education in an anarchist community."

Boy Teaches Anarchist Class.

Bubokanok admitted that he had been acting as an instructor in the doctrines in anarchy at weekly meetings in Greenpoint and that he expounded his beliefs to an average of about 150 Russians in their own language at regular weekly meetings and sometimes to as many as 400 at special meetings.

Congressman Siegel said that the new policy adopted by the Department of Justice under Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer of dealing vigorously with anarchists resulted in some injustices.

"The most unfortunate case," he said, "was that of a passerby who stopped five days ago to watch prisoners being loaded into a police automobile at a raid by agents of the Department of Justice and the police. Some overzealous officer picked him up. He is a man with a wife and two children and had never been in the headquarters that were raided, but was locked up, transported to Ellis Island, and kept there for five days. Today, when it was found that his statements were true and that there was no evidence at all against him, he was released. There are about ten other cases in which men were arrested and sent to Ellis Island with no evidence against them."

Congressman Siegel's visit was for the purpose of obtaining records and evidence which will be used next Monday, when in hearings at Washington the committee will question Secretary of Labor Wilson and his principal assistants.

Harry Weinberger, the lawyer for Berkman and Emma Goldman, said yesterday that he had already drawn up the application for writs of habeas corpus in behalf of the pair and that they would be placed before the Federal District Court immediately after they had been landed on the island. Congressman Siegel said that the Congressmen who had made a study of their cases were convinced that there was not the slightest chance of obtaining freedom, or more than a short delay, for the noted Reds.

Congressman Siegel also obtained records at Ellis Island showing that a large number of Reds had come into this country as sailors, being able to land with only the most perfunctory investigation. He said that the country was absolutely unprotected against the invasion of Reds by this method and that an effort would be made to draft legislation meeting this situation. He said that the subject was an especially difficult one, because of treaty provisions stipulating freedom of action for seamen of various nationalities.

The Committee on Immigration will make an investigation of the manner in which the Spanish Influenza entered this country, to find out if the strict application of health laws would have kept it out and if further legislation on the subject would save the country from possible future epidemics originating in ports of the world separated from this country by seas.

Congressman Siegel said that the Committee was considering legislation which would transfer the health service at the port from the control of the State of New York to Federal control.

Toledo Cars Will Run Today After Being Idle a Month

TOLEDO, Ohio, Dec. 4.—Street car service will be resumed here tomorrow after a stoppage of four weeks. Henry L. Doherty, head of the traction company, late today accepted the Council's repeal of the ouster ordinance and ordered the cars returned at the earliest possible minute.

It was announced that some time would be required to get the equipment into shape, but service was promised not later than tomorrow afternoon.

MAY SIGN AUSTRIAN TREATY.

Volvode to Form New Rumanian Cabinet Favorable to Step.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 3.—Caida Voivode, President of the Chamber of Deputies, has been charged with the formation of a new Rumanian Ministry.

He announced today after consulting the leaders of the different groups, that a majority of the Chamber was in favor of signing the Austrian treaty. Voivode will form a Cabinet from among the leaders of the group favorable to signature of the treaty.

Labor Troubles Spread in Catalonia.

BARCELONA, Dec. 4.—Because of the gravity of the situation created by the lockout, the Barcelona Municipal Council has charged the Mayor to confer with the employers and workmen with the view of arriving at a solution of the labor troubles. The lockout is spreading throughout Catalonia.

REMOVES DANGER IN REAR

Treaty Had Been Made in Paris Between Kuban and Hill Tribe Agitators.

By HAROLD WILLIAMS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROSTOV-ON-DON, Nov. 20.—More important for the moment than any event at the front is the victory which Denikin has just won over dangerous Separatist agitators in Kuban. The circumstances are as follows:

In July a Kuban delegation in Paris, headed by Bych, concluded with a delegation of hill tribes, headed by Chermoev, a treaty in which the parties recognized each other as sovereign States, and pledged each other to mutual armed assistance in case of attack. This treaty was recently published in the Georgian press, and found its way into the Kuban papers, but evoked no repudiation from the Kuban Government, in which the Separatist followers of Bych are predominant.

The Separatist agitation which has been developing for some time has a distinctly Bolshevist tinge and in its extreme forms is closely related to Bolshevism. The atmosphere of Ekaterinodar in the last few days in some respects has recalled the atmosphere of Petrograd before the Bolshevist rising. The Kuban Cossacks at the front are thoroughly loyal and splendid fighters. The bulk of the population is also loyal and has no desire to separate from Russia.

Last week, just after the opening of the Autumn session of the Krayevaya Rada, or Kuban Regional Assembly, Denikin issued an order for the arrest of the signatories to the treaty, in the event of their appearance in the territory of the armed forces of South Russia, and their trial by court-martial for treason.

Apart from the general character of the treaty, the treason is particularly directed against the Terek Cossacks, who are now engaged in quelling an insurrection in Daghestan promoted by the very group of self-styled representatives of the hillmen with whom Bych and his associates had signed the treaty.

It so happened that in the first meetings of the Rada the Separatist group, who were very active, gained the ascendency, most of the members of the assembly being simple farmers, ignorant of politics and very susceptible to demagogy. Denikin's order for the arrest of the signatories of the treasonable treaty came like a bombshell and aroused violent debates and attacks on the volunteer army. The agitation was carried on among the troops of the local garrison and the Separatist speakers demanded the recall of the troops from the front.

Most of the signatories of the treaty are still abroad, but one Kulabukhoff, an unfrocked priest, sat in the Rada, no one attempting to arrest him. The Kuban Government telegraphed to Denikin denying responsibility for the treaty and demanding the repeal of the order.

Denikin's next step was to issue an order declaring the Kuban region, for administrative purposes, to be in the area of Wrangel's Caucasian Army, which consists mostly of Kuban Cossacks, and appointing General Pokrovsky commander of the troops in the rear. His appointment provoked a fresh outburst from the Rada, but the measures were duly taken. Yesterday Pokrovsky arrested Kalabukhoff, Makarenoko, and several other prominent Separatists. The troops subsidized by the Separatists to guard the Rada surrendered their arms, and the Rada, after deciding to send a deputation to Denikin to express submission and reaffirm loyalty to united Russia, proceeded to routine financial and economic business.

The remarkable tact and firmness displayed by Denikin in dealing with this difficult situation have cleared the atmosphere and removed a serious danger in the rear of his armies. There is evidence that the Bolsheviki were counting greatly on the effects of this Separatist agitation, whose only roots were the ambitious appetites of a few local adventurers.

NEW SIBERIAN CABINET ANNOUNCES REFORMS

IRKUTSK, Siberia, Dec. 2 (Russian Telegraphic Agency). — The newly constituted Al.-Russian Ministry, under the head of Premier Pepellaeff, has issued the following declaration of policy:

1. The supreme authority is represented by the Cabinet of Ministers invited by Prime Minister V. Pepeliaeff and appointed by Admiral Kolchak.
2. The emancipation of the civil administration from political influence of the military leaders.
3. Decisive struggle against excesses and injustice, no matter what party or faction commits them.
4. The extension of competency of the future Congress of Zemstvos and Municipalities.
5. Close relation between the Government and the people and co-operation with all healthy elements of the opposition.
6. Close and friendly relations with the Czechoslovaks.
7. Strong support of the volunteer movement.
8. Radical measures against the shortage of supplies for the army.
9. Further reduction of the Ministerial staffs.

The entire program, says the announcement, is based on the principle of a decisive struggle against Bolshevism for the regeneration of free Russia.

Minister of Agriculture—N PETROFF.

Acting Minister of Justice—M. MOROZOFF.

Twenty-one Divisions Ordered to the Frontier.

VIENNA, Dec. 4.—Twenty-one Czechoslovak divisions have been ordered to the Hungarian frontier, according to the Vienna newspapers today.

Frances Lawrance Asks 160,000-Franc Allowance to Wed Prince Poniatowski

The fact that the income of Prince Andre Poniatowski, a descendant of the one-time ruling house of Poland, is only 20,000 francs a year, and is insufficient to support Miss Frances Alice Willing Lawrance, whom he is engaged to marry, was made known in the Surrogates' Court yesterday, when Miss Lawrance applied, through her attorneys, to Surrogate Fowler for an increase in her allowance from the estate of her father, Francis C. Lawrance.

Miss Lawrance, who lives with her mother Mrs. Susan Willing Lawrance, in the Rue Octave Fueillet, in Paris, said her intended husband was an officer in the French Army. She has no income other than will be allowed to her on this application, she said. She estimated that she would need a yearly allowance of 160,000 francs for the following purposes:

	Francs.
Rent	30,000
Servants	7,500
Food and household supplies	42,000
Doctor, dentist, &c.	3,000
Clothing and wearing apparel, with luxury tax	28,600
Automobile and chauffeur	22,000
Summer vacatio and travel	12,000
Recreation and amusements	5,000
Incidetanl expeses	10,000

An affidavit by Williamson Pell, Assistant Secretary of the United States Trust Company, the trustee under her father's will, said the company holds property for Miss Lawrance valued at $200,000, which yields an income of $10,000. She also receives about $10,000 annually from a trust fund established by her grandfather, Francis Cooper Lawrance, which the company, as her guardian, permits to accumulate. She asks that all income accruing to her be paid annually.

An affidavit by Mrs. Susan Willing Lawrance said that since the death of her husband, years ago, she had spared no expense in the care and maintenance of her daughter, and that "her friends and acquaintances are people of the highest standing." She approved of the engagement to Prince Poniatowski, she said, because they have been friends since childhood.

"He volunteered for service in the French Army when he was 17," says Mrs. Lawrance, "and will not be relieved from his duties until the Spring of 1920."

Mrs. Lawrance said that because of the increased cost of living in France she could not contribute from her own income to the support of her daughter.

Prince Poniatowski is a younger son and the namesake of Prince Andrew Poniatowski, who married Miss Elizabeth Sperry of San Francisco, and made many trips to this country during the war in the interest of Franco-American banking. The son was born in this country.

RED DRIVES FAIL NORTH AND SOUTH

Reds on Road to India and Send Germans to Preach Bolshevism in the Far East.

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 4.—A Helsingfors dispatch says that, according to the Esthonian commander, General Toenisson, the Bolshevist great offensive launched with fifty regiments on the Narva front has completely broken down.

He declares that they are incapable of a further offensive without fresh reinforcements.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—A communication issued by General Denikin, commander of the anti-Russian forces in South Russia, claims that he has broken the Red offensive in the region of Tsaritsin, that his troops are now advancing, and that in the counteroffensive he has captured many prisoners.

In a summary of the week's events the British War Office says:

"In South Russia the Bolsheviki made little progress during the past week and General Denikin's troops reported some victories. A strong counteroffensive on the right has regained much ground and driven the Reds back to within thirty miles of Kursk. Southwest of Kiev volunteers also have taken the offensive and reoccupied Fastoff and captured Perdichev. The Bolshevist pressure has relaxed for the moment, and their advance is becoming slower and less extensive.

"The Bolshevist advance in East Russia continues along the whole of the front.

"In North Russia there is little change in the situation, due to the Winter, but the Whites have cleared virtually the whole of the Pinega Valley of Bolsheviki.

"A theatre of potential grave possibilities is Turkestan, where Bolshevist activities are reported to be increasing. The Tasnkent Government has sent a commissary to Merv (Russian Transcaspia) and it is also stated that Lenin has dispatched some German Orientalists from Moscow to spread Bolshevist propaganda. A number of these have gone to India, Persia, and the Far East.

"They are now no hostile forces between the Bolsheviki and Afghanistan, where the Bolsheviki are spreading their propaganda assiduously."

An official wireless communication received from Moscow concerning the seventh Congress of Soviets which is about to meet, says:

"The counter-revolution of the Czarist Generals Denikin, Kolchak, and Yudenitch must be finished. We shall conclude a peace with the Entente on the condition that there shall be no interference in our affairs.

"We are ready to make concessions, but we will not make a peace which would undermine us."

GREEKS EXTENDING HOLD

Are Said to Have 70,000 Men Around Smyrna — Turks Swear They Will Never Yield Territory.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 3.—My recent cable from Marseilles, in which I gave the reports of travelers returning from Constantinople of very serious conditions in Eastern Anatolia, are more than confirmed by an investigation in Paris. While it is generally known that the grab game going on in Asia Minor and the countries to the south constitute a menace to all efforts to establish peace in the world, it has not been possible at this time to publish the details which I have succeeded in obtaining from various sources.

The most dangerous perhaps of the various situations is that around Smyrna and the Meander River. I now learn that instead of a division the Greeks have military forces exceeding 70,000 men, which they have been using most energetically to occupy and defend that portion of the territory which they wish to annex to Smyrna. The Turks who are in large majority within and around this occupied area have sworn never to submit.

Immediately to the south the Italians are occupying a considerable area with Adalia as their port. To the east is the territory allotted to the French, and which is now being organized by General Gouraud. The French area borders on the native Arab State, and while this is nominally under the rule of Feisal, son of King Husseln of the Hedjaz it is clearly understood that the French are seeking and will obtain such control of the Arab hinterland as will give them the desired trade advantages there.

In the secret treaties negotiated during the war agreements were made that are now being worked out. In the form of "temporary" military occupations. Still further to the east the British, of course, have Mesopotamia. If the Greek, Italian, French, and English claims are recognized all that will be left of the old Turkish Empire is the northern part of Anatolia.

The liquidation of the Ottoman Empire may become more difficult than the negotiation of the treaty with Germany. It is widely believed that unless America takes a part in the negotiations international rivalries may produce a new trouble in Europe of a very serious kind. Whether we take a part or not it is very important that the policy of America be known as soon as possible.

The Harbord and Crane-King reports make definite recommendations as to the division of the Ottoman Empire and early action on these reports is extremely desirable in the circumstances. If it were possible to put Anatolia and Armenia and the trans-Caucasian Republics together under one mandatory power having headquarters at Constantinople, and if the United States were willing to accept that mandate, it is believed that not only would the Armenian question be settled, but the effect would be stabilizing on the countries to the south, which are not only demoralized internally, but are a hotbed of international intrigue. Unless the United States can assist in the solution it seems inevitable that Asia Minor and the countries to the south will become Balkanized and will constitute a permanent peril to the peace of Europe and the world.

The facts in regard to the conditions above described have been elaborately investigated by General Harbord and his commission, and their reports are supplemented by an inquiry recently conducted at Smyrna by a commission composed of Admiral Mark L. Bristol and of the French, British, and Italian Generals. This latter inquiry was particularly concerned with the Greek movements in Western Anatolia, and I am informed that there was unanimity in the conclusions reached.

These two reports clearly should have prompt and careful attention at Washington. They furnish data on which the question of our participation in the Turkish treaty can be decided, and if we are to participate it will enable us to act intelligently.

While the treaty with Germany is in the foreground at present the liquidation of Turkey on terms that will prevent future trouble is next in importance and cannot be too long delayed.

LADY ASTOR SCORES IN HOUSE EXCHANGE

SHE OPPOSES GOVERNMENT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Lady Astor made a brief intervention during the debate in Commons today on the Government of India bill in committee.

The Secretary for India, Mr. Montagu, said that Indian opinion was not prepared for an extension of the franchise to women and he urged that the question be left to the people of India to decide for themselves.

"To Indian men," commented Lady Astor from her corner seat.

Mr. Montagu smilingly said: "The honorable member knows that woman suffrage was decided by men in this country."

The House laughed and cheered the sally, and some Indian ladies in the Strangers' Gallery beamed upon their champion.

An amendment to give women of India the franchise was defeated, as the Government opposed it. Lady Astor voted against the Government.

LONDON, Dec. 4 (Associated Press).—The members of the House were disappointed in not hearing Lady Astor make her maiden speech today. When the debate on Indian women's enfranchisement was on, Lady Astor was observed to have the committee's report open before her and a bundle of notes in her hand. Evidently she intended to speak, but members engaged her in conversation on points concerning the bill, and when she should have risen one of the Government whips was talking to her. By this time the appropriate moment for her maiden speech had passed and she abandoned her intention.

Lady Beaverbrook, who before her marriage was Miss Drury of Halifax, N. S., has been invited by the Unionists of Ashton-under-Lyne to stand for the House of Commons for the seat of Sir Albert Stanley. Sir Albert is resigning his seat, and it is expected that he will be elevated to the peerage.

Paris Friends Watch Her Course.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 3.—Friends of Lady Astor in Paris predict that before many days she will turn on a high-voltage current in the House of Commons that will startle that ancient body. She goes in as a friend and supporter of Lloyd George, but no previous influence or friendship is expected to hold her. Those who don't admire her say she has no bump of reverence, while her admirers credit her with absolute fearlessness.

During her social and political career in England, King's courts and dignified precedents have had no terrors for her. She says what she thinks and she calls a spade a spade.

Individually and through her husband she has already exercised a wide influence in Britain. Cliveden has been the meeting place for all kinds of people, and there she has made the noble and commoner equally welcome. She is the friend of the whole population on the countryside. As she walks about the neighborhood she stops to talk and crack jokes with the men, women, and children, all of whom she knows by name. They are as much at their ease with her as with their own class.

Lady Astor and her husband belong to a little coterie of radicals, composed of people of wealth or position. One of these is Philip Kerr, who is a parliamentary secretary to the Premier. Though so closely associated with Kerr, Lady Astor didn't hesitate to denounce him in the closing days of the Paris Peace Conference because of Kerr's support of Lloyd George in imposing what she considered unjust terms on Germans.

Lady Astor has convictions on the question of the treatment of Germans, and before long she will voice them in the Commons. She believes the standard should be one of abstract justice, and that in so far as this is departed from there will ultimately be a moral recoil on the Allies.

She and Major Astor, who owns The Sunday Observer, caused that paper to take a position on the subject of the treaty that no London paper had made bold to take. Those who know her well predict that she will be plumping questions at the Premier on the subject of Germany and Syria and the secret treaties that will prove most embarrassing. It is impossible to put her out of countenance, and as she has a sense of humor that enables her to put the laugh on the other fellow it will be impossible to squelch her.

"She will bring a new atmosphere into the House, and it's likely there will be important political consequences," remarked one of her old friends.

ORDER ANTI-WAR CODE.

League of Nations Associations to Draft New International Law.

BRUSSELS, Dec. 3 (Associated Press). —The conference of the associations for the League of Nations, which is being held here with eighteen countries represented, has arrived at some important conclusions.

Instructions have been given to the permanent commission to draft a code of international law which is to be studied by all the associations and submitted to the governments of the States concerned. The code aims "totally to eliminate from its text the right to go to war."

The conference has also taken the following action:

Passed resolutions urging that the League of Nations be created immediately.

Appointed three commissioners and provided for a bureau for hygiene, commerce, and education.

Adopted resolutions calling upon the League of Nations to summon and admit to membership as soon as possible any State which is desirous of membership and which is able to give the guarantee specified in Article I. of the Versailles Treaty and accords with the conditions fixed by that article.

Requested the League of Nations to formulate principles with a view of securing to nationalities comprised in foreign States equality of civil and religious freedom and the right to use their own language.

$108,517 Was Spent to Elect Gov. Coolidge of Massachusetts

BOSTON, Dec. 4.—The Republican State Committee expended $108,517.86 in the campaign which resulted in the re-election of Governor Calvin Coolidge by a majority of 125,000, according to a report filed today with the Secretary of State.

More than 6,100 individuals, it was announced, contributed to the fund, which aggregated $110,846.91.

ERZBERGER OFFERS GREAT TAX BUDGET

INDIRECT BURDENS HEAVY

Minister Warns That Former Conceptions of Property Must Be Recast.

BERLIN, Dec. 3, (Associated Press).—Mathias Erzberger, the Minister of Finance, prefaced his battle for his great tax measures with a two-hour speech before the National Assembly today. He warned the Deputies that the man who was still wrapped up in prewar individualism would not find the tax assessments awaiting him to his liking.

"The same man, however," he added, "will also be unable to suggest any other solution of the problem, which will take into account the social demands confronting us. In approaching these reforms we must realize that we are growing into a new era.

"Pre-war individualism resulted in a badly distorted conception of property, over-emphasized its privileges, never or rarely took into account its duties and limitations.

"The conception of property becomes intolerable as soon as it results in undue accumulation of wealth or in plutocracy, which precludes the active participation of the masses in the general development of prosperity and cultural progress. Then class hatred and social disintegration are bound to set in."

Hopes for a New Germany.

Discussing Germany's post-war economic obligations, Herr Erzberger said that the problems confronting the nation demanded the same universal solidarity among all citizens as did the responsibilities during the war. He hoped that the prospective tax reports would accelerate progress toward democracy, and contribute to the raising of a new Germany on the ruins of the war.

The three major bills which are for disposition before the holidays are the national and local tax measure, the income tax and the national emergency levy. All of these bills are of such far reaching national and economic importance that they are bound to provoke long and acrimonious debates.

The national and local tax law grants to the Federated States and local communities the right to levy taxes, provided these do not conflict with Constitutional provisions or national taxes. The law designates the extent to which the individual States must share in national assessments and defines the limitations in the enactment of their own tax laws.

High Levy on Big Incomes.

The first thousand marks of income are not assessed in the scale named in the income tax schedule. After that amount incomes will be taxed 10 per cent. For the second thousand, 1 per cent. being the graded increase for every thousand up to 15,000 marks. Incomes in excess of 500,000 marks must pay 60 per cent.

The man who had a pre-war income of 100,000 marks is, expected now to turn over half that amount to the State. Local taxes are likely to consume an additional 20,000.

The German people, it is stated, have no conception of even the approximate price they will have to pay for the loss of the war in direct taxes, while indirect taxes, which are expected to yield 11,000,000,000 marks a year, will materially add to the cost of living for the next few years.

A novel provision of the income tax law obliges an employer to deduct the income tax from the weekly wage paid, receipting for the amount by pasting tax stamps on a tax card in the possession of the employer, then redeeming the stamps when canceled.

The most ominous of the three tax laws is the measure providing for a national emergency levy on capital, which is denounced for the abrupt method by which it severs a man of even modest fortune from his capital. This confiscatory raid, as it is called, has already been violently criticised by financial and banking circles and will undoubtedly provoke a series of stormy debates in the Assembly.

Bankers insist that the measure primarily will have the effect of leaving Germany without credit abroad and that the Finance Minister's levy on the nation's private wealth will have only an ephemeral bearing on the nation's finances, wholly cut of proportion to the after-effects.

Herr Erzberger, in the course of his speech, made a strong appeal for, civil service wage reform. He declared that the nation's interests demanded that public officials be put on a financial footing to enable them to meet the altered economic conditions and restore pride in their work.

ALLIES DETERMINED TO TRY THE EX-KAISER

Hewart Says There Is No Wavering—Former Ruler Thinks He Will Not Be Arraigned.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Speaking at Pontypridd, Wales, today, Sir Gordon Hewart, the Attorney General, said that the suggestion was not true that there was any discussion or wavering with reference to the trial of former Emperor William of Germany.

The law officers, he added, were continuing most careful preparation for it. Fifty thousand written statements with reference to the matter of prosecuting criminals for their acts during the course of the war had been examined.

From this, the speaker said, the audience could appreciate the magnitude of the task and not be deceived by suggestions that the matter was not receiving the closest attention.

The ex-Kaiser does not believe that he will be brought to trial by the Allies, or, if tried, that his future will be affected in any way, says the Berlin correspondent of The Daily Mail.

Friendly sources have recently suggested that he surrender to the Allies, offering to give the court all information in his power, the correspondent says, but he appears to be too lethargic to take any steps, or even to concentrate his mind upon the preparation of notes.

Next to sawing wood, the former monarch's main interest seems to be in the various campaigns waged in Russia, which he follows with the aid of large beflagged maps, and he eagerly reads all the news from that country.

EXCITING DAY IN CHAMBER

Socialists Hoot Name of King and Jeer at President's Conciliatory Efforts.

ROME, Dec. 4 (Associated Press.)—Ten persons dead, more than 100 wounded, and 1,000 under arrest, sums up the result of the general strike in Italy, called by the Socialists as a consequence of the demonstrations made against them on Monday in Rome at the reopening of Parliament. In addition shops were sacked in Milan.

Reports from Mantua say that grave disorders have occurred there. The Socialists disarmed some of the troops and set fire to the railroad station. Seven are reported to have been killed, but there is no confirmation of this.

Advices from Verona say that the Socialists at Mantua remained for a short time complete masters of the city, invaded the railroad station, and stopped the trains. Direct communication with Mantua has been interrupted.

Resentment over the strike has spread throughout the country. Notwithstanding this, however, and contrary to the announcement made yesterday in the Chamber of Deputies by the Socialist Deputy Treves that there would be a cessation of the strike at midnight, a small element of the Socialists imposed a continuation of the walkout in Rome today as a sign of mourning for the Socialist Zampa, who was killed during the disorder in the capital.

Socialists and anarchists, carrying flags and banners, participated today in the funeral of Zampa. Fortunately the hospital where the body had been taken is situated in the outskirts, and therefore it was not necessary for the funeral to enter the central quarters of the city to reach the cemetery.

In addition to making a great display with red and black flags large numbers of the Socialists and anarchists wore soft black hats with crepe on them, flowing black ties, and red carnations. Several Socialist Deputies followed the hearse to the cemetery.

BERNE, Dec. 3.—Disorders at various places in Italy have assumed revolutionary aspects, according to advices received here. During a demonstration at Turin Lieut. Col. Rossi was seriously stabbed in the back and fifteen other persons were injured.

UPROAR IN CHAMBER CAUSED BY SOCIALISTS

ROME, Dec. 4.—The nomination by the King of Tomasso Tittoni, former Minister of Foreign Affairs, as President of the Senate was confirmed by that body today.

The Republican Deputies have presented a bill in the Chamber of Deputies providing for abolition of the law requiring members of the chamber to take the political oath.

Yesterday's session of the Chamber of Deputies opened amid great excitement, Socialist Deputies being present in larger numbers than on Tuesday and the Catholic Party members all appearing in their seats.

Socialist Deputy Treves resumed his protests against what he termed the ingnities suffered by his companions, and declared he represented the wishes of all parties who understood the grave hour through which the country was passing.

Catholic Deputy Mauri, in reply, admitted the situation was serious and deplored reported violences, urging that a union of all parties was necessary to bring about a spirit of pacification. He ended by declaring: "The country needs peace and work."

All of the Catholics applauded, but the Socialists denounced Mauri, crying: "Long live the Pope-King!" alluding ironically to the loyalty of the Catholics to the Pope up to a few years ago in what the anti-Clericals charge were his aspirations to restore the temporal power of the Church, making himself at the same time Pope and King.

The Catholics at this redoubled their applause, which took the form of a counterdemonstration against Socialist attacks and in support of Signor

Blows Come So Fast That Englishman Is Unable to Sidestep—Victory Is Earned by Clear Superiority.

The men entered the ring at 9:44. Carpentier's winning blow was a terrific right. Beckett fell to the floor face downward. Just a few almost unnoticeable squirms were the only signs of consciousness he displayed. At the end of ten seconds Beckett had to be assisted to his feet, and it was some seconds later before he realized the contest was over.

When Beckett and Carpentier entered the ring for the greatest contest of their lives the hall was crowded with spectators.

Just before the fight began the Prince of Wales took his seat, near the ringside and got a rousing reception from the audience, which included many society notabilities and a large contingent of Frenchmen.

Betting in Paris had fluctuated in an extraordinary manner. Two days ago it was in favor of the Englishman. Then came a lot of French money, which swung the pendulum to Carpentier's side, but this afternoon 3 to 1 in Beckett's favor was being offered in London. Of course in was consistently in favor of the Britisher.

Beckett had arrived at Waterloo Station from his training quarters at Southampton at 1:20 o'clock this afternoon, and a large and cheering crowd greeted him. He looked a little paler than usual as he walked to the motor car which took him to Queen's Hotel, Leicester Square. Carpentier stayed at Canmore, his headquarters, until evening, when he motored to London.

Carpentier gave a most brilliant display for the short time the fight lasted. He soon saw the weakness of Beckett's defense, which was in leaving his face unguarded. Beckett went forward with his left hand low, his head up and low, and Carpentier, after a quick feint, leaped forward and with all his body behind it landed a straight left flush on the nose. The movement was so staggeringly quick that Beckett was unable to dodge, and while the Britisher was blinking his wits together Carpentier repeated the same trick with telling effect. The blows came so speedily that Beckett seemed hopelessly incapable of avoiding them.

The British champion showed some sort of realization of his position by trying to clinch and landing a few body blows, but he could not keep Carpentier at close quarters, and the French champion backed away just far enough to make his lefthand punch effective. His blows were backed up by wonderful speed of foot. Beckett saw he must do something to avoid that left hand. Carpenter feinted again and this time shot out his right, which landed a smashing blow on the point of Beckett's chin, on that part where it had most effect to render the boxer unconscious.

If Beckett had been hit with a hammer he could scarcely have been knocked out with more effectiveness. Just those four punches, delivered inside of sixty seconds, were all the French champion found necessary to give him the verdict.

There was nothing of chance about those four blows. Each was well and truly delivered. After the last blow it was obvious that Beckett's number was up. His knees sagged until he touched the floor and then he collapsed, face downward, and took the count, beaten by a man of more facile thought and action. Only once did Beckett show any signs of initiative. That was after receiving two left-hand hits, when he swung his left around at the Frenchman as the latter wheeled around to get a fresh start for another attack.

There was great excitement at the finish, everybody standing up and shouting. Carpentier, delighted at his victory, waved to the people. The Frenchman smiled, danced, and then crossed to Beckett's corner, and helped him to his feet. Carpentier was carried shoulder high and cheered loudly and ungrudgingly. Later the Prince of Wales gave Carpentier a warm handshake and congratulated him on his victory.

Announcement of the result of the fight was made from the stage at most of the London theatres and the audiences, awaiting it, gave but indifferent attention to the performances presented to them.

At one theatre the hero was in the middle of a love scene that should have been filled with a tense thrill of romance but the thoughts of the audience were far away and the eyes of the hero himself were on the wings. Suddenly he saw a waving hand and heard a hoarse whisper. It pushed the hero almost roughly aside as he came down to the footlights.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said, "Carpentier won in the first round."

A Blow That Resounded.

HOLBORN STADIUM RINGSIDE, LONDON, Dec. 4 (Associated Press.)—Georges Carpentier, the French champion, knocked out Joe Beckett, champion of England, tonight in a brief and decidedly one-sided fight for the heavyweight championship of Europe.

Seventy-four seconds, as announced by the official timer, sufficed to decide whether Carpentier or Beckett should meet Jack Dempsey, American heavyweight, for the championship of the world in June next. From the moment the referee, B. J. Angle, called time, Carpentier had the battle entirely in his own hands. Beckett never had a chance to hit the agile Frenchman, who landed blows with enormous strength whenever he felt inclined.

Amid absolute stillness, most of the spectators could hear the terrific crack of the swing that put Beckett to sleep. There was a roar of cheering, as Carpentier assisted Beckett to his corner, where the Englishman opened his astonished eyes and saw his opponent being carried on the shoulders of some of the enthusiasts around the ring—and the Frenchman was smiling happily.

The contestants presented a notable difference in appearance when they stripped and were introduced. Beckett was swarthy and muscular; Carpentier white-skinned, with a slight figure. Carpentier looked about him as though accustomed to his surroundings. Beckett seemed nervous.

Peers and Peeresses, members of the House of Commons, high officials of State, many women, most of them in evening dress, and the Prince of Wales, newly returned from his American trip, looked the fighters over critically as they squared up.

In reply to calls for a speech the Prince said a few words thanking the gathering for its welcome and saying: "I am glad to be home again."

As a fight, the contest was not spectacular. Carpentier was fast on his feet, dancing in and out and playing havoc with the Englishman from the first lead. With lightning swiftness, Carpentier's left leaped out and caught Beckett on the face, and a suppressed sigh was audible all over the house. A quick breakaway followed a short clinch, and the Frenchman landed two more hard lefts.

Beckett, with a sort of bulldog determination, forced Carpentier almost to the ropes. But this was a diversion for a moment only, for the Frenchman stepped back and then forward, and with all his strength, and the full weight of his body, swung his right to the Englishman's jaw, and Beckett went down and out.

The betting was heavy before the contest, odds of 7 to 4 being laid on Beckett, and most of those present were losers, although Carpentier had plenty of supporters.

When the airplanes announced the decision Londoners were unable to believe it. They thought a mistake had been made.

After the fight Beckett said to the newspapermen: "I hadn't started to fight when I got it. I didn't realize what had happened. I was just 'filling in' for the first round when he slipped in."

C. B. Cochrane, the promoter of the Carpentier-Beckett fight, will leave here for the United States in a few days. He hopes to arrange for a championship match between Jack Dempsey and Carpentier to be held in London in 1920.

PARIS CELEBRATES VICTORY.

Boulevards Show Some of the Animation of Armistice Night.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Carpentier's victory delighted Paris. Large crowds outside the newspaper offices greeted the news with rousing cheers, and the boulevards took on something of the animation of Armistice Night. All this enthusiasm seems to be deplored by conservative Frenchmen, the Temps says.

"Physical culture is all very well, but it seems latterly to be in danger of monopolizing attention to the detriment of higher things. We are assured that Carpentier is most intelligent and that intellect bears its part in his profession. So is intelligence required even to turn serviette rings. But it can be better employed. After all, boxing is the most unpleasant of all sports."

CARPENTIER'S RING CAREER

Georges Carpentier was born at Lens, France, Jan. 12, 1894. He began boxing in 1907, when only 13 years of age. He was both skillful and aggressive, and in 1909 scored many victories, defeating, among others, Charles Ledoux, the French bantamweight champion.

Carpentier took on weight quickly, and two years later he was meeting and defeating men in the welterweight division. The Frenchman scored his first sensational victory when he knocked out Jim Sullivan, the English middleweight, in two rounds at Monte Carlo in 1912.

At Ghent the following year, Carpentier, after being knocked down twice by Bombardier Wells, the English heavyweight, knocked out the British representative in the fourth round. The fact that a French lad 19 years old, and only a middleweight, had knocked out the cleverest English heavyweight seemed to some of the latter's backers a fluke. Carpentier dispelled this doubt, however, when he went over to London and knocked out Wells a second time, ending the bout in the opening round. Forty days afterward Carpentier fought Pat O'Keefe, the English middleweight champion, and scored a knockout in the second round.

Joe Jeanette, the American negro heavyweight, defeated Carpentier early in 1914, but after that and prior to the declaration of war between France and Germany, the French champion won decisions from Kid Jackson and Gunboat Smith in each case winning on a foul.

A few hours after the Smith fight Carpentier, who was in England, returned to France on the night boat in answer to his country's call to arms, and the following day was in uniform.

During the war Carpentier was conspicuously daring as an aviator. He was frequently commended by his superior officers, and among the many decorations conferred upon him was the Medal Militaire, the highest war honor that can be given to a French soldier.

RICKARD APPEARS WARY.

"Georges Carpentier is apparently the logical contender to meet Jack Dempsey for the world's heavyweight championship," said Tex Rickard, the promoter, when informed by The Associated Press of the result of the London battle on his return from Chicago late last night.

"Staging such a bout, however, is far from being an easy task," continued Rickard. "There are many difficulties that stand in the way, and I am not at all certain that I care to consider such a proposition at this time. Both Dempsey and Carpentier would undoubtedly expect a very large sum in the form of purses and guarantees, and there appear to be very few places that would be likely to return the gate receipts sufficient to warrant the immense outlay involved.

"France, at this time, could not be expected to furnish returns large enough to finance such a match and leave the promoters a profit commensurate with the time and money involved. To import Carpentier to America and match him with Dempsey would also require a large outlay of money, and very few places where boxing is permitted in this country could offer returns in keeping with the expense."

WOULD ALTER BOXING CODE.

Meeting in London Receives Amendments to Queensbury Rules.

Following the Carpentier-Beckett contest in London last night for the European heavyweight championship a meeting of representatives of American and European boxing bodies was held to consider a new set of ring regulations to supersede the Marquis of Queensbury rules which for decades have governed bouts in all parts of the world.

The meeting was attended by Paul Rousseau, President of the French Federation of Boxing; A. F. Hettinson, of the National Sporting Club of London; Eugene Corri, the famous referee; Victor Breyer, the French promoter; and other prominent boxing authorities. A representative of the Army, Navy and Civilian Board of Boxing Control of America and the International Sporting Club of New York submitted the draft of the new code to be known as the International Boxing Rules. It was understood that the new regulations found favor and probably would be adopted after some minor alterations as the rules of the International Boxing Federation for the control of ring contests throughout the world.

The proposed weight classes will include flyweight, 112 pounds; bantamweight, 118 pounds; featherweight, 126 pounds; lightweight, 135 pounds; welterweight, 147 pounds; middleweight, 160 pounds; heavyweight, 175 pounds and over. Under the new rules all weights will be made eight hours before the men enter the ring.

The ring will measure twenty feet inside the ropes with at least one inch of soft padding upon the floor, and the gong, sounding the beginning and end of the rounds, must be at least ten inches in diameter. Gloves worn by the boxers shall weigh not less than six ounces each and no boxer shall be permitted to use hand bandages more than six feet long or more than one and one-half inches wide and the material must be of soft substance. No shoes shall be worn which have hard soles or heels, cleats or spikes.

Future bouts will be judged by two judges and a referee who shall cast a vote, but the referee must agree with one or the other judge or call the bout a draw.

Dempsey Thinks Carpentier Will Be His Next Opponent

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 4.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, said tonight that Georges Carpentier's victory over Joe Beckett in London was no surprise to him.

"I am ready to fight Carpentier or any other fighter in the world—if I get my price," said Dempsey. "Carpentier in all probability will be my next opponent, and the meeting probably will come off next Spring."

Leader, Hill. Record, 1,945 miles and 2 laps, made by Goullett and Grenda in 1914.

What was probably the greatest crowd that ever tried to see or fight its way into a six-day race stormed Madison Square Garden last night and made it necessary to call out the police reserves of two stations to maintain order among the thousands who clamored for admission for hours after the doors had been closed by order of the Fire Department. Promoters of the race could not remember when there had been such a crush. Not until nearly midnight, after the sprints had been completed and some of the spectators had filed out of the building, were the police able to return to the station houses.

The unusual interest that has been manifested in the six-day race this year resulted in all of the reserve seats being sold out hours before the crowd began to gather for the evening. Those who arrived early got what general admissions were available, and by 8 o'clock the Garden was so densely packed that the Fire Department ordered the doors closed and the sale of admission tickets stopped. By that time every nook and corner was occupied from top to bottom, while the infield was a solid mass of humanity with men fighting their way through to the rails, where they had a chance to see the riders as they passed along on the track.

Outside there were some lively scenes for two hours. It took the police more than half an hour to clear the entrance in front of the building and to drive the clamoring fans away to the edge of the sidewalk. The police were obliged to use their strength at times as the crowds would take no excuses. The police finally threw a line around the building with dozen men at each entrance, and then stood firm against the advance of every one.

Many Ticketholders Barred.

As a result many who had tickets for reserved seats and who had come late were unable to get in. The police understood only one thing and that was that no one else was going to get into the building. There were no arrests reported except one for alleged ticket speculating.

Even when denied admission several thousands of fans remained outside the building to drink in the cheers of the multitude inside, which was enjoying one of the wildest nights the six-day race has experienced in many years.

There were equally lively scenes for the riders, inspired probably by the crowd and the excessive cheering. Sprints were started that were not on the regular program, and early in the evening four teams had been lapped as the result of the efforts of a few riders.

Harry Payne Whitney was among the spectators, and it was reported that he had offered $1,000 to any team that would steal a lap. This was supposed to be the cause for the daring riding that took place all through the evening session.

The greatest excitement of the evening occurred a few minutes after 10 o'clock during one of the sprints, when Beyl, the French rider, suddenly swung out in front and began to set a terrific pace that carried him half a lap in front of the others before any of the riders had a chance to make a real effort to catch him. He was quickly relieved by his partner, Arets, and in a minute the track was crowded with riders making reliefs.

Four Teams Lapped in Mix-up.

There was such a mix-up of riders that no one could tell just which teams had been affected, but the sprint resulted in the lapping of four teams. These were Brocco and Verri, Buysse and Spiessens, the Belgians who have become known as the "raw meat team" of the race; Charman and Spencer and Chardon and Tiberghien.

As a result of the same sprint, Egg and Dupuy were fined $25 for an illegal pick-up and Keller, of the Keller-Weber team, was fined $15 for foul riding.

Beyl and his partner managed to get so far out in front that they appeared to have a chance to lap the entire field. Jake Magin, who is teamed with McNamara, was roused out of his dugout and rushed to the track to relieve his partner, who was beginning to weaken under the strain. Magin appeared on the track in his undershirt, not having had time to get into his jersey, and at once set out after the flying leader. He pedaled so fast that he soon was up in the thick of the bunch, some of whom had already been lapped.

Magin led more than half a dozen teams, and kept the pace so hot that he finally reduced the advantage of the leaders to a quarter of a lap. Those out in front finally eased up and permitted the field to catch up. Order was restored on the track in a minute, and it was then found that the four teams had suffered a loss of a lap each.

While the cyclists were going around the wooden saucer in their mad rush the crowd went fairly wild, and the noise of their shouts was so intense that persons could not shout to one another at close range and be heard.

The judges were not able to give for some time the result of the sprint, but when the announcement was made that Brocco and Verri were among those lapped, there were cheers from one section of the house and jeers from another. The Italian team has been a troublemaker throughout the race. Verri especially having attempted several times to get the jump on his rivals. This should have made him popular with the fans, as their life within the Garden—and some have been there since Sunday night—is just a monotonous existence, punctuated now and then by a sprint.

Goullet-Madden Score Big.

At the conclusion of the sprints for points Goullet and Madden had again added so materially to their total score that it seemed they would be easy winners of the race unless lapped during the remainder of the long grind which ends Saturday night. Their total score is now 283. Hill and Drobach are second, with 217.

The scores of the others are: McNamara and Magin, 213; Eaton and Kaiser, 170; Egg and Dupuy, 154; Hanley and Lawrence, 127; Coburn and Kopsky, 91; Arets and Beyl, 80; Keller and Weber, 77; Bello and Thomas, 71; Brocco and Verri, 68; Spencer and Chapman, 64; Buysse and Spiessen, 53, and Tiberghien and Chardon, 6.

Goulet and his partner, Madden, won five of the sprints during the evening, and Goullet, as usual, was the star of the pair. He has the most speed of any rider in the race when it comes to the sprints, and he took four of the five firsts which went to this team. He had a comparatively easy time taking the first sprint. He waited behind McNamara until the last lap, then swung out in front with a burst of speed, and led the rival home by nearly three lengths of a wheel. Madden fought it out with Peter Drobach for the second sprint, and won with a little to spare.

Eaton got so far out in front of his field in the third sprint that no one was able to overtake him before the finish. Goullet and Madden changed during this whirl of excitement but Goullet got in too late to make his speed count and he was third. However, in the eighth and tenth tests, Goullet scored handily. He again had a hard tussle with McNamara in the last sprint, and the two got quite a distance away from the field, but never to a point where they had a chance of gaining a lap. Goullet had to do his best, for he was in front, and McNamara dashed up on the side and attempted to take the lead away. Goullet just got over the line in time. Eaton captured two sprints, while Hill and Magin registered firsts.

Spencer Hits a Trainer.

There was an accident early in the evening which, however, did not result seriously. The riders were taking it easy and were strung out in single file when a trainer from one of the camps started across the track near the end of the Fourth Avenue turn. He stepped out on the saucer just as the leader came around the turn. Two of the riders cleared him, but Spencer crashed into the trainer and was thrown from his wheel. As he went down, Drobach and Kopsky were caught in the jam and went down also. The riders were going so slowly that none of them was hurt, and all three remounted and got into the grind again.

Alfred Goullet has, so far, been the bright shining star of the six-day race, and he has gained such a lead on the others now that his rival riders are doing everything possible within the rules to block him, but without success. He has had all the speed of the race from the outset, and, though he has been on the track as long and in as many hard sprints as any one, he appears to be fresh. When it comes to the sprints he jumps from behind or takes the lead in the first place and holds it. Riders have teamed up to beat him in the sprints, only to see him dash out from the pack and frustrate their well-laid plans.

Troublesome Belgians Ousted.

The ten teams which are still on even terms in the matter of distance covered are all well pleased that the Belgians, Buysse and Spiessens, have been eliminated as dangerous contenders for first prize. The Belgians have given the others little rest all week and have had to be watched carefully every moment. From the start they were set on lapping the field. They gave their rivals many a scare, but finally their own efforts told on them and when an opportunity came the other teams took advantage of a chance to gain a lap on the troublesome riders.

An hour after the high notes of excitement had been struck in the Garden some one offered $100 for a series of ten half-mile sprints. Verri and Brocco won six out of the ten. Verri won three in succession and his partner came out and captured the next one. After that the other riders managed to break the winning streak of the Italians.

During one of the sprints for the prizes there was a spill at the Madison Avenue end of the track and three riders went down. None of them was hurt. All were replaced at once by their partners. After the series of sprints was ended the riders settled down to a steady grind. They took advantage of the calm, too, to get a rest and their pace was as slow as they could make it without falling off their wheels.

The afternoon sprints were finished without any attempts to steal a lap, but there were some lively jams when the prizes were offered. The riders were so anxious in one of these sprints that they became bunched on the track and Spencer forced Verri high up on the embankment, and for a moment it seemed that he would pitch over into a group of spectators at the end of the Fourth Avenue turn. He steadied himself just in time to get clear on the straightaway and avoid a serious accident.

Although Spencer did not appear to be attempting rough tactics, he was fined $10 and warned to be more careful.

Close matches were a feature of the play in the National Class C 18.2 balkline tournament being held under the auspices of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon and last night. In three of the four games that were played the winning margins ranged from three to eight points. In comparison the other victory was a comparative romp.

In the afternoon John Low defeated James Fraser, 150 to 147, and J. R. Johann defeated L. A. Servatius, 150 to 146. In the evening L. A. Servatius defeated John Lewis, 150 to 115, and James Langdon defeated Frank Boyd, 150 to 142.

As a result of the playing James Langdon advanced to a tie for the lead with Sidney Brussel in Section B, while Louis Servatius, by splitting even in his two matches yesterday, dropped to a tie for second place in Section A with James Blaisdell and Joseph R. Johann.

Good Class C billiards obtained in most of the matches. There was nothing of a truly sensational nature sprung by any of the contestants, but most of them played well within the range of their normal strokes. John Low finally got going in his game with James Fraser. Low has been erratic, following his recent illness, but yesterday afternoon was cueing with much of his old-time form and won the closest match of the day by a score of 150 to 147. Low averaged 2 23-63, with a high run of 16, and Fraser's average was 2 21-65. He made a high run of 17.

The veteran Louis Servatius gave J. R. Johann a battle in the second game of the afternoon before he finally was defeated by 150 to 146. The lead seesawed between the players. The winner averaged 3 21-42 and his best effort was a cluster of 18. Servatius averaged 3 20-42, with a run of 24.

Servatius returned in the evening and took John Lewis into camp by a score of 150 to 115. The veteran started strong, and he soon had a good working margin, which he maintained to the end. Servatius's average was 3 24-42, and again he made a high run of 24. The loser averaged 2 33-41 and made 17 points in his best inning.

The second of the evening games found James Langdon and Frank Boyd hooked up in a battle royal, the former finally winning, 150 to 142. Langdon took the lead in the early innings, and while he never lost it, Boyd pressed him hard toward the close of the game. The winner averaged 3 6-48 and had a high run of 17. The loser's high run was 28 and his average 2 46-48.

This afternoon Charley Steinbugler will play Charley Worcester. In the evening Frank Boyd and John Low will meet and Steinbugler will take on Johann.

C. C. N. Y. Is Getting Many Pledges of Money for Next Season.

The monster football mass meeting at the College of the City of New York, to which Walter Camp of Yale, Jim Gregan of N. Y. U., Daniel of The Sun, and Tom Thorp had been invited to speak, will be held on Thursday, Jan. 8, during which the drive to raise $10,000 to equip a football squad will be made.

Pledges of money are coming in rapidly, despite the fact that the drive is four weeks off. The committee is confident that the $3,000 which the undergraduates have been asked to give will be oversubscribed.

ALLEN'S MAGIC CUE SETS NEW RECORDS

He Beats Ralph in Five Innings at Pocket Billiards and Makes Run of 81.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 4.—Two new world's pocket billiard records were established here tonight by Bennie Allen in his match with Edward I. Ralph, Highstown, N. J., at the National American Pocket Billiard tournament. Allen won the match 125 to 6 in five innings. It was the smallest number of innings ever taken to complete a championship game, and Allen's high run of 81 shattered the former record of 74, held jointly by himself and Alfredo De Oro.

Experts who witnessed the match said Allen played one of the most remarkable games they had ever seen. On his thirtieth shot he made four balls, and twice during the match he sent two balls in with a single shot.

In the other match tonight Ralph Greenleaf of Wilmington defeated Charles Seeback of Hartford, Conn., 125 to 61. The match was completed in twenty-one innings. Greenleaf's high run was 42 and Seeback's 15.

Kreuter, the youthful New York pocket billiard expert, upset all the dope, by defeating James Maturo, 125 to 100, in the second afternoon game. Although the crowd was puling for Maturo to win, it gave the boy a great hand when Referee Peterson called game.

Kreuter deserved the victory, as he played a brand of pocket billiards that was a revelation to the followers of the game and never gave Maturo a chance to get started.

No shot on the table seemed too hard for the boy to make. Combinations, cut shots and drives for position were made with perfect abandon and his judgment on safety play was absolutely remarkable. In short, it was the boy's day and he took advantage of every little misplay of his rival to increase his score.

Starting with a run of 15, Kreuter kept plugging away, getting the best end of nearly all the frames and leaving the cue ball behind the bunch whenever he was forced to resort to safety. This sort of work soon gave him a commanding lead.

With the score 119 to 57 a perfect break shot made it look as if the game was won, but in playing the 3 ball for the upper left-hand corner the ivory caught in the corner of the pocket and refused to drop.

This left the bunch well scattered and Maturo made a desperate effort to win. While he failed in his purpose, he gave an exhibition of gameness and brilliancy that earned him rounds of applause. Gathering in the entire frame he obtained perfect position for the next try and again repeated the performance of clearing the table. Once again did the Westerner clean up, but on the next try failed to pocket the same 3 ball that spelled disaster for Kreuter, and he sat down, after bringing his total up to 100 with a beautiful run of 43.

The curtain raiser resulted in a well-earned victory for John M. Layton over Morris Fink by the score of 125 to 121.

RENNIE GETS SECOND PLACE

Charles Rennie clinched second place in the Brooklyn handicap 18:2 balkline billiard tournament, at the Brooklyn Billiard Academy last night. He defeated C. R. Lewis. Rennie plays for 135 points, while Lewis is handicapped at 175. Lewis was able to make only 141, losing 135 to 141.

Rennie played good billiards, considering his normal form, and deserved to win. Lew's could not hit his best stride, and found the handicap too great for him to overcome. Rennie averaged 2 37-49, and made a high run of 10. Lewis averaged 2 45-48, and registered a high run of 18.

NADHERNY IS VICTOR.

Defeat of Lange in Billiard Tourney May Cause Three-Handed Tie.

A chance for another three-handed tie looms up in the Class C 18.2 balkline tournament for the metropolitan district championship of the American Amateur Billiard Association, which is being played at Fuller's Academy. In the second of the round robin series of playoffs last night E. V. Nadherny defeated John A. Lange by a score of 200 to 115. Lange will play Arthur Macy tonight, and, if Lange wins, Nadherny, Lange and Macy will again be tied for first place. In such an event, it has been decided by the Executive Committee, the three players will meet in a round robin, the total number of points scored to decide the championship.

Lange started with a rush last night. He made his high run of twenty-seven buttons in the first inning, but then seemed to lose his stroke and was soon overhauled by Nadherny, who, by consistent playing, finally won. Nadherny averaged 4 12-42 and his best run was 23. Lange averaged 2 1-41.

GOLDBERG IS WINNER.

Defeats Schwartz in Brooklyn Bout —Gold Outboxes Johnson.

In a hotly contested bout at the Bensonhurst Yacht Club in Brooklyn last night Larry Goldberg of the Pastime A. C. won the referee's decision in three rounds from M. Schwartz, in the 120-pound class. In the 130-pound class semi-final T. Johnson of the Norwegian Turner A. C., defeated Ralph Babiner of the Union Settlement A. C. in two rounds, referee's decision, and in the final Irving Gold, Clarkhouse A. C., won from Johnson in two rounds, referee's decision.

In the 110-pound class W. Hausner won in four rounds, referee's decision, from D. Gruber, and Dave Kamins, Clarkhouse A. C., defeated H. Cohen of the same club in the third round. Kamins won in the final by default from Hausner, who had injured his hand.

Barney Martin of the Pastime A. C., was winner in the 145-pound class over Harold Abbott, unattached. Martin finished the bout in the first round, getting the referee's decision. L. Aldren of the Norwegian Turner defeated Otto Fazenfa in three rounds, and in the final won by default from Martin, who had broken his finger in his semi-final bout.

COURT QUESTIONS JOHNSON'S POWERS

Observes That League Directors Are Superior to the President, but Delays a Decision.

After hearing arguments yesterday afternoon on the application of the New York Baseball Club for an order restraining President Ban Johnson of the American League from calling an annual meeting of the league in Chicago on Dec. 10, Justice Samuel Greenbaum in Part 1. of the Supreme Court reserved decision and gave counsel for both sides until 4 o'clock this afternoon to file additional affidavits and submit briefs.

In the course of the hearing Justice Greenbaum observed that, as far as the powers of the President of the league, according to the league's constitution, were concerned, the President had no power whatever to interfere with the Board of Directors. He also stated that he could not see by what theory counsel for Johnson determened that the President had powers superior to the Board of Directors. "This is simply a cold interpretation of the league's constitution," said Justice Greenbaum.

Marvin W. Wynne, attorney for Johnson, read from an affidavit by the latter, stating that he was not only President, but also Secretary and Treasurer, of the league, and that he, as Secretary, had always been in the habit of sending out the notices for the annual meeting. Johnson also was quoted as declaring that he had been asked by five members of the league to call the meeting for Chicago.

On Nov. 19, it was alleged, a majority of the members of the Board of Directors, following a meeting here in the Hotel Biltmore, sent out an order announcing that the annual meeting would be held at the Biltmore on Dec. 10 at noon. The regular date for the annual meeting is the Wednesday after the second Tuesday in December. The Board of Directors is also authorized to meet at the same place prior to the meeting.

Johnson's Authority Is Questioned.

Johnson sent out a notice announcing that the meeting would be held at the league's offices in Chicago. Charles H. Tuttle, representing Jacob Ruppert and T. L. Huston of the New York Club, in his argument contended that Johnson had no authority to issue such a call. Mr. Tuttle, in opening his argument, reviewed the recent history of the league, involving the suspension of Carl Mays, the pitcher, and consequent litigation, resulting in a decision by Justice Robert F. Wagner last month that Mays had been suspended unjustly.

Mr. Tuttle held that Johnson had exceeded his authority and had assumed to himself powers not conferred to him under the constitution and by-laws, declaring in support of his contention that Johnson had no right to call the meeting, which right, he asserted, rested solely with the Board of Directors. Mr. Tuttle also asserted that Johnson was only a salaried servant of the league and that he had no money invested in it.

"Let me get this straight," interrupted Justice Greenbaum. "Is or is not President Johnson a servant of the Board of Directors? If he is a servant of the board, why do they not dismiss him if they don't like the way he manages things?"

"Why, your Honor," replied Mr. Tuttle, "Mr. Johnson claims that he is elected President for twenty years at a salary of $25,000 a year and that he is under contract and cannot be discharged."

Ban Files an Affidavit.

At the conclusion of Mr. Tuttle's argument Mr. Wynne read part of an affidavit by Johnson, which he said he received from Chicago Thursday morning. In it Johnson said that he acted this year as he always had. He said the constitution, while prescribing the date and hour, did not provide for the place of the annual meeting. He said that he had been requested by five members of the league to call the meeting for Chicago, while only three favored New York.

Johnson said in his affidavit that after he had sent out his notices he learned that three of the Directors, constituting a majority—Colonel Ruppert of New York, Harry H. Frazee of Boston, and Charles A. Comiskey of Chicago—had sent out a notification for the meeting in this city.

Johnson further maintained in his affidavit that "at no time and by no one, to my knowledge, has my right to select the place and issue the call for these meetings been questioned or denied prior to this year, when a call was issued by Messrs. Comiskey, Frazee, and Ruppert for these meetings to be held in the City of New York."

After concluding the reading of the affidavit Mr. Wynne said: "And I well know why Messrs. Ruppert, Comiskey, and Frazee sent out their notice. They understand that their services as members of the board will not be required after the annual meeting this month."

GOLF CLUBS NOT BIDDING.

Fail to Apply for Metropolitan Association's Tournaments.

With the all-important annual meeting of the Metropolitan Golf Association only five days off, officials of the association are apprehensive about the support being given by the ninety-odd member clubs. It was announced last night that not a single club had made formal application for either of the big tournaments, the Metropolitan amateur or the open, which rank next to the national fixtures in importance. The amateur event was held last June at Brooklawn, near Bridgeport, Conn., and is due to go to a Westchester, Jersey or Long Island club. The open was fought over the North Shore links and seems likely to go to a Jersey or Westchester society.

In view of the lack of formal invitations A. H. Pogson, the Secretary of the association, indicated last night that instead of awarding the fixtures at the annual meeting at the Hotel Knickerbocker on next Tuesday evening, the matter might go into the hands of the Executive Committee for subsequent action.

Another fact causing concern is that only a third of the voting clubs have nominated their two delegates to attend the meeting. The official credential slips were appended to the printed notices sent out two weeks ago, and, although Dec. 3 was set as the limit for notifying the Secretary of the names of the delegates, that date has been passed with less than half the clubs responding. The delay is blamed on the recent strike of commercial printers and the inability to get out the notices earlier, and the committeemen have decided to receive credentials up to the time the meeting is brought to order Tuesday evening.

CHICAGO WANTS OLYMPIAD.

Would Stage 1924 International Games in World's Largest Stadium.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Initial steps were taken today by prominent sporting men and civic leaders to have the Olympic games held in Chicago in 1924, following the announcement that the contract had been let for the largest stadium in the world. The structure, which will be horse-shoe-shaped and built of marble and concrete, will have a seating capacity of 100,000, according to the plan. The cost is estimated at $1,725,000.

TYPE OF BASEBALL MANAGER CHANGING

By CHRISTY MATHEWSON.

In a long session of the Winter league the other day the question came up as to the most desirable type of manager.

"The aggressive sort of fighting manager, like McGraw, Chance, and Fred Clarke, is the only type which can build up a great ball club," flatly declared an old baseball man.

"How about Connie Mack with his quiet, fatherly ways?" I asked.

"Well, he had a great ball club," answered the other, "but there was no color to it, and he finally broke his machine up because he couldn't make any money with it."

"Nevertheless, he was a great manager," I continued to contend.

It is true that the best-known and most successful leaders in baseball have been of the turbulent, fiery type. Of course, such a man would be better advertised. But a raver is not always a good leader. American League players have told me Ed Barrow of the Boston Red Sox is a worse raver than Stallings, and that he offers to take offending players out behind the stand and do to them something like what Jack Dempsey did to Willard. But these methods did not result in Boston winning the championship, although most of the experts picked it as the best team before the race started. And off the field, like most others, Barrow forgets it all and is cordial and pleasant.

It is my opinion that baseball is changing and the grade of the personnel is different, so that the old-time raver is not the big success he used to be. Even McGraw is much quieter and getting older, for only two or three weeks ago he was speaking of taking up golf seriously.

When McGraw was young and in good form there was as much excitement in going on the road with the Giants as there will be going to the Mexican war, and it is my opinion that the participants on our side in the Mexican war, from what I hear of these Greasers as fighters, will be much better risks for life insurance companies.

GOULD'S LEAD IS CUT BY KINSELLA

Professional Wins 3 Out of 4 Sets from Amateur in Play for Court Tennis Title.

SCORE NOW STANDS 5 TO 3

Special to the New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 4.—Walter Kinsella, the professional of the New York Squash Club, got back into the running today in his court tennis match with Jay Gould for the open championship of the United States, winning three of the four sets played at the Racquet Club this morning, 0—6, 6—3, 6—5, 6—1. The unexpected pull-up of the squash expert, after seeming hopelessly outclassed at the more complicated mediaeval game, put an entirely different complexion on it. The contest, and the opinion is now freely expressed that Kinsella may yet pull out a victory in Saturday's final session. To accomplish this, however, he will have to win four out of five sets, a big assignment when facing a man rated as the best in the world in his particular specialty. The score now stands five sets to three in Gould's favor, and the amateur needs only two more sets to assure him a "best out of thirteen" decision.

Today's play was remarkable in the fact that for the first eight games Gould was even more overwhelmingly superior than last Tuesday, when he won four straight sets, only to lose command completely in the latter stages, with the result that three sets in a row went against him, the last one almost reversing the whitewash of the opener. The fears concerning the defender's condition seemed to have more foundation this morning, for he tired perceptibly after travelling through a set and a half at top speed, and in the closing games, proved utterly unable to cover his court.

Kinsella, evidently realizing his mistakes of the previous encounter, changed his tactics today, and his clever headwork was rewarded with brilliant success. He abandoned the floor game, which had proved so disastrous on Tuesday, and at which Gould is practically unbeatable, and instead tried always for the openings and for killing shots to the tambour. He also employed far more pace than in the opening session, wearing out his opponent by the sheer speed of his drives.

Keeps Gould on Run.

The wisdom of this plan of campaign became apparent after the first set, during which Kinsella kept his rival constantly on the run, even though his own strokes were as yet far from dependable. He kept on trying for clean aces, however, even with the score mounting steadily against him. Then, just as Gould began to show signs of distress at the terrific pace, the professional's control began to assert itself, and from the turning point of the second set to the finish his accuracy and speed were alike extraordinary.

Gould may have rated his challenger too cheaply, after his clean sweep of two days ago, and perhaps neglected to keep himself right up to form. Physically he was certainly below the standard which he set on that occasion. Yet while his strength and wind lasted, his tennis was perfection itself. It seemed impossible during that first love-set that any man could make headway against such flawless stroking of the ball, such consistent pace, even of defensive shots, and such wizardry of court tactics. In the chases Gould was almost always the better man, improving on practically any figure that was set for him, and if Kinsella had been content to stick to the floor game, as he was on Tuesday, the match might have ended within the eight sets completed today, as it did when Gould defeated Covey five years ago.

But, once Kinsella got his eye on the openings, and began to shoot straight for the grille and dedans, wall angles and floor spaces were forgotten. The amateur was kept so busy defending the fatal nets that he no longer found the opportunity for agressive strokes. Many a ball that was not actually caged, skidded away from Gould's attempted volley for an ace just as cleanly carried as if no string or wood had interfered with its whistling flight. As the champion realized gradually that he could no longer return these hot liners that headed persistently for the scoring points, he began to miss easier shots as well, flubbing what would ordinarily have been simple gets, in his anxiety to make every stroke count. In the final set of the day the superiority of the professional was just as marked as that of the amateur had been before, and it is doubtful whether Gould could have stopped his hurricane play, even when fresh and in the best of physical condition.

Distinguished Gallery.

There was again a distinguished gallery, including such sportsmen as Vincent Astor and Harry Payne Whitney, in addition to the regular devotees of the racquet. Joseph Wear again refereed, Fred Tomkins acted as marker, and Jock Soutar called the faults.

Kinsella began the service, and Gould easily had the better of the first chases, scoring two points in rapid succession, the second on a fine corner shot, "better than two." He dropped one by netting a low volley, after the professional had barely missed a good try for the dedans, but went to 40—15 on his opponent's "not up." It was Gould's game on an error by Kinsella.

The second began with a wonderful half-volley by Gould just off the tambour, but Kinsella ended the rally by hitting into the grille. He added another point when Gould netted the service and ran ahead to 40—15 after knocking the ball out of court once. Gould found the dedans at the close of another splendid rally, which included two remarkable recoveries on his part off the tambour. Kinsella's miss of a backhand shot made it deuce. Then, after two calls of vantage, Gould took the game by nicking the corner under the grille window.

He started his third with a similar ace in the same spot and reached 40—love after a great rally when Kinsella's attempted half-volley failed to get more than the rim of the racquet on the ball. The New Yorker won a chase by angling cleanly off the tambour, but hit the next one out for the loss of the game, 8—0.

Errors Help Gould.

Kinsella led at 30—love in the fourth game, but Gould made the dedans twice with sizzling drives and then pulled ahead to 4—0 with the help of errors. Another lead of 40—15, added by a sensational drive into the dedans, was similarly overcome by Gould, who made several astonishing gets off the tambour, and followed the ball tirelessly, although the professional was hitting harder with every rally. It was deuce when Kinsella flubbed a volley, and in spite of his getting the first vantage point, the score was tied again on a similar error. Gould then made it 5—0 as his rival netted a low backhand volley.

A double fault added to Kinsella's troubles in the next game, and it was 40—love against him when he missed another desperate volley right in front of the dedans net. He rallied for two points, but spoiled the effort by driving a fairly easy one into the net for the game and set, 6—0.

The points alternated at the start of the second set, a rather lucky nick by Gould making it deuce. Kinsella smashed a hard one into the net and then missed a backhander in the deep court for the game, 1—0. Gould kept up his superhuman tennis by scoring again in the corner after a wonderfully rally. His lead reached 40—15 with a dead one from the tricky tambour, and when a rather doubtful decision was given in his favor the games stood at 2—0.

Kinsella now began the courageous uphill fight which eventually brought him a spectacular triumph. A cannonball drive into the grille started him on his way toward success, and three more sensational shots gave him a love game. He made the dedans once in the next game, but errors gave Gould too long a lead, and his score mounted to 3—1. This, however, was his last real stand. Kinsella took another love game, and, although he trailed at 0—40 in the next, a remarkable pull-up saved the situation for him and tied up the games, 3—all.

Repeats the Trick.

He repeated the trick in the following session, after Gould was ahead 40—15, with the aid of a great tambour recovery and an accurate grille shot, making the amateur miss his volleys and pulling out the game as his opponent netted an easy bounder close up, expressing audible disgust at the error. Then came the crucial game of the match. Kinsella netted, but equalized with a beauty into the dedans. They divided the next two, and Kinsella, after just missing the dedans twice, drove one that Gould could not handle, for a 40—30 lead. Another net made it deuce, but the squash champion hustled over to the side wall for a fine get, and captured the vantage point in consequence. Gould was breathless, and took his time in selecting a fresh racquet, but netted on the next rally, and Kinsella led, 5—3, on games.

Both players found the grille in the next game, and Kinsella brought up the set point with a rather lucky net corder. He did not let the opportunity slip by, and a clean kill to the corner gave him the set, 6—3.

Gould still showed fight in the third set, and again ran into a lead on games. Kinsella had him 40—15 in the first, after bouncing a hot one off the side wall into the dedans. But the amateur practically duplicated this shot, and repeated the trick for deuce. A third drive into the winnnig net gave Gould the vantage point, after the score had seesawed once, and he completed the game on an error.

Gould Makes Fresh Start.

Still another into the dedans gave Gould a fresh start, but Kinsella hung on by playing close to the tambour, and reached 40—30 with a service which was protested as premature, but allowed. The games were 1—all when Gould missed in front of the dedans. But the amateur came right back with a love game for a lead of 2—1, and was still far from beaten, Kinsella losing the last pont when he scraped the floor with his racquet in a desperate effort to reach a low, fast bound.

The fourth game was also Gould's, a lead of 40—love proving too great to be overcome. They alternated up to 30—all on the next, and Kinsella double-faulted for deuce after the decision on the first ball had been questioned by his rival, who straddled the green line as he hit it. After vantage had alternated twice Kinsella won a chase for the game, 2—3.

A terrific drive into the dedans started him on his way to the next, with which he eventually drew up the score on errors. Gould, however, replied with another brilliant series of shots, one into the grille, which was almost immediately duplicated by Kinsella. It was Gould's game, 4—3, when the professional lost a chase for better than two, his fine attempt at recovery in the corner being called "not up."

Floor Play Helps Amateur.

Gould advanced to 5—3 by general superiority in floor play, and Kinsella settled down for another determined rally. Reaching 40—love with a clean nick, he was presented with the game through Gould's deliberate double-fault. But this time the amateur's strategy failed. Kinsella planted one in the dedans, and, though he lost two chases he equalized by finding the small opening of the grille. The points were forced on reciprocal errors, and then Kinsella, getting vantage with a "not up," he his rival, walloped one which was unreturnable for the game and a 5—all tie.

A long rally introduced the deciding game of the set, Kinsella ending it with a drive to the dedans. The same scoring increased his lead to 30—15, and he had the set in sight when Gould missed a backhander. A tremendous smash, which could not be handled, closed the argument in Kinsella's favor, 6—3.

The final set was a runaway for the New Yorker. He began with a love-game and added the second after losing two points, one on a fine shot to the dedans. A lead of 40—love put the third on ice, with Gould tiring rapidly and hitting out for the game after a remarkable get on the part of Kinsella.

Kinsella's Fast Play.

The latter proceeded to bullseye the grille and barely missed a second try for the little window. From the hazard end he found the dedans for 40—15, and made the games 4—0 with the next point.

The dedans gave Kinsella another ace in the next, but a superb volley by Gould foiled his attempt to repeat, and after jarring the breath out of his body by running into the gallery wall for a splendid get the professional lost the point in the corner. With deuce called, Gould made a determined effort and claimed his only game of the set when Kinsella drove out, just missing the dedans.

Leading at 40—love in the next the amateur still seemed to have a chance, but he netted a good try, and Kinsella picked up another with a tambour-shot partially stopped by the net-cord, deucing the points by a clean ace in the grille. Two errors gave the leader his fifth game.

The final group of points mounted in alternation up to deuce, another close one topping the net in Kinsella's favor. The latter took the vantage with a baffling angle shot off the tambour, and they fought out one more great rally. Gould finally missing in the opposite corner and obviously glad that it was over. The set was scored 6—1 in Kinsella's favor.

The summary and score by points follow:

Twenty-three Players Will Make Trip to Pasadena.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 4.—The Harvard University football team which will invade the west to play a leading Pacific Coast eleven at Pasadena on New Year's Day will be virtually the same as that which went through the recent season without defeat. In connection with the announcement of Harvard's acceptance of the invitation to play at the Carnival of Roses celebration, it was said today that twenty-three players would be taken on the trip.

A canvass of the Crimson players who won their letters against Princeton and Yale, and leading substitutes showed that almost all were available. One or two may be lost because of recently developed academic difficulties, and two others said they might wish to pass Christmas with their families, having been in the service for the past two Christmas seasons.

The team will include Captain Murray, the Crimson quarter back; Eddie Casey, the crack half back whose shifty open field running forward pass reception and defensive play gave him high place among Eastern players, and the Horween brothers, one of whom, Ralph, kicks far and true for field goals. One substitute will be carried for each position except quarter back, for which there will be three men. Head Coach Robert T. Fisher will have several assistants, including Eddie Mahan, Crimson Captain in 1915, who is familiar with Western styles of play through a season as coach at University of Southern California.

The start for the West will be made Dec. 20, when a two weeks' recess for the holidays begins at Harvard.

MIXSELL'S VICTORY SURPRISE IN SQUASH

Princeton Club Player Upsets the Dope by Eliminating Cordier in Three Games.

One of the most surprising upsets of the season occurred in the third round of the first open squash tennis tournament in progress at the Harvard Club yesterday afternoon, Auguste J. Cordier of the Yale Club was eliminated by Dr. Harold Mixsell of the Princeton Club in a thrilling three-game match that was replete with fast, hard playing. The result was a decided shock to the more or less buffeted dope. After winning the first game with comparative ease, 15—9, Cordier slowed up while Mixsell came with a rush in the second and third games and won them and the match 17—15 and 15—10.

When Charles M. Bull, Jr., and Fillmore Van S. Hyde dropped out of the tournament it was generally believed that Cordier would emerge with the laurel draped gracefully on his brow. Cordier, after his defeat by Bull in the recent invitation tournament, had been coming strong. He appeared to have attained the top of his game when he took the measure of Bull in the Yale vs. Princeton Squash Club team match at the Yale Club on Tuesday afternoon. While Mixsell is a strong player and capable of some mighty good squash, still it was not expected that he would be able to trip Cordier in his dash for the tournament honors.

Because of this general belief in the ability of Cordier to defeat Mixsell only a small gallery was present when these two exponents of the game clashed at the Harvard Club. In the first game Mixsell was outclassed and fell an easy victim before the keen, accurate playing of his opponent. The score, 15—9, depicts the difference in the form shown by the two men.

Cordier showed a greater assortment of strokes and his gets and safe returns at times bordered on the brilliant. He was a complete master of the situation, and it seemed that it was only a question of by how much he would defeat Mixsell in the match.

Cordier Plays Indifferently.

At the start of the second game, however, Cordier seemed to ease up. In spots his playing was almost indifferent. He gave the impression that he was confident he could cut loose a whirlwind attack at any time that would completely baffle his opponent and sweep Mixsell off his feet. This did not prove to be the case. Mixsell played consistently and covered the court exceedingly well, so well, in fact, that when Cordier elected to unleash his speed he found that Mixsell was more than equal to the task of repelling his driving attack and was capable of making hard gets and neatly placing his returns.

Cordier strove hard to overcome the fast-traveling Mixsell and succeeded in setting the game at 14-all, but while he was collecting one more ace Mixsell grabbed three and the game, at 17—15.

Mixsell continued his fast work in the third and last game. He got away to a flying start and soon had Cordier 5 and 2. This game proved to be far faster than either of the two others, with several sustained rallies, thrilling gets, and a variety of strokes. Cordier had his powerful backhand stroke working to perfection, but in other respects he was not nearly so accurate as his opponent. Some idea of how keenly fought the game was can be gleaned from the fact that for eight hands the score stood 11—7 in favor of Mixsell. During this time the playing was furious. Neither man resorted to a change of pace, both persisting in driving the ball hard.

Platt Victor Over Grinnell.

Three other matches were played, but with the exception of the clash between Livingston Platt of Yale and L. J. Grinnell of Harvard they failed to produce anything out of the ordinary. As was expected, Anderson Dana of Harvard defeated Stuart Wainwright of Yale, 15—8 and 15—8. John W. Lee of Harvard won from Leonard Beekman of Princeton, 15—6, 6—15, and 15—7. The fact that Beekman, who is a star lawn tennis player, but is playing his first season at squash tennis, was able to carry Lee along for three games was significant.

Grinnell gave Platt quite a battle in the second of their three games. After losing the first game, 15—8, Grinnell came back and won the second, 18—16, after they had set the game at 13-all. Platt won the final game, 15—7.

Dr. H. R. Mixsell, Princeton, defeated A. J. Cordier, Yale, 9—15, 17—15, 17—10; J. W. Lee, Harvard, defeated L. Beekman, Princeton, 15—6, 6—15, 15—7; A. Dana, Harvard, defeated S. Wainwright, Yale, 15—8, 15—8; C. Marin, Yale, won from R. E. Fink, Engl wood Field Club, by default; L. Platt, Yale, defeated L. J. Grinnell, Harvard, 15—8, 16—18, 15—7.

YALE CLUB AGAIN WINS.

STANDING OF THE CLUBS.
Metropolitan League—Class B.

	Played.	Won.	Lost.	P. C.
Yale	2	2	0	1.000
Harvard	3	2	1	.667
Princeton	2	1	1	.500
Crescent	3	1	2	.333
Columbia	2	0	2	.000

As a result of yesterday's playing in the Metropolitan League Class B squash tennis team tournament, the Yale Club's five remains the only undefeated team. Yale's representatives have engaged in two matches and won both of them. Yale's team is also the only undefeated aggregation in the Class A play.

Two team matches were played yesterday, and in each instance the winning team was not decided until the last of the individual matches had been played. In one case it required not only the last match, but the last point of a third game in the last match to determine the winning team.

The representatives of the Harvard Club and the Crescent Athletic Club had a battle royal, the Crimson finally winning by 3 matches to 2. It was in this clash that the limit of distance was traveled before Harvard won. When J. Whitlock of Harvard and M. M. Sterling of the Crescents met, the score in matches for the rival clubs was even at 2 all. Their match was the deciding factor, and it went three games. The last game was carried out to the last possible point, finally being decided at 18—17.

Whitlock lost the first game, 10—15, but he won the next two and match and also clinched the team match for Harvard, 15—12 and 18—17. The matches were played on the Crescent Club's courts.

The team match between Yale and Columbia was finally won by Yale. It, too, was strung out to the last individual match between the players before it was decided. R. V. Mahon of Columbia and H. R. Stern of Yale battled in the deciding contest. Stern won in straight games, 18—13 and 15—2.

The summaries:

YALE CLUB, 3; COLUMBIA CLUB, 2.

H. R. Stern, Yale, defeated R. V. Mahon, Columbia, 18—13, 15—2; C. J. MacGuire, Yale, defeated H. R. Burt, Columbia, 15—8, 15—5; J. C. Tomlinson, Yale, defeated F. M. Simmons, Jr., Columbia, 15—10, 15—9; I. H. Cornell, Columbia, defeated J. A. Vietor, Yale, 18—15, 15—12; H. Kellock, Columbia, defeated W. Adams, Jr., Yale, 10—15, 15—11, 15—6.

HARVARD CLUB, 3; CRESCENT A. C., 2.

J. Whitlock, Harvard, defeated M. M. Sterling, Crescent, 10—15, 15—12, 18—17; J. A. Richards, Harvard, defeated M. F. Torrance, Crescent, 15—10, 15—11; J. Munroe, Harvard, defeated Dr. H. W. Dangler, Crescent, 15—8, 15—10; A. B. Baxter, Jr., Crescent, defeated G. M. Richard, Harvard, 15—12, 15—9; C. W. Dingee, Crescent, defeated W. A. Seamans, Jr., Harvard, 15—3, 15—6.

FAVORITES FARE POORLY.

HAVANA, Cuba, Dec. 4.—Don Thrush, with Pickens up, scored in the feature event at the local track today, and in doing so proved himself to be a real good mudder. He was favorite in the betting and was also the only first choice to win during the afternoon.

Ned Mileybright easily won the third race, and in doing so spoiled some well laid plans when he led the good thing, Uranium, home. Douglas Fairbanks had no trouble in landing the opening event, with the favorite, Major Bradley, saving the place. Manganese so far outclassed his field in the second race that he took the lead early and won by seven lengths. Jack Healy easily defeated the favorite in the fourth race, while Goldstone had an easy time in winning the fifth event.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—Purse $600; for two-year-olds; five furlongs. Douglas Fairbanks, 108 pounds (Pickens), 8 to 5, 1 to 2 and out, first; Major Bradley, 111 (Merimee), even, 1 to 3 and out, second; Annabelle, 108 (Chiavetta), 12 to 1, 2 to 1 and 6 to 5, third. NO GELDINGS IN FUTURITY.

New Rules for Rich Event for Two-Year-Olds Are Affective in 1922.

In keeping with the action of various racing associations in recent years to discourage the gelding of thoroughbred racers, the rich Futurity at Belmont Park, with $30,000 guaranteed, which is the greatest event of the year for two-year-olds, will be open only to fillies and entire colts beginning with 1922, according to the announcement made by the Westchester Racing Association. This comes with the notice of the closing of nominations for the Futurity of 1922 on Jan. 3 next.

The Futurity, which is run on the final day of the Autumn meeting at Belmont Park in September, has heretofore been open to all two-year-olds properly nominated. In recent years there has developed a strong sentiment against permitting geldings to compete in important stake events which are designed especially to show the advantages of certain breeding qualities. It has been the contention that these stakes should be reserved for horses which could be used later to improve the breed, and as a result the gelding has been barred from first one event and then another.

The rule against geldings racing in the Futurity applies to nominations being made now for the race two years hence and is expected to discourage the gelding of horses which show any promise whatever and which are regarded as suitable candidates for this stake. In all other respects the conditions for the Futurity are the same as have governed the race in other years.

CLYDESDALES A FEATURE.

Special to the New York Times.

CHICAGO Ill., Dec. 4.—Judging by their winnings at the International Live-stock and Horse Show today, Clydesdales will soon become as popular among amateur breeders in the East as they are for strictly utilitarian reasons favored by those who breed horses in the West. Exhibitors from Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, and New York City captured the entire eight Clydesdale championships, six of them being won by a New Yorker. Pony four-in-hands were another feature.

Fairholme Footprint, an imported Clydesdale exhibited by F. L. Ames of Boston, who farms at Northeastern, Mass., won the class for the best aged stallion, the senior stallion championship, and the grand championship for the best Clydesdale at the show. He is six years old.

George A. Cluett of New York City and Troy, who is a gentleman farmer, also at Williamstown, Mass., included among his winnings the best two-year old Clydesdale stallion class and the junior stallion championship, with Kinleith Footprint, which he imported from Scotland as a weanling. Also Mr. Cluett won the junior championship for fillies, and for the best American-bred fillie, with the two-year-old Langwater Jessica, bred by F. L. Ames. Jessica was placed reserve for the grand championship to Fairholme Footprint.

Craigie Sylvia, one of the greatest Clydesdale mares ever shown in Scotland and imported six weeks ago by Mr. Cluett, captured the aged mare class, the senior and the grand championship for mares, a series of American successes that Sylvia has often duplicated in the "Land o' Cakes."

TIE PIN SETS RECORD AT JEFFERSON PARK

Pressed by Mountain Rose, He Hangs Up Third New Track Mark Within a Week.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 4.—With the course at Jefferson Park in excellent condition, another track record was established here today. This is the third new mark to be made in a week of racing during this meeting. The record figures hung up today were made by J. S. Ownby's Tie Pin in the final race on the card, at a mile and an eighth, in which he defeated a field of eight starters and covered the distance in 1:54 2-5. The other records were made at five and five and a half furlongs.

Although the credit for setting this new mark belongs to Tie Pin, he was not the best in the race and the real feature of the contest was the manner in which Mountain Rose 2d scampered over the ground to finish second, half a length back of the winner, after being practically left at the post. Had she been away well she might easily have made better time than did Tie Pin.

Tie Pin was hustled into the lead at the very start and was in front all the way, but it was necessary for Canfield to ride him hard through the last half mile, for the horse showed signs of weakening. Canfield used his whip freely and kept Tie Pin at the top of his speed to stall off the rush of Mountain Rose, and this undoubtedly accounted for the fast time.

Mountain Rose was left standing still at the post when the barrier was sprung and did not get into motion until the others were well on their way. Duggan was forced to go to the whip at once and through the back stretch he moved up gradually until he was up with the first flight turning for the stretch.

Mountain Rose Once Leads.

Mountain Rose showed such fine speed that she actually got into first place at the head of the stretch, though she held the position by only a head, but when Tie Pin was straightened out he soon resumed his position in front, as Mountain Rose had been used up catching the winner. However, she held on gamely to the finish and forced Tie Pin to do his best. McAdoo was third, two lengths away, after being badly outrun in the early part of the race. He appeared to quit and did not show his usual speed.

The feature on the card was the Kenner Handicap for all ages, and though there were only five starters, this was one of the best contests of the day and resulted in a stirring finish. J. L. Solomon's Lively gained the verdict of the judges by a head after racing neck and neck with Breeze for a sixteenth of a mile. This was a test at a mile and Lively was sent to the front at the start and set a fast pace. He was nearly two lengths in front at one stage of the race, but Breeze came with a great rush in the stretch and was gaining so fast that he would have been the winner in another ten feet.

Robinson was probably responsible for the defeat of Breeze as he held him under restraint for the greater part of the race and did not make his move in time to catch the winner. Panaman, which ran some good races earlier in the season, was in at 120 pounds and, as on other occasions, found the weight too much. He was well up throughout and was in front for a fraction of a second, but tired in the stretch and dropped back to third, being defeated for the place by two lengths.

Pueblo Finds Going Easy.

J. M. Zimmer's Pueblo ran to his best form and captured the second event, for two-year-olds, at five and a half furlongs, being much the best of his field. It won by six lengths from Viva Cuba, with Cancion third. Pueblo went into the lead after a furlong and drew away so easily that the result ceased to be a contest at the head of the stretch. Viva Cuba was always well up but was not good enough to run with the winner, although this one easily saved second place by beating Cancion by three lengths.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE—For three-year-olds and upward; purse $500; six furlongs. The Garden, 117 pounds (Reidour), 6 to 5, 1 to 2, and 1 to 5, first; Sauer, 115 (Stevens), 6 to 1, 2 to 1, and 7 to 10, second; Moss, 115 (Scott), 4 to 1, 2 to 1, and 7 to 10, third. Time—1:15 1-5. BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—6 per cent. for the best names. Wednesday—6 per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Batiks for Resort Wear.

Quite a demand has sprung up for batik scarfs and other batik effects from buyers who plan these goods for resort wear. The business on batik goods, including waists, kimonos, and lingerie of various sorts, has shown a steady improvement. This business, however, can be taken in only a limited amount, it was said yesterday, owing to the fact that the principal appeal is made by individual patterns, each a separate piece of work. This prevents anything like quantity production.

Big Coat Season Seen.

From the large orders that have been placed on women's coats for next Spring manufacturers in this line foresee an unusually big season ahead on such garments. The polo coats will, it is said feature the demand, as they are being bought heavily now in both the short and three-quarter lengths. The short coat or coatee, however, seems to be the most popular number. Buyers are being warned to get their orders in early, as the manufacturers state that even higher prices will be asked on the basis of present quotations in the dress goods market.

Gray Goods Demand Small.

The demand for gray goods in the local market slumped noticeably yesterday, as compared with the two days preceding. The clothing styles were in fairly active request, and business was done at full prices for nearby deliveries. Fine-yarn cloths were very quiet, but well sustained as to price. In the printcloths business was done on 39-inch 68-72s, for delivery through the first quarter of next year, at 23 cents. Sheetings sales included some December 5.50s at 15¾ cents, and March-April 5-yard goods at 17½ cents.

Suits Expected to Sell.

Plans laid by the women's suit trade take into consideration a heavier call for such merchandise than is ordinarily made for a Spring season. The manufacturers for the most part are confining themselves to simple tailored lines, with here and there a house that shows airy set with the bouffant hips decreed by Paris. Sport designs are especially popular, it would seem, from the orders which have been placed by buyers, and they are worked out in a number of novelty fabrics. The manufacturers do not believe that prices though at their peak will lead to any great restriction of buying.

Pure Fabric Legislation.

It was announced yesterday that a committee has been appointed by the Board of Directors of the American Association of Woolen and Worsted Manufacturers to study the proposed pure fabric legislation. The committee will cooperate with similar groups from other associations. Sentiment in the market at the present time is divided on the subject and there are even found manufacturers of virgin wool fabrics who have expressed themselves against such legislation. Consideration given to such legislation by some other associations has resulted in the decision to oppose such legislation owing to the cumbersome requirements.

Fancy Sweaters Much in Demand.

Summaries of the advance business in women's novelty sweaters that has been taken for Spring show two things principally. One of these is a demand for fibre silk sweaters that cannot possibly be supplied in full in view of the present scarcity of these yarns, and the second is that in the call for wool sweaters the fish tail has things pretty much its own way. Tuxedos in alpaca, mohair, cassimere, and other fancy yarns have sold freely to date, as have hand-made filet smock effects. The trend in colors shows no material change from that of recent seasons.

Use of Celophane Increases.

The increase in the use of celophane is one of the features of the local millinery trade at the moment. The material, which is shiny basket weave that is somewhat similar to patent leather in appearance, is being very cleverly used on some of the newest satin hats. Flat celophane braid is particularly favored, and there are pretty little interlaced effects made of it that show up very well with ribbon. For instance, close-fitting turbans and tams make use of ribbon and celophane stripe without frames in soft, "crushable" models. Braided or twisted celophane is also seen on the edges of scoop shapes as well as Chin Chin effects made of fitted satin.

To Display Shoes at Lyons.

Despite the fact that part of the present high cost of shoes, as well as prospects of future advances, is blamed on sub-normal production and a consequent scarcity, it was learned yesterday from a reliable source that between twenty-five and fifty American manufacturers of men's, women's and children's footwear have contracted for display space at the coming international industrial show at Lyons, France. This show will begin on March 1, to run for two weeks, and it is expected that it will be visited by shoe merchants and buyers from all parts of the world. Apropos of this, it may be said that large quantities of shoes for export have been offered for some time. A single recent issue of a trade paper contained advertisements offering about 1,100,000 pairs of shoes for export, most of them for men.

Meeting of Woolen Men.

The annual meeting of the American Association of Woolen and Worsted Manufacturers, held yesterday afternoon at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, was devoted to routine business of the organization and the election of officers. George B. Sanford was selected as President, Albert L. Gifford as First Vice President, and William J. Battey as Second Vice President. Arbitration of trade disputes and the progress made in this direction by the association was made principal topic of several of the reports read at the meeting. Robert T. Francis explained at length the successful operation of the Mutual Adjustment Bureau of the Cloth and Garment Trades, and described the work of reshaping merchandise done by its Service Department. Mr. Gifford announced that a standard purchase and sales blank with several desirable features will soon be put before the members for their consideration.

Japanese Silks Advance Sharply.

The Yokohama raw silk market has advanced 180 yen per picul since last week. Holders are reluctant to sell, as still higher prices are expected. Exporters have paid 3,180 yen for Sinshiu No. 1, but prices on the Silk Exchange there have gone far in advance of that figure. Unsold stocks amount only to 16,500 bales, compared with 34,150 bales at this time a year ago. The Canton market is reported very active and advancing, by cables received by H. L. Gwalter & Co., but business at Shanghai is hampered by the lack of ready stock. Reelers of steam filatures are quoting for shipment as far off as April and May. A sharp rise of silver exchange has raised the price of the medium grades well above $14 a pound and of the best grades above $15. At Milan the price of extra classical has advanced to 400 lire per kilo, with ready silks scarce and stocks of cocoons running very low at many of the filatures. The sharp rise in the local market, principally in sympathy with the advance in Japan, is causing the manufacturers to think twice before trading.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The Vinn-Mark Company, Inc., makers of garment specialties, 357 Broadway, has opened an uptown sales office at 1,270 Broadway. Irving C. Krewson heads the company.

A meeting of the blanket buyers of the Dry Goods Alliance will be held on Wednesday next at 404 Fourth Avenue.

The Star Skirt Company of this city announces the organization of a new corporation to be capitalized at $600,000 fully paid, which will include the Nevershrink Skirt Company and in which the employes will participate in the stock ownership. Those are the officers of the new corporation: President, Joshua Silverstein; Vice President, Henry Silverstein; Secretary, J. A. Livingstone, and Treasurer, Louis Silverstein.

Edward K. Wertheimer, Nat Plehn and Nat Levy, connected for a number of years with Guthman, Solomons & Co., have now entered business together under the name of Wertheimer, Plehn & Levy, Inc., manufacturing silk candle shades, loose beads, bag frames, &c., at 140 Fifth Avenue.

The Eastern and Middle West Travelers will hold a meeting in the auditorium of the Bush Terminal Sales Building on Dec. 15, at 8 P. M.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Industrial Stocks Rise Briskly as Short Interest Is Reduced —Liberty Bonds Up.

In a somewhat hesitant fashion at first and later with positive force, the stock market moved forward yesterday. The pressure so noticeable against Liberty bonds on earlier days of the week disappeared during the first half hour of business and afterward these issues displayed more strength than had been seen in a month or more. While their movements were parallel, it hardly seemed as though the same influences were at work in stocks and Government securities. The occasional bulges of share prices indicated waves of short covering. At the same time brokers reported considerable new buying of a speculative nature, presumably induced by the easy state of the call money market and engendered by calculations of traders that with a large short interest to work upon casual profits might be seized through a "turn" on the long side of prices. Demand loans were at 6 per cent. throughout the session.

The upturn of Liberty bonds may have resulted from the investment purchases by institutions, in the main, as bond dealers had reported an increasing demand from these sources during the recent declining period. The reason why selling should record a lesser persistence than for some time past was not developed by the day's news in any quarter. Perhaps, if the theory held in important quarters has a firm basis, a part of the last fortnight's steady liquidation was for the purpose of providing cash to margin stocks, a process which would naturally find easement when the speculative accounts of a large group of traders had been brought into proper position. A factor of unknown extent has been the sales of Liberty bonds by holders who desired to use the proceeds for the purchase of necessities and to put into luxuries at this time of extraordinary demand for articles so classed. Bonds of local traction companies again showed much strength, and other funded securities on the Stock Exchange were firm as a whole.

Reservation should be made in respect to the railroad stocks in reviewing the day's movements. They were sluggish and did very little in the way of price alterations, which was not altogether surprising in the light of current conditions. It is believed that sales for the short account entered to a moderate degree only in the decline of November, so that the shares have a smaller portion of the potential demand provided by such transactions to lean upon than do the industrial and mining issues. The influence of prospective legislation has not yet been reflected in the rail stock market.

Sterling exchange recovered abruptly in early dealings, later losing part of the gain. From Wednesday's final quotation of 3.87¾ for check remittances, the rate advanced to 3.91¾ before reacting to 3.90½. Francs and lire also improved only to recede again, but further declines were recorded by Scandinavian quotations. Holland and Swiss exchange continued to move forward as they have of late. The exchange market supplied nothing new in regard to explanations of movements.

WARBURG OPPOSES CALL MONEY PLAN

BANKERS INDORSE VIEWS

American Acceptance Council Authorizes Committee to Consider Means to Change Method.

Paul M. Warburg, in his capacity of Chairman of the Executive Committee of the American Acceptance Council, told the Board of Representatives of the Council at its annual meeting yesterday that so long as the present system of lending money on call on the Stock Exchange obtained, just so long would the best results of our banking system be unattainable. The present system, Mr. Warburg said, was unsound and unscientific, and should be corrected at an early date. He also expressed the opinion that the best functioning of the banking system would come after the bankers' acceptance had been relieved of the competition which it now has to contend with—Treasury certificates of indebtedness.

Speaking of the call money market as an obstacle in the way of the bankers' acceptance becoming the most desirable asset of "secondary reserves," Mr. Warburg said:

"As long as this system continues, as long as the banks all over the country dump their idle funds upon the Stock Exchange, treating these Stock Exchange loans and New York balances invested therein as the quickest and most important secondary reserve, just as long is the Stock Exchange in an unsound condition and just so long will it be impossible to secure for our country the benefits of a wide discount market and effective bank rates.

"For over ten years some of us have preached the gospel of a system of centralized reserve banking predicated upon a reliable discount market, as against decentralized banking based upon reserves invested in Stock Exchange loans. Only the first part of this program has been carried into effect; the second part still remains to be accomplished. As long as the Stock Exchange call loans retain their prominence as secondary reserves of too many banks, and as long as Stock Exchange demands fix the call loan rate in the largest money centre in the world, we shall not enjoy a complete and perfect banking system.

Difficult to Alter System.

"Nobody will deny that for a machine moving as fast and involving as gigantic daily transactions as the New York Stock Exchange, a change of system is a most difficult task. It is obvious that it should be undertaken only with the greatest possible precautions. But the difficulty should not scare us into inactivity and indefinite delay when we know that eventually the change has got to be made.

"When drastic banking reforms were first urged the most prominent bankers were opposed to it for the reason that they were prospering under the old system and because they thought that it would be impossible and dangerous to tinker with so immense and, at the same time, so delicate a structure. None the less, the system was remodeled without any serious disturbance, and those were proved to have been right who predicted to prosperous bankers that if they could prosper with an unsafe system they would be certain to enjoy an even greater prosperity with a safe banking system. The same experience is in store for the Stock Exchange, but the question is, will they, of their own free will and initiative, undertake the task for their own benefit and that of the entire country, or will they delay as the banks did until they learned their lesson by the dread experience of the panic of 1907, resulting in governmental legislation?

"At present our gold position is well protected by a trade balance so phenomenally in our favor. In the long run, however, our country will not be able safely to accomplish its new task of a world banker without the protection of an effective discount rate regulating a wide discount market.

"Our Stock Exchange must be protected from the vagaries of a daily fluctuating money supply; it should be placed on a basis of weekly or two-weekly settlements. Our bill market should be protected from the daily unsettlement caused by the increasing and decreasing demands of the Stock Exchange. The call money market ought to be based primarily on prime bills that can quickly be turned into cash balances, while the bulk of undigested stocks and bonds ought to be carried by time loans rather than call loans. As a matter of fact, many of these call loans are callable only in name, and inasmuch as they are carried by loans that are actually subject to call, they are a source of unrest and danger.

Post-War Evils.

"It would be foolish to say that our present financial complexities are due solely to this defect in our system. We could not expect to go through a period of unparalleled destruction and inflation without having to face consequences whose beginnings only we are witnessing today. Maybe in spite of a defective system we might have felt less cramped today if since the armistice we had set our face more sternly against over-buying, over-spending, and over-speculation, not only on the stock exchange but also in many other trades. Maybe somewhat higher discount rates would have been less costly to the country than high prices and a low level of rates. But these are, after all, large questions on which opinions may differ. The fact remains that, with the heavy burdens that the future no doubt will place upon us, we should be criminally negligent if we left anything undone that would tend to perfect as far as possible every cog in our financial machinery.

"The establishment of a world-wide discount market and its emancipation from the evil influences of an unscientifically organized call-loan market is obviously a task still to be accomplished by us. No more useful work could be undertaken by the American Acceptance Council than to centre the attention of its members on this problem and to further its solution."

Speaking specifically of Treasury certificates and the part they play in the banking field, Mr. Warburg said:

"As long as banks are expected to invest from time to time in large amounts of Treasury Certificates, and as long as these certificates are offered on a basis which makes the investment more attractive for the banks than for the small investor (owing to the Government deposit that carries a substantial portion for a substantial time at a low rate of interest and thereby materially increases the return to the bank); as long as it is easier for banks, and at times even more profitable, to borrow against these certificates than to sell bankers' acceptances, so long will the bankers' acceptance have an uphill fight for a proper position in the portfolio of the banks.

"When once our Treasury Certificates are paid off, or funded, or distributed in a manner to eliminate banks as their main buyers, and when, as a consequence, our banks become the chief purchasers of bankers' acceptances, we shall enhance most effectively our ability to finance the world's trade and, at the same time, we shall have removed one more element of artificiality in the present financial situation. Like England, where Treasury bills are now being offered on approximately a 6 per cent. basis, we shall continue to move in the direction of bringing interest rates under the control of the natural forces, a policy without which expansion and inflation cannot be arrested."

Warburg's Suggestions Indorsed.

Following Mr. Warburg's address, the Board of Representatives adopted the following resolution:

Whereas, The present method of daily Stock Exchange settlements, with its dominating and often unsettling effect on the call money market, influences adversely the development of a wide and healthy discount market in the United States;

Resolved, That the Chairman of the Executive Committee be authorized to appoint a committee consisting of members of the Executive Committee and other individuals to study the advisability, ways, and means of modifying the present system of settlements on the New York Stock Exchange and substituting therefor some system of periodical settlement, with power to take such steps as may seem advisable in the case.

The special committee, provided for in the above resolution, it was stated, will be announced by Mr. Warburg within a few days.

The Board of Representatives elected Lewis E. Pierson, Chairman of the board of the Irving National Bank, President of the council. Mr. Warburg was re-elected Chairman of the Executive Committee. Arthur Reynolds, Vice President of the Continental and Commercial National Bank of Chicago, was elected Vice President; Jerome Thralls of the Discount Corporation of New York was elected Secretary, and Percy H. Johnston, Vice President of the Chemical National Bank, was chosen Treasurer.

The former members of the Executive Committee were re-elected and John Bolinger, Vice President of the National Shawmut Bank of Boston, and Kenneth R. Hooker, President of Putnam-Hooker Company of Cincinnati, were added to the membership.

OPPOSED TO A CHANGE.

Stock Exchange Not in Accord with Mr. Warburg's Views.

Samuel F. Streit, Chairman of the Committee on Clearing House of the New York Stock Exchange, gave out a statement yesterday setting forth the position of the Exchange with regard to the possible institution of a weekly or fortnightly settlement. Mr. Streit said that it should not be considered that he was entering a controversy with Paul M. Warburg, who yesterday pronounced the current system of making call loans with which to finance the stock market "unsound," but that he simply was stating the situation as it appeared to Stock Exchange authorities. Mr. Streit said:

"The Stock Exchange is going ahead as rapidly as possible to put into operation the Stock Clearing Corporation for the purpose of facilitating and handling the daily settlements. We do not feel justified in considering or undertaking any other change until that is perfected.

"Mr. Warburg says that with 'a machine so fast and involving such gigantic daily transactions as the New York Stock Exchange, a change of system is a most difficult task and should be undertaken only with the greatest possible precautions.' That is the way we feel about it. We want to be able to relieve the congestion in the Street and modernize our present methods of doing business. If we are successful in that we will be open to discussions and conviction on the subject of a term settlement, whether it be weekly or fortnightly.

"Mr. Warburg speaks of inactivity and delay. The Exchange is moving as rapidly as possible in the matter of putting the Stock Clearing Corporation operations into effect. The quarters in the Stock Exchange Building are promised to be ready Jan. 1, next. When they are completed there will be the question of educating the office forces and the banks, and drilling the employes of the corporation in the working thereof. How long that will take, whether one or two months, I do not know. But it is being pushed as rapidly as possible, and I think that is the answer to the statement of Mr. Warburg about 'inactivity and delay.'

"Mr. Warburg also says we should be willing to undertake the task of changing and modernizing our system for our own benefit, in addition to our delay and inactivity. I do not think it a question of delay, or of lack of desire to get things moving better. It is a question of machinery, and if that works, which I expect it will, then Stock Exchange members and bankers can enter into an intelligent discussion as to the merits and demerits of a term settlement.

"I want to emphasize very strongly that if today the New York Stock Exchange approved of and desired to adopt a term settlement, it would be impossible and impracticable until our present plan has worked out successfully. In other words, it would be physically impossible for us to change from our present day-to-day settlement basis to a weekly or fortnightly settlement basis at the present time. I cannot make this too strong."

BUYS AMERICAN TRUST CO.

William R. Compton Company Takes Over St. Louis Concern.

The William R. Compton Company has purchased the American Trust Company of St. Louis through a syndicate headed by William R. Compton and including R. P. Compton of the New York office of the first company. The name of the purchased institution will be changed to the Compton Trust Company, but it will be run as a concern distinct from the William R. Compton Company. Vice Presidents of the new company will be Henry H. Hopkins, Thomas N. Dysart and Clarkson Potter.

The purchase was made through the Guaranty and Trust Company of St. Louis, which recently offered the stock of the American Trust Company at $118 a share. The syndicate is said to have purchased 9,000 shares of the stock, the amount involved in the deal being approximately $1,062,000. The company is a member of the Federal Reserve System and the Clearing House Association.

Elected to Equitable Life Board.

Herbert P. Howell, First Vice President of the National Bank of Commerce, and Alfonso de Navarro, Vice President of the Atlas-Portland Cement Company, were elected to the board of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States at the annual meeting of stockholders yesterday. They succeed the late Eben B. Thomas, former President of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, and George T. Wilson, resigned.

"Foreign Trade Through Foreign Investments"

A Decided Increase in Principal and Income is quite possible for those who take advantage of the present foreign exchange rates and purchase the internal loans of any one of the allied governments.

We submit the following table which indicates clearly the profits that investors in French, Belgian and English bonds would receive should exchange return to normal:

	Approximate Present Cost	Approximate Cost at Normal Rate	Redemption Value At Normal Rate
$1,000 francs 5% French Victory Loan	$90	$175	$193
1,000 francs 4% French Loan of 1917	$73	$140	$193
1,000 francs 5% Belgian National Restoration Loan	$114	$200	$193
100 Pound 5% British National War Loan 1922	$395	$480	$496
100 Pound 4% British Victory Loan	$325	$403	$486

It will be seen from the above that those who buy at present rates may eventually receive profits on their principal as follows, even if market prices should not advance:

5% French Victory Loan.....94½%
4% French Loan of 1917.....91½%
Belgian National Restoration Loan.....78 %
5% British National War Loan 1922.....21½%
5% British Victory Loan.....24 %

In addition, if the coupons are withheld and not collected until exchange returns to normal another substantial profit may be had through increased yield.

As prices are changing constantly, we will advise by telephone or telegraph the prices of the internal loans of the allied governments, and in addition we will be glad to furnish latest statistical data on request.

DROP IN COTTON AFTER FIRM START

TRADE LIGHT AT CLOSING

Weather Reports Improve — Liverpool Active and Up — Exports 33,843 Bales.

There was a better feeling at the start of yesterday's cotton market than most observers had expected. This was due in large measure to the improvement in the Liverpool market and the sharp recovery in sterling exchange. The Liverpool market came in much better than due and sterling showed an overnight gain of as much as 4 cents in the pound at the high price of the day, and the market here started firm, with December unchanged from Wednesday's closing and with the later months up 10 to 25 points. These initial gains were carried further after the opening, and at the top of the forenoon, which was also the top of the day, contracts were up 25 to 45 points.

Later, however, there was a reaction, based on realizing sales for speculative accounts here and in the South, and while Europe continued to buy, it did not take contracts in sufficient volume to prevent the reaction running 60 to 65 points. There was nothing particularly impressive or alarming in the selling, though, and after it had run its course the market came back a little. In the last hour trading was light and the market at that time moved irregularly.

Weather reports were rather better than they have been lately, with very little rain reported, although the weather in most parts of the belt was cold. But at that there was not much disposition to pay attention to weather conditions.

Exports, which had been expected to fall off abruptly this week, continue moving at a good pace, although at nothing like the record-breaking rate of last week. Yesterday's clearances totaled 33,843 bales, all of which went to the Continent; 15,285 to France and the rest elsewhere, presumably most of it going to Germany.

The Liverpool spot market was unusually active, and on sales of 14,000 bales made an advance on the day of 29 English points to 25.52d. This is the highest price realized there since Nov. 10, when the figure was 25.60d. Following that price, there was the bad break which carried all values, European and American, down sharply, and on Nov. 19 spots at Liverpool sold at 23.34d.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Day.
December	39.25	39.50	39.00	38.90@39.00	39.25
January	36.90	37.15	36.60	36.94@36.97	36.72
March	34.70	34.97	34.30	34.60@34.65	34.61
May	32.90	33.07	32.75	32.78@32.82	32.75
July	31.80	31.95	31.45	31.90@31.65	31.75
September	.....	.....	.....	29.60	29.65

The local market for spot cotton was steady, 25 points lower to 39.50c for middling upland; sales nil.

Southern spot markets were: Galveston, 42.25c; New Orleans, 40c; Savannah, 39.50c; Augusta, 38.75c; Memphis, 40c; Houston, 41.25c; Little Rock, 40.25c.

Yesterday's cotton statistics were:

	Yesterday.	Last Week.	Last Year.
Port receipts	50,034	31,578	19,294
Exports	33,843	41,782	12,057
Exports, season	2,065,592	.....	1,332,199
N. Y. stocks	71,814	.....	137,098
Port stocks	1,558,083	.....	1,388,745
N. Y. arrivals	11,631	.....	.....

Liverpool cables: Spot cotton was in good demand at 25.52d for middling. Sales 14,000 bales, of which 7,000 were American. Imports 14,000 bales, none American. Futures opened quiet, 5 up to 4 down, and closed irregular, 40 up to 24 down, on the day. Prices: Dec., 25.01d; Jan., 24.14d; March, 22.80d; May, 21.62d. Manchester: Yarns and cloths were firm and active.

Cotton Exchange Seat, $26,000.

John F. Clark, it was announced yesterday, has purchased the New York Cotton Exchange membership of George W. Baily for $26,000. This is an increase of $2,250 over the last previous sale and is $2,000 higher than the previous high record for a Cotton Exchange "seat."

Stock Exchange Changes.

The following proposed transfers of membership were announced yesterday at the New York Stock Exchange: Otto J. Thomen to Percy R. Goepel for $100,000; David A. Noyes to Jones E. Henry, nominal; Osborne Howes to Charles E. Danforth, Jr., for $65,000, and Max Ruckgaber, Jr., to Warren Ackerman for $85,000. Preceding sale price was $100,000. The following were elected members of the Exchange: George Carstens, Waller C. Hardy, Samuel Ungerleider, and Alfred J. Johnson.

New Consolidated Textile Stock.

A circular is being sent to stockholders of the Consolidated Textile Corporation by President Frederick K. Rupprecht announcing the acquisition by the corporation of more than 90 per cent. of the outstanding capital stock of the Lynchburg Cotton Mills Company. The deal was financed temporarily through short-term bank loans which will be taken up with proceeds from the sale of 55,000 shares of stock at $30 a share. The new stock is being offered to shareholders at the rate of one share for each two shares now held. Allan A. Ryan & Co. and Hambleton & Co. of Baltimore have underwritten the issue.

PRODUCTION OR HIGH COST.

Credit Men's Committee Sees No Reduction Without Normal Output.

There will be no reduction in the high cost of living until production reaches normal or there is a business reaction which will be felt seriously by the entire country, according to a statement issued by the Executive Council of the National Association of Credit Men. The statement reads in part:

The advancing prices that have marked the year have brought another danger to our credit structure. They have induced an orgy of speculation not only in stocks, but merchandise and all other things having value, and this has imposed a strain on credit that few men sufficiently appreciate.

The Council took note of the increasing cost of necessities, due primarily to insistent demand for goods, the production of which has been, and is, far below normal. This condition is due partly to the imperative demands of war, but is aggravated by the loss of energy and purposes of the people to work. Unless and until the energies of our people are marshaled for better production, it is clear that prices cannot be turned downward unless by a business reaction which will be felt seriously by all. Business men are helpless if our people refuse to marshal their energies for better production.

The Council in its consideration of the transfer of the railways to private control felt that it is of the highest importance that the railways be protected from the dangers of receiverships, and the public assured against interrupted service through the more generous treatment of our transportation system that was given before the war, and be assured of a revenue sufficient under good management to attract investment moneys and again become factors in the development of the country.

The council also called attention to the importance of the Government guaranteeing the accounts of the railways for supplies delivered prior to the time the railways were returned to private control, these accounts having in large measure been extended in reliance upon the good faith of the Government, it was said.

Bank Votes New Bonus Award.

The Board of Directors of the Citizens' National Bank yesterday authorized the payment of a bonus to employes for the quarter ended Dec. 31, amounting to 25 per cent. of the annual salaries. Earlier in the year other bonus awards were made, so that the total extra compensation to employes in 1919 will be 50 per cent. of their salaries.

Short Talks to Investors VII.

On Going to Sleep

THOUSANDS of conservative investors have gone to sleep on their investments during the past ten years. They have been thinking in the terms of 1909, and sticking closely to old time securities, like railroad bonds and stocks, with the result that a large part of their capital has evaporated and their incomes are smaller today than ever before.

OTHER investors, however, have been wideawake and have kept abreast of the times by diversifying and shifting their investments in an intelligent way. They have thus been able to offset the effects of high taxes and higher living costs by increasing their incomes.

LET us tell you how this result has been accomplished by hundreds of our clients who have been willing to accept our counsel.

WHY no investor has ever lost a dollar of principal or interest on any security bought of S. W. Straus & Co.

I

Reasons for Our Record

THIS IS the first of a series of advertisements which will tell in detail why the clients of S. W. Straus & Co., now numbering more than 25,000, have been protected for thirty-seven years without the loss of a dollar, or delay in payment of either principal or interest.

Such a record could not be the result of chance. It is the result of the development of a complete system of scientific investment principles and their application in a definite system of safeguards, known as the Straus Plan. These principles, to be explained further in detail, include the following:—

1. Fundamental Security
2. Priority of Payment
3. Investigation and Selection
4. Mortgaged-Earning Power
5. The "Pay-as-you-go" Principle
6. Amortization
7. Location and Demand
8. Sponsorship and Supervision

It will be to your advantage to read and preserve this series, which will contain fundamental information of value to every investor. If you wish this information in booklet form, write today for "Safety and 6%," which explains in full the above principles, and how they have been applied successfully for the protection of investors. Arkansas Natural Gas

Common Stock

On Monday, December 1st, instant, the stockholders voted to increase the common stock from $7,500,000 to $47,500,000, and to issue $1,000,000 at par ($100) to holders of the Preferred and Common Stock as of December 15th, instant; also to reduce the par value of the Common Stock from $100 to $10, issuing 10 shares of new stock for each one share of old.

This Company was organized in 1909 as a natural gas company. Recently it was decided to develop its oil acreage. The company now holds leases on approximately 315,000 acres of land, 200,000 of which are in Texas, and over 2,000 acres in the new Homer field, Louisiana.

Three weeks ago the company's first deep test well in the Homer pool came in at 15,000 barrels daily, drilled down to the first sand. On Monday, No. 2 deep test came in for 25,000 barrels daily, and with larger pipe, is estimated to be good for 40,000 barrels daily, possibly the largest well in the United States. Arkansas Company's present production is 48,000 barrels daily. Present estimated production from entire Homer field, 275,000 barrels daily.

We recommend the purchase of this stock, "when, as and if issued" at the market. Application will be made to list this stock on the New York Curb

Burk Pipe Lines & Refining Company

Cumulative 10% Sinking Fund Preferred Stock

PAR VALUE $100

Preferred as to both assets and dividends
Dividends payable semi-annually, May 1 and November 1,
Issued as of November 1, 1919
Transfer Agent: Guaranty Trust Company of New York

CAPITALIZATION

Common Stock	1,000,000	600,000

PROPERTIES

With gathering stations in the heart of an oil field of 100,000,000 barrels potential production, the Burk Pipe Line with its 16,000-barrel daily capacity has been offered long term contracts far in excess of its maximum carrying facilities. Two 55,000-barrel steel tanks will be located near the company's 78 car loading racks located on the Fort Worth & Denver City Railroad 13¼ miles from the gathering stations.

EARNINGS

Conservatively estimated net earnings for the first year of operation, after setting aside 25% thereof for a Sinking Fund for the retirement of this stock at 105, should be equal to 12 times Preferred Dividend requirements. The end of the third year of operation should show earnings in excess of 100% on the common stock.

The proceeds of this issue will provide funds for the completion of the pipe line now building.

The stability of the Pipe Line and Refining Industry makes stock issued by companies in this business highly desirable from an investment standpoint, as is shown by market quotations often in excess of 300% of par value.

We consider the Burk Pipe Lines & Refining Company an attractive profit-sharing investment and recommend its stock after a thorough and searching investigation.

Bankers

61 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

As a part of their general business, Imbrie & Co. conduct a department, as private Bankers under the supervision of the Superintendent of Banks of the State of New York, to receive deposits and do a general commercial banking business, both foreign and domestic. This department, in addition to its stated permanent capital of $100,000, set apart in compliance with law, is supported by the entire resources and responsibility of the firm.

Mr. Alfred J. McGrath, formerly cashier of The International Bank, is in charge of this department. He recently returned from an extended trip to South America and would be glad to confer with anyone interested in South American trade or any other matters pertaining to the Import and Export trade generally.

The condition of this department at the close of business November 12th, 1919, as reported to the Superintendent of Banks, was as follows:

DISSOLUTION NOTICES.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN TO ALL creditors that Radnal Ribbon Co. has this day dissolved partnership, and that Mr. Benj. D. Prusiln will continue the business under this name.

American Candy Company

History and Management

This Company started in 1888 as a partnership known as Kuhn Bros. & Budde. The business was incorporated in 1898 as American Candy Company and since that time, without taking in outside capital, has declared in dividends nearly one million five hundred thousand dollars while adding consistently to its capital and surplus. The earnings have averaged during the past twenty-six years 28% on outstanding capital. Now chartered as an Illinois corporation, the Company will continue under the same management, at the head of which remains Mr. Louis Kuhn, one of the best-known men in the industry and President of the National Confectioners' Association in 1916-17. For the present year the Company will earn approximately six times the dividend requirement of the preferred stock, and, it is estimated, net after taxes 25% on the offering price of the common stock. The right to buy common stock is extended to purchasers of the preferred. We strongly recommend this issue for investment and profit. Application will be made shortly to list both classes of stock on Chicago and St. Louis Stock Exchanges. Descriptive circular covering all details will be forwarded upon request.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Belief that the fuel situation is improving gave rise to a tone of optimism throughout the session on the Consolidated Stock Exchange yesterday. There resulted sustained demand for the active issues of all groups, with accompanying advances averaging from 3 to 13 points, the steel, oil, tobacco and marine properties being especially favored. Crucible Steel netted a gain of 13, Republic 6⅝, Bethlehem Steel B 2⅝, U. S. Steel common 2 and Baldwin Locomotive 4. Mexican Petroleum was bid up 7⅜, Middle States 6⅝ and Pan American 4¾. Tobacco Products rose 6½.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Interest centred yesterday in the purchase by Harry Aaronson of the Potter Building on Park Row, for a price said to be close to $2,000,000.

It consists of eleven stories and extends from Park Row to Nassau Street, covering the entire frontage on the north side of Beekman Street, with a frontage on Park Row of 96 feet, 96 feet on Nassau Street and 144.8 feet on Beekman Street. This site, and that occupied by the former Times Building, adjoining, was once the Governor's gardens, and later on the land on which the First Brick Church was erected. William H. Whiting & Co. negotiated the deal.

Richmond Levering & Co. completed the site for its proposed new building yesterday by the purchase of 209 Pearl Street, from William Goldstone, adjoining other property recently acquired, including 91 to 97 Maiden Lane and 4 to 8 Gold Street. The new structure, which is to cost $1,500,000, will cover a plot of 14,000 square feet. Charles F. Noyes & Co. negotiated the transaction.

$625,000 West End Avenue Deal.

The San Domingo, a twelve-story apartment house at 949 West End Avenue, was sold yesterday by B. Rush Stoddard to Stewart Forshay. The structure, which occupies a plot 75 by 100, on the former site of the Reformed Church of America, was held at $625,000. Byrne & Bowman negotiated the transaction.

Investor Buys Bank Building.

An investing client of Weschler & Kohn purchased from the Irving Trust Company the eleven-story Market and Fulton National Bank Building, at Fulton, Gold and Ann Streets. The building is fully tenanted and yields a total yearly rental of about $87,000. It covers a plot fronting 43 feet on Fulton Street, 60 feet on Ann Street and 121 feet on Gold Street. The Charles F. Noyes Company negotiated the sale.

Lexington Avenue Opera House Sold.

The Lexington Avenue Opera House, adjoining the northeast corner of Lexington Avenue and Fifty-first Street, facing 220 feet on the street and having a frontage of 50 feet on Lexington Avenue, has been sold by Frederick Grandjo to the Rogers-Sterry Syndicate, Gustavus A. State Realty Convention at Utica Today.

The first convention of the New York State Association of Real Estate Boards will convene in Utica today. Retrenchment and State expenditures will be one of the topics of discussion, led by Senator Davenport of Oneida County. The attitude of the Inter-State leaders in the State Legislature on this policy is well known, and for that reason the convention promises to be largely attended. Delegates from the Long Island Real Estate Exchange, the Westchester Board of Brokers, Buffalo, Rochester, Batavia, Syracuse, and Albany, as well as individuals belonging to the association from all parts of the State, will be present. James Frank of New York, the newly elected President of the association, will preside. On Saturday evening the delegates will be entertained at the annual banquet of the Utica Real Estate Exchange. The meeting will be held at the Utica Hotel, Utica, New York.

One man's unique contributions to the happiness of your home

The first of a series of messages defining the position of the Emerson Phonograph Company, as an international contributor to the world's lightheartedness, through the medium of phonographic music.

VICTOR H. EMERSON

TODAY the Emerson Phonograph Company is far behind current orders despite greatly increased production facilities. Each month more Emerson Records are sold than were sold the month before, so great is the demand.

What is the big outstanding factor in this amazing growth?

Most great business enterprises trace a pedigree to the ability and foresight of one man.

In the case of the Emerson Phonograph Company, that man is Victor H. Emerson. Every time we crank a phonograph or put on a new record, we should think gratefully of Victor H. Emerson. For the story of the phonograph record cannot be written without stressing his name and his achievements.

The beginnings of this industry date back to the late Eighties, when the crude forefather of the modern record was being used by Congress, in a very limited way, in recording Congressional matters. Young Mr. Emerson was one of the very first to see its possibilities as a reproducer of music.

Mr. Emerson began with band records. He hired a band for $3.00 a day, made 2,000 records and quickly sold all but six of them.

But the crude methods of those times were slow. Duplicating difficulties were keeping musical enjoyment out of too many homes.

This was a real step forward. But there was still a serious difficulty. Phonographs in those days were operated by electricity, and millions of homes had no electricity.

Mr. Emerson again came to the rescue. In 1895, by the invention of the first spring motor, with automatic governor for regulating the speed of a machine, he took good music from the highways and put it in the byways.

Once more Mr. Emerson impressed the stamp of his genius indelibly on the industry which he has served so faithfully. Only recently he perfected a steel "master" which makes possible rapid duplication of musical records in large numbers and of a uniform quality hitherto unattainable.

But perhaps Mr. Emerson's crowning achievement was the invention and perfection of the Emerson universal "cut." This unique invention permits the owner of any type of phonograph to play Emerson records.

With his most productive years still before him, Victor H. Emerson is now giving to the Emerson Phonograph Company all the versatility of an inventive genius which has never yet failed of its objective.

To every owner of a phonograph this is a pledge of new musical pleasures, of every increased variety, of uniformly high quality.

To every dealer in phonograph records, Mr. Emerson's contributions, flowing out to him through the Emerson Phonograph Company, are an assurance of rising prestige, increased sales and surer profits.
